U. S. ACCUSES RUSSIA OF PLOT TO UPSET WHEAT

Hyde Tells Chicago Pit of Discovery.

The persistent and steady decline of the wheat market here, in Canada, and also the Argentine, which has contributed to the general business depression, was blamed on soviet Russia last night by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Hyde in disclosures sent to President John H. Bunnell of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Secretary Hyde declared his investigations have revealed that the heavy short selling of wheat on the Chicago market has been engineered by the Russian government. The cabinet officer's charges aroused the wheat pit here, although there was said to be a general suspicion among the better informed that the bolshevik government was reaching across the seas to sell grain short and disorganize the grain market.

United States and Canada Suffer.

Both the United States and Canada are suffering from a slump in wheat as a result of heavy short selling. Both these governments have assumed the responsibility of relieving the farmers in periods of grain depression —the United States through its grain board and its corporate agencies, and Canada through the Canadian wheat pool, whose loans are guaranteed by the government.

The soviet government, according to Secretary Hyde, has manipulated the grain market through the agency of the All-Russian Textile Syndicate of New York. The first published rumor of the scheme was contained in dispatches from New York in THE TRIBUNE last Tuesday.

Secretary Hyde acted on these published reports, according to Washington dispatches last night. His investigation was carried on by Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, administrator of the grain futures act. It will be continued here by Mr. Bunnell and George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation.

The Hyde Telegram.

The text of Secretary Hyde's telegram to President Bunnell follows:

"An inquiry was undertaken by the department of agriculture in consequence of certain rumors. This inquiry revealed beyond all question of doubt the heavy short selling of wheat upon the Chicago market by the Russian government.

"There can be no question that this selling has contributed to the fall in the price of wheat and to the injury of American farmers now engaged in their intensive marketing season. Obviously it would be impossible for soviet Russia to deliver grain in Chicago over our tariff of 42 cents a bushel.

"I should be glad to know from you what provision your exchange has made or can make for the protection of our American farmers from such activities."

Bunnell Promises Action.

President Bunnell's response was immediate.

"The request of Secretary Hyde for an investigation will be immediately carried out with the utmost diligence," he said. "Naturally we shall cooperate in a thorough investigation of this charge against the Russian government with the department of agriculture and the grain futures administration."

What retaliatory or preventive measures might be taken in such a case, where a foreign government itself is involved were problematical, it was said last night. Secretary Hyde emphasized the fact that his telegram to Bunnell was predicated upon a confession by the All-Russian Textile syndicate that it was selling short. Heavy short selling, according to market experts here, would have a particularly disorganizing and depressing effect on the market at this time.

Secretary Hyde said last night that the admissions of the all-Russian syndicate accounted for short sales of 1,000,000 bushels on the Chicago market. Estimates among Chicago grain traders put the total of Russian sales in the current near movement at 15,000,000 bushels, including the Canadian operations.

Record Low for Winnipeg.

Yesterday the price of contract wheat for October delivery sank to 79½c in Winnipeg, its lowest price in forty-two years that official quotations have been recorded. The price of December wheat in Chicago was 81c.

During the last six or seven days millions of bushels of wheat have been sold in the Winnipeg market, and according to the generally accepted idea this came about with a deliberate intent on the part of soviet Russia to

IF PENNANT'S LOST, "ILL LUCK" GETS THE BLAME

Magnate Talks of Root-McCarthy.

The Cubs won yesterday from Boston, 5 to 4. But they are still 2½ games back of St. Louis, the leaders, who also won. The Cubs are today tied with Brooklyn for second place in the National league pennant race. They have 7 games to play—3 with Boston and 4 with Cincinnati.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

William Wrigley Jr., the man who owns, among other things, a controlling interest in the Cubs, wishes to explain some things to the fans of Chicago.

William Wrigley's own Catalina island might be swallowed up by the Pacific. One of his palatial hotels might be blown away. People might suddenly stop chewing gum. Such happenings would be just too bad, but William Wrigley would discover another island, build bigger and better hotels and possibly find a new use for gum. Nothing stops William Wrigley when his mind is made up. That is, nothing except one thing can stop him.

What stops William Wrigley is baseball. He knew Chicago was expecting another pennant that might be a stepping stone to world championship. He thought he was going to give it to them. But the Cubs' chances of winning a pennant are daily growing slimmer. Hence the explanation.

Thinks Team Did Its Best.

The man of many millions, however, has built up his own consolation. He is satisfied the team is doing its best under distressing conditions. He said this and countless other things yesterday as, coatless, he wore a path in the carpet between a desk where papers awaited his disposal and a ticker where important news was coming from Boston. The story the ticker told was just as thrilling to him as if the pennant hinged on that one game. That's enthusiasm. Seemingly the game has him fascinated by its uncertainties.

"I was afraid when the team left Chicago the last time that it would not come home in first place," declared the man who wouldn't get out of baseball if they offered him the mint. "I knew the players were in bad shape physically. They were going to go through on sheer nerve if possible. I hoped they could and would, but I felt they were at the end of the rope."

It was suggested that possibly the final blow up was the weight of the accumulation of evil that had dogged the team all season. There was the death of Carlson, the loss of Hornsby, Bush's bad arm, Bell's failure to come through, Stephenson's absence, the spiking of Grimm and other mishaps.

Root's Loss Final Blow.

"You've hit the nail squarely on the head," exclaimed Wrigley. "The setbacks wore them down gradually, finally to a point where they had to surrender. Their own ill luck got them mentally. I could see it in their eyes during the recent series at Philadelphia. They weren't the same spirited men I had watched tear the opposition to pieces during the long home series in August. I guess the injury to Root took from them just about all the spirit remaining. It was the thing that made me give up hope.

"Given Root in turn and in his usual form I would have been confident right to the finish. Root is like Hornsby. He can step in there and balance the team after it has gone into a slump. But Root won't pitch any more this year, I am sure of that. He can't throw in his natural way without suffering excruciating pain. My concern now is that he will be able to pitch next year."

His appearance at the games in Philadelphia provided Wrigley with another reason for believing that baseball from the owner's standpoint, is different from any other business.

Kid Him About O'Doul.

"Do you know," he continued, "those fans forgot about the game and started to kid me about my team. It was all good natured, of course, and I took it that way. They wanted to know how much I would give to get O'Doul back. They told me not to take it to heart. They said it would spare me watching my Cubs take another trimming from the Athletics. I know now how an umpire feels. They made me think I was friendless. And Philadelphia is my home town.

"When they yelled to me about buying O'Doul they touched a tender spot. In all my years in baseball I have bought only one player without

U. S. DRY SLEUTHS RAID NIGHT CLUB OF GOLD COAST

Federal prohibition agents early this morning raided the La Paree café, 212 East Erie street, a night club patronized by residents of the gold coast, made five arrests, and confiscated thirteen quarts of imported liquors and twenty-five pints of Canadian beer. Thirty patrons were released by the raiders after they had identified themselves.

The raiders were admitted to the café by two other agents who had gained entrance several days ago through a ruse. These agents, Robert Richardson and Patrick Ewing, obtained admittance cards by posing as residents of Madison, Wis., and having the cards sent there. Last night they passed through the portals with cards in hands and, after obtaining their evidence, went to the rear door, which they unbolted for the six raiders.

The prisoners taken are Frank Gunning and his wife, Hazel, named as the owners of the club; Paul Lemay, 1213 North Dearborn parkway, the bartender; and two waiters, Tony Panos, 74 West Grand avenue, and Matt Simms, 2300 South Michigan avenue. According to the raiders, Lemay poured a dozen bottles of liquor into a sink as they were entering.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Salomon August Andree and his two comrades on their pioneer polar balloon expedition 33 years ago, failed by 500 miles in their attempt to reach the north pole and on July 14, 1897, three days after setting out from Dane's island, Spitzbergen, came down on the arctic ice wilderness. The diary tells of 80 days of battle on the ice against death.

Examination of the diary found on Andree's body after Dr. Gunnar Horn's expedition had brought it back to Tromsoe, Norway, has revealed the secret of the party's landing and 200 miles of wanderings until they made the camp on desolate White island, where they were destined to perish. A summary of the diary was released to the world tonight by the Swedish government after careful examination by experts.

Balloon Catches Fire.

Fire started on the balloon, the diary reveals, at 7 p. m. on July 13, the day previous to the landing. This was immediately extinguished. Apparently it caused little serious damage, for the last entry in the diary referring to the balloon's voyage says:

"The balloon again rose but both valves were then opened in preparation for a landing."

Previous entries show that wet weather, ice and hoar frost had weighted down the big gas bag, and that the gondola had been dragged along the ice many times during the latter part of the flight from Spitzbergen. The bumping against the rough surface of the ice completely exhausted the explorers.

Camp on Ice for a Week.

After coming down through an unknown cause in latitude 83 north, longitude 30 east, the explorers remained encamped on the ice for a week, preparing for their hazardous siedge journey back to civilization.

On July 22, eleven days after they flew away from Spitzbergen, they abandoned their temporary shelter and set out on the long trek.

The doomed men day after day, the diary reveals, struggled on toward safety in a constant battle with creaking, treacherous ice and deep pools of fresh water, which they had to cross with their frail canvas boat.

Defeated by Drifting Ice.

They marched not toward the northern coast of Spitzbergen, whence their balloon had brought them and where food depots had been prepared, but in more easterly direction. Their course was toward the little known regions north of Fridtjof Nansen land [then known as Franz Josef land].

The distance they covered each day varied considerably, but they never could do better than a few miles. Their astronomical observations show that the westward drift of the rough ice over which painfully they made their way had begun to prove too much for them.

Finally on Aug. 4, when they had been marching for about thirteen days, the heroic little band, defeated by the drift in their efforts to the east, were forced to abandon this route.

Start in New Direction.

So strong was the westward ice drift that it appears the explorers were carried westward faster than they could walk to the east. The powerful drift seems to have swept them to the west of their landing point, in longitude 30 east.

Giving in to the drift they decided to utilize it in a belated attempt to reach the Seven islands, off Spitzbergen, and turned southwestward. On the Seven islands, they knew, was an important food depot.

In starting the new march they were in latitude 82.17 north and longitude 22.43 east. This was roughly 60 miles west and slightly south of the point where they had come down in their balloon.

In the 13 days it had taken them to conquer this distance their provisions had begun to run low. The scanty supplies salvaged from the balloon's gondola had to be eked out by chance kills of polar bears—"the wandering meat shops of the arctic," as Andree calls them in the diary.

Supply of Bears Runs Out.

With each successful kill the prospects of the explorers brightened and their hopes were renewed. But there came a time when there were no more

Famed Flyers Lose Supply from Canada

BY ROBERT WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—United States customs agents greeted the annual Ford air tour on its arrival here from Canada today. Two hours later, Frank Hawks, Bill Brock, George Haldeman and a dozen other celebrated flyers gathered in a mournful circle around a pile of broken bottles and a washtub full of fine Canadian liquors that the government agents had fished from the corners of their planes. While the search was on 2,000 air fans heckled the searchers.

This part of the reception was a surprise to the visitors and to the Great Falls welcoming committee, who believed they had a tacit understanding that a wee drop hidden among the spare underwear and shirts would not be noticed.

Hawks Is Chagrined.

Frank Hawks particularly was chagrined. He steered the planes into town and, after a grand gesture over the heads of friends, who knew him as a bellhop in a Lewiston, Mont., hotel, he had to stand by while inspectors hauled fancy bottles of sherry, Three Star Hennessy, and other liquors from hiding places in his racing plane. Frank forked over $30 in fines to the government men.

George Haldeman, Atlantic flyer, showed surprise when a dozen bottles were found aboard his Bellanca pacemaker. Agents pulled out a big furry article and wanted to know what was in it.

"Nothing," said George. "It's a cushion, you know, to sit on."

Haldeman Registers Surprise.

"Well, for cryin' out loud," said the pilot. "I wonder where that came from. You know, I carried that half way across Canada and ordered my mechanic to unload it at the last stop."

Then he berated his grinning mechanic for the boner.

William S. Brock of the famous flying team of Brock and Schlee dug down in his jeans for $5 in fines for a quart of sherry cached in his Lockheed Vega. Tom Colby, official weather man for the tour, brought in two quarts of hard liquor and more was found among the baggage and passengers carried in the Bellanca piloted by Wesley Smith and the Curtis Kingbird flown by Walter Beech.

10¢ Bottles Are Seized.

Several hundred dollars in fine were collected and more than a hundred bottles were seized, but the government men had difficulty in tracing the bottles to their owners. Late arrivals, who got wind of what was going on, rolled bottles down the line toward the ships of other contestants and tossed them under automobiles parked nearby.

Those who declared their wet goods were not fined, but the stuff was destroyed. All the liquor was dumped into an old washtub behind the airport hangar, where crowds gathered to berate the agents. Several dipped into this mixture with their hands and drank up what they could before being shooed away.

Moist Reception Just Same.

Col. C. E. Sheridan, collector of customs, tonight refused to make public a complete list of those fined and the amount of liquor seized. The afternoon's bottle breaking did not prevent a moist reception for the visiting airmen here tonight.

Harry Russell, piloting a Ford trimotored transport, led the field again today in the number of points scored. John Livingston of Aurora, winner of last year's Ford reliability tour, jumped into second place in his Waco biplane and Art Davis of Lansing, Mich., in another Waco dropped back to third place. The tour leaves for Cheyenne, Wyo., tomorrow.

BARKER FREED OF MURDER; HIS UNION PAYS BILL

Files Show Racket Chiefs Live High.

Members of the trade unions which have been taken over by ex-convict racketeers are not only required to support these men in a princely manner, but also to foot the bills for their trials on charges from guntoting to murder. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury made these disclosures last night after they had reports from three of their assistants who spent the day examining the books and records seized in raids on ten union offices on Wednesday.

In one case, the investigators said, unionists paid $5,000 for the defense not only of their business representative, but for two hoodlum pals who were indicted jointly with him on a murder charge. The evidence in the case when it was tried some months ago showed no indication that it had any possible labor connections.

$5,000 Payment Revealed.

George Barker, business agent for the coal teamsters' union, was the man who forced the members of the Chicago Coal Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' union, to stand the bill for his murder trial, according to the prosecutors. The disclosure came about through discovery in the union files of a receipt for $5,000 from the office of Attorney W. W. Smith.

The teamsters not only paid Barker's legal bill, but also the bills of William Clifford and Michael Reilly, his hoodlum pals of earlier days on the west side. The receipt in question said the money was for services rendered for "Barker, Clifford and Reilly." There never has been any contention that either Clifford or Reilly, who were subsequently murdered, had any connection with the union.

Bills for Gang Funerals.

The funds of the union were apparently spent, according to the prosecutors, to suit the whims of the racketeers who seized control. Bills showing the purchase of floral pieces for dead gangsters in no way connected with the unions, according to the prosecutors, were among the items listed among the disbursements of the unions. High priced automobiles with $200 per month maintenance charges were also listed for the benefit of some of the business agents.

The preliminary examination of the records also shows, the investigators said, that the racketeers took out enough money in salaries to live far more comfortably than the men who labored to earn the money to keep the union treasuries filled. It is charged by the prosecutors that in only a few instances did the racketeers ever pretend to work at the trade of the union which they represent.

"It is easy to see now how these racketeers are always represented by the best of legal counsel," said Prosecutor Mueller. "The poor workingman was made, perhaps unknowingly, to pay the bills and to pay them liberally. We hope to put a stop to this at once."

Murder Trial Recalled.

The murder trial in which Barker, Clifford, and Reilly were involved took place in the courtroom of Judge John P. McGoorty in February of 1929. The men were charged with having shot and killed Albert Pratt, an attendant in Gould's garage at 863 North Clark street on Sept. 3, 1928. The only apparent reason for the shooting of Pratt was that he was mistaken for a colored garage attendant who had on the previous night witnessed the shooting of Policeman Walter Hoder. The policeman was shot for a reason not determined.

Barker, Clifford, and Reilly were arrested in San Francisco some months after the murder. They fought extradition, but to no avail when Policeman Hoder identified them. At the trial, however, Policeman Hoder changed his attitude and refused to help the state. The defendants were acquitted. Policeman Hoder was censured by the judge.

Hoder's reversal of attitude was not the only difficulty the state encountered in the trial. The transcript of evidence disappeared, and also the bullets.

"Perhaps the lavishness with which union money apparently was spent might now explain some of these things," said Prosecutor Lounsbury.

Flowers for Dead Gangster.

One item, which, the prosecutors said, should begin to open the eyes of the rank and file of the union

Food Qualities Higher but Prices Are Lower

A side of pork and some hams hanging from the rafters, a barrel of flour in the corner, possibly some potatoes and greens in the springhouse—that was the winter's menu in years gone by.

Today no two pantries will show duplicate selections of food, so wide is the choice.

The homemaker of today mixes brains with her batter and science with her shortcake. She balances her menus and concocts zestful combinations of health building foods.

Her visits to her grocery store are thoughtful and studious. She asks her grocer for suggestions, for information, for recipes. The range of the family menu has trebled and quadrupled since housewives became interested in something more than just another meal.

As a result, grocery shelves and counters bear a much larger variety and quality has been improved. Yet average grocery prices haven't been so low since 1924.

members, is listed as "$60 for floral piece for Earsman." The entry is about the time of the death of Big Dave Earsman, one of the few gangsters to die naturally.

So far as the authorities know Earsman had no union connections. The prosecutors said they could see no reason why the teamsters should send him a floral piece. He was an ex-convict like Barker, they pointed out, and a brother racketeer.

George Younger, a legitimate business agent for the teamsters, died about the same time as Earsman. The books show a $25 floral piece for him.

Barker at the beginning drew $600 a month salary from the teamsters' union. He also charged up an expensive automobile and $200 a month maintenance, the records show. Later his checks dropped to $500 a month, and last March, after the state's attorney's office had raided the union, his salary was reduced to $400 a month. It was pointed out that this may be because Barker also collects from other unions and that as his income increased from these sources the teamsters reduced the amount he could take from their union.

Others in $500 Class.

John Sheridan, Jr., son of John Sheridan, veteran labor leader, is also listed among the $500 class in this union. Several other officials received the same monthly salary, as well as drawing pay from a subsidiary known as the Hikers' union. This organization is controlled by William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, an ex-convict.

James Belcastro, Mike De Pike Heitler, and J. Annoreno, who is said to be "Pepy" Genero, feed off the Filling Station Owners' union, the records show. They apparently collect $75 a week each in two weekly checks of $50 and $25. Belcastro and Genero are listed as public enemies by the Chicago crime commission. Heitler is an old time brothel keeper and racketeer.

O'Donnell Brother "In."

Bernard O'Donnell, brother of Myles [Klondike] O'Donnell, who is another listed public enemy, takes $125 weekly as salary from the Commission Wagon Drivers' union, and $50 a month automobile maintenance, it was announced. Checks showing that he received $4,435 from Jan. 6, 1930, to Aug. 15, 1930, were made public by State's Attorney Swanson.

"We have not definitely determined how this hoodlum 'muscled' into this union but will call in various officials and members to see whether we can obtain such information," said Prosecutor Swanson's statement. "The checks issued to O'Donnell were all signed by J. Lenguadoro, president, and William Hanley, secretary and treasurer."

Alcock Pledges Police Aid.

Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court, who ordered the racketeer investigation in a special charge to the grand jury, and Col. A. A. Sprague of the new Association of Commerce crime prevention committee, conferred with Commissioner of Police Alcock yesterday about coöperation in the campaign. The commissioner promised both men he would cooperate in every possible way.

One minor racketeer raid was made on the orders of Municipal Judge Immenhausen. A squad of detectives headed by Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora went to the office of the Justices of Peace Directory of Illinois and the Illinois Justices and Magistrates' association. The organizations occupy a joint office at 205 West Wacker drive.

W. T. Bishop is head of the directory and Justice of the Peace Sherman Knox of Orland heads the other association. It is charged that they solicit advertising in return for promises of favor. The offices were empty when the raiders arrived.

Women's demands for equal rights in smoking are answered by a new club-lounge car which made its first trip between Chicago and Indianapolis over the Monon railway yesterday.

Launch Vagrancy Campaign Against Gangs' Small Fry

With 25 gangland leaders successfully eluding their pursuers for the third day since warrants charging vagrancy were issued against them by Judge John H. Lyle, Chief of Detectives John Norton was reported last night to be compiling a new list of hoodlums, minor captains in the underworld, for whom vagrancy warrants will be asked.

"We're not letting up on our search for the big shots," Norton was quoted as saying. "But there are a number of other gangsters, not included in the crime commission's list of public enemies, who can be prosecuted under the vagrancy act. Apparently many of the big fellows have left town. Our new drive will send their lieutenants scurrying after them."

United States Seeks Frank Nitti.

In the hope of finding Frank Nitti, Al Capone's chief gunman, federal officers, accompanied by detective bureau squads, raided the Capone headquarters in the Lexington hotel, 22d street and Michigan avenue, yesterday. Nitti could not be found, nor were any other known gangsters at the place. The manager of the hotel declared that Nitti had not been there for months.

The raid was staged with the authority of a warrant charging Nitti with being $277,000 in default in income taxes. He was indicted last March.

Danny Stanton Arraigned.

Danny Stanton, the only one of the 26 gang chiefs named in the warrants issued by Judge Lyle to be in custody so far, was arraigned before Judge Lyle yesterday on a vagrancy charge. His attorney, Thomas Nash, immediately asked for a change of venue. Attorney Nash and the court immediately clashed when the lawyer objected to the judge bringing in "irrelevant evidence."

"Don't interrupt me," said the judge sharply to the lawyer. "I'm not going to be pushed around by lawyers who, no matter how high their reputation, have been known for years as representing the underworld in court."

Stanton was granted a change of venue and a jury trial. But word came as he was in court that the grand jury had indicted him on gun carrying charges.

Two Gunmen Face Court.

Then Dominick Bello and Dominick Brancato, said to be old time members of the Aiello gang, were arraigned. They were arrested on Thursday at Washington and Clark streets, near the office of Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Rathbun and Investigator Pat Roche, who are directing the inquiry into the murder of Alfred Lingle. Two revolvers were found in their car.

Attorney Tyrrell Richardson, representing the pair, also asked for a change of venue and a jury trial. The judge looked at the two men standing before him with hats shielding their faces and said:

"Here are a couple of yellow, cowardly hoodlums," said the judge. "They're afraid to face the court. I serve notice now that hereafter, unless a known gunman looks me in the eye, he's going to get six months in jail for contempt of court."

Call Judge "Prejudiced."

The petition asking for a change of venue and declaring the judge "prejudicial to Italians" was signed by Bert Diletto, 3258 Princeton avenue, restaurant owner, and Mike Valenti, 2808 Lowe avenue, grocer. The judge turned to these two men.

"You look like the type who would set gunman loose on the streets," he said. "I have information that Diletto runs a saloon. You're little better than the hoodlums you seek to protect. The state will investigate both of you on my orders."

After threatening to call a jury and hear the case immediately, the judge finally allowed the change of venue for Bello and Brancato, and the case will be sent to another court for hearing. Bonds were set at $12,500 for each of the accused.

Matthew Capone, 21 years old, brother of Al Capone, was freed in the traffic court yesterday. Judge W. W. Damron, a country jurist, ruled that no evidence had been presenting linking him with gangsters and that while the defendant had been charged with driving in Illinois with an out of state license, the car owner is allowed sixty days to get an Illinois license. Young Capone came here from school in the east a month ago.

ACCUSES VOLIVA IN SUIT OVER ZION PROPERTY

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, and the mayor and chief of police of the town were made defendants in an action filed in the federal District court yesterday in behalf of a number of Zion property owners by former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis.

The suit charges the defendants with subdividing $2,000,000 worth of Zion property which, according to the plaintiffs, is public property, and with ruining plans for a $10,000,000 park system made by John Alexander Dowie, founder of the colony. It asks that Voliva and his associates be restrained from carrying further their plans involving the land.

Fight Dumping of Sewage in 2 Suburban Streams

More than 200 residents of Chicago Heights and Lansing swarmed into the courtroom of Superior Judge Lindsay yesterday to ask for an injunction restraining officials of the two towns from dumping sewage into Thorne creek and the Little Calumet river. The citizens declared that the

RAID GEISKING GANG HANGOUT; SEIZE EVIDENCE

Gunmen's Records Found in Forest Haunt.

A wooded hangout in which the Indiana gang of outlaws, including Ted Geisking, former suspect in the murder of Alfred Lingle, stayed in seclusion, was raided last evening by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Rathbun, and a squad of detectives.

The hideout was a ten room house amid the woods near Glenwood on a lot adjoining the forest preserve. Records and a great load of correspondence between the gangsters were seized by Mr. Roche and will be investigated later.

All the hoodlums who lived in the house, which they have occupied since June, 1930, cleared out of the place several weeks ago, on the night of the same day on which Roche staged a raid on the north side apartment of Dominick and Joe Aiello, Chicago gangsters.

Find Supply of Ammunition.

They departed in such haste, said Investigator Roche, that food was left on the dining room table and suits of clothing, ammunition for machine guns, rifles and shotguns and revolvers and other things were left behind.

Mr. Roche learned that the hoodlums had been receiving their mail at an address at 116th street and Michigan avenue, and detectives were sent there with instructions to have the owner of the premises report to the state's attorney's office this morning.

The Glenwood house had been rented by the gangsters, who gave no notice of their leaving. It was sumptuously furnished, with radio, grand piano, and expensive furniture and floor coverings.

Mr. Roche was to question the neighbors in the vicinity to determine whether any of the inhabitants of the house resembled the description given of Lingle's slayer by witnesses to the crime.

Echo of McSwiggin Case.

Roche declared that among the gangsters who had stayed in the house was Charles Carr, alias Coin Carr, a Capone gangster who was arrested in Louisville several days ago in connection with the arrest in that city of Geisking.

Carr, who has been known as a lieutenant of the Capone gang for five years, was sought for months by the Chicago police after the murder in 1926 of William McSwiggin, an assistant state's attorney. The police at that time obtained information that Carr had supplied the machine guns used by other Capone gangsters to kill McSwiggin and two gangsters in an attack in Cicero.

Records were found in the raided house showing that Carr had been living there, and this was taken by Mr. Roche to indicate that there was an alliance between the Capone forces and the Indiana gang. The latter group had been headed by Joe Traum, who is now in Leavenworth penitentiary serving a federal sentence. Geisking was known as one of the most ruthless of the hijacking, robbing band.

3 GUNMEN SHOOT TWO MEN IN BAR; 1 DEAD, 1 DYING

Explanations of Affray Mystify Police.

Three swaggering gunmen walked into a saloon at 6314 Archer avenue in Argo yesterday morning and began shaking dice for drinks with several patrons. Several hours later, apparently in a drunken altercation over change for a $10 bill, the trio drew their guns and started shooting.

George Peters, 35 years old, a professional wrestler, who used the name of Ollie Hassan, was slain, and Mike Lafakis, 38 years old, the bartender, was shot eight times and taken to the county hospital, probably fatally wounded. The three slayers ran to two large automobiles outside the saloon and drove away in opposite directions. Two men got into one car and a third took the wheel of the other.

Varying Stories on Quarrel.

Explanations on the cause of the quarrel varied. While, on the surface, the shooting appeared to be a drunken brawl, neighbors declared that Christ Peters, proprietor of the saloon, a cousin of the slain man, had been beaten severely by several assailants a month ago and that this gang had retaliated by slugging another man only last week.

Little beer was sold in the saloon, police said, and they doubted that the shooting was caused by a war of beer gangs for the place's patronage.

Hit By Gunmen, He Says.

James Brown, 7603 West 61st place, said that the trouble started when he paid for a round of drinks with a $10 bill and one of the strangers grabbed the $7 change which was handed back to him. When he protested one of the men hit him in the face, he said. He left as Peters, aroused by the noise in the berroom, which was in the rear of a cigar counter, appeared.

"And who do you think you are?" one of the three gunmen asked Peters, Brown told police. A few minutes later he heard shots and saw the men run from the saloon and climb into their cars.

Further mystery was added to the affair by Lafakis, who, in a dying condition at the county hospital, kept repeating:

This indicated, seemingly, that Lafakis was acquainted with the slayers, but was too weak to be questioned further, police reported.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Williams, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph Sabath.

GUNMEN ATTACK DRYS; KILL ONE IN BREWERY RAID

Prisoners Are Released by Gang.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 19.—[Special]—While federal prohibition agents who raided the Rising Sun brewery here late this afternoon were holding eleven prisoners for arrest in the boiler room of the plant, twelve gunmen descended upon them, disarmed them, released eight of the prisoners and shot and killed John G. Fianello, 44 years old, of Philadelphia. The victim was wounded eight times.

The raid on the brewery was made by men from the Philadelphia office of Prohibition Administrator John D. Kerrigan, who has jurisdiction over New Jersey. It represented another "counter stroke" in a major offensive against New Jersey beer running and manufacture undertaken as a result of a recent conference of prohibition agents from all parts of the state.

Tonight a bullet from an unknown gunman grazed the neck of Police Detective George Craig, in the brewery to investigate the slaying. The incident led to reports, scouted in some quarters, that some of the gunmen still were in the structure.

Second Brewery Raided.

Last Tuesday the Peter Breidt City brewery was raided and the agents drilled the bungs on vats containing 94,750 gallons of beer, flooding the streets. Violence marked that raid also when thugs ousted a guard posted at the brewery by the agents. They released four prisoners.

The Rising Sun brewery is in the Union square section at the center of Elizabeth. It is a bleak, red brick building bearing the "town clock." Under Robert Young, special supervisor of breweries in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, five agents made their appearance this afternoon at the Marshall street side of the plant and, when Young produced a search warrant, were admitted.

Take Prisoners as They Go.

The agents were A. R. Gaston, E. C. Malley, E. W. Talbott, J. J. Stokes, and Fianello, all of Philadelphia. Malley was left outside as a guard and with Young the others went through the building, taking prisoners as they went. The latter were finally herded into the boiler room on the ground floor.

The first intimation the agents had of the presence of the gangsters was when the latter burst into the boiler room with drawn pistols. One of the thugs disarmed the agents. He first took Gaston's pistol from him and then used the agent as a shield while he took their pistols from the others and handed them to one of his confederates.

At the moment his work was completed, Fianello, who had been in another part of the building, walked into the boiler room.

Fianello Killed by Volley.

A volley of shots followed and acrid powder smoke filled the room while the gangsters fled with eight of the seven men who had been corraled by the agents. Fianello had been killed instantly.

As the gunmen left the building through the door by which they entered they met Malloy, the federal lookout. He had been on the Seventh street side of the building when the gunmen entered. The latter took his pistol from him and fled across Marshall street to the brewery office building, where it is believed they had remained secreted when Young and his agents arrived. They ran through a rear door of the office building to Franklin street and escaped, it is believed, in automobiles.

The dull echo of the shots which had killed Fianello and chipped the walls of the boiler room were heard in the streets outside and within five minutes an excited crowd was surging about the doors of the brewery.

As in the Peter Breidt raid on Tuesday, the local police had not been notified that a raid was to take place. After the shooting today a call was put in to them for assistance, and fifty policemen were sent to the scene with riot guns and tear bombs. A call was also put in for state troopers, and twelve of them from troop B, Metuchen barracks, assisted the police in keeping the steadily growing crowd back.

Officials Decide Girl Flyer Not a Suicide

Ruth Alexander, whose death in airplane crash at San Diego, Cal., revealed a secret marriage to Ensign Robert A. Elliott, U. S. N., which records indicate was bigamous, as she appeared before entering machine in which she fell to her death a few minutes after this picture was taken.

DEATH ENDED BIGAMY TANGLE FOR GIRL FLYER

But Authorities Deny Her Crash Was Suicide.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Authorities today investigated the possibility that Ruth Alexander, aviatrix, who crashed to her death on Point Loma yesterday while taking off on a flight to Newark, N. J., committed suicide. They reached the conclusion her death was an accident.

The theory had been advanced that Miss Alexander had taken her life because of her supposedly bigamous marriage to Ensign Robert A. Elliott, U. S. N.

"We have carefully studied the notes left by Miss Alexander and have discovered nothing that would indicate she had ever contemplated suicide," said Coroner S. C. Kelley. "The notes, in my opinion, are exactly the sort to be expected from a person realizing the hazardous career on which Miss Alexander had embarked. We have questioned intimate friends of the young flyer and they all agree that at no time had she ever given any indication of depression."

Wed Thrice, Divorced Once.

Olathe, Kas., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Court records in Olathe and Richmond, Mo., today revealed that Ruth Alexander, aviatrix, who was killed yesterday in San Diego, was married twice and divorced but once before her marriage last June 21 to Robert A. Elliott, navy reserve air pilot.

The aviatrix's first marriage, to Aldon Fanuelson of Near Irving, Kas., The first marriage took place in Richmond, Mo., in 1924, and a divorce was granted a year later.

She and Alexander were married July 3, 1926, and went to live on Alexander's farm west of here, the girl leaving later to open a beauty parlor in Olathe.

Separating from Alexander, she went to California and took up flying.

Although a divorce was sought by Alexander, records showed the case never came to trial.

Miss Alexander wrote to the clerk of the Johnson county District court here saying she understood Alexander, a farmer near here, had received a divorce from her. Receiving no reply, the aviatrix is believed to have concluded the decree had been granted.

DETROIT BOOTLEGGER IS SHOT TO DEATH AT DINNER TABLE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Carmelo Castiglione, 33 years old, a bootlegger, was killed by shotgun gangsters this evening in the home of his cousin, John Castiglione. Castiglione was shot while at dinner by two unidentified men who escaped in an automobile.

Carmelo had received the sign of death. Last night he appeared at John's place, carrying a pistol, and said he wanted sanctuary. John took him in.

Tonight he sat down to dinner in the basement with John and his wife. Carmelo sat facing the stairway and with the pistol under a napkin. Suddenly Carmelo reached for the pistol. John saw only the legs of a man on the cellar stairway. Carmelo fired one shot and John and his wife hid behind the furnace. Then Carmelo was riddled with slugs from two sawed off shotguns.

This was the third gang assassination in Detroit this week.

HOSPITAL "LUNG" GIVES GIRL EVEN CHANCE FOR LIFE

Anxious moments were succeeded by hopeful ones yesterday at St. Luke's hospital when the apparatus that is serving Miss Frances McGann in lieu of her own lungs appeared to be winning her fight for life. Yesterday afternoon her condition was regarded as hopeful after a dubious period around noon. Physicians say she has an even chance.

The 23 year old student nurse from Altona, Ill., was placed in the Drinker respirator a week ago after her lungs became paralyzed from infantile paralysis.

Only her head protrudes from the cabinet, in which an alternating vacuum and pressure is produced, forcing the patient to breathe.

"So far as we know this is the only such respirator in Chicago," said Charles A. Wordell, manager of the hospital. "There is an auxiliary attachment that may be used in case it is necessary to administer oxygen. The machine will be invaluable in cases of drowning, gas poisoning, infantile paralysis, and surgical shock."

Samuel Insull Jr. is the donor of the respirator, which cost $2,250.

Miss McGann was graduated at Knox college, Galesburg, in 1926. She had been president of the Woman's Self-Government association.

MILLIONAIRE LEAVES $40,000,000, BUT SON GETS NOTHING

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The will of Edward P. Morse, who was head of the largest shipbuilding and drydock enterprise in the world, was filed in Brooklyn today, disposing of an estate estimated at nearly $40,000,000 to his wife, two children and grandchildren, and cutting off without a cent his son, Edward P. Morse Jr., with whom he quarreled over business matters ten years ago.

In cutting off his son, Mr. Morse made generous provisions for the son's children. Ten years ago Edward P. Morse Jr. sued his father for the recovery of certain profits which he alleged were due him under an agreement whereby he became general manager of his father's drydock plant.

ARREST OF TWO CLEARS UP SIX BANK ROBBERIES

The recent robberies of six country town banks in and near the Chicago metropolitan area have been cleared up with the return to Chicago of two suspects seized two weeks ago in the south, postal inspectors said yesterday. Those in custody are Harry Lee Watson, 46 years old, arrested at Yukon, Mo., and Samuel L. Bottom, 38 years old, seized at Bessemer, Ala.

The inspectors said the robberies of the following banks, with the dates and amounts stolen, where given, have been traced to Watson and Bottom:

Troy Grove State bank, July, 1930, $3,500; Lansing State bank, April, 1929, $12,000; Monee State bank, Jan. 11, 1930; Frankfort State bank, April 16, 1930; Virgil State bank, June 26, 1930, and the Fox River Grove State bank, June 20, 1930.

For more than 18 months Watson and Bottom have been the leaders of a gang specializing in the looting of small banks in the middle west and south, according to the inspectors. Bonds belonging to the government formed a part of the loot in the Troy Grove robbery, it was said.

GARY POLITICIAN SEIZED ON DOPE, LIQUOR CHARGES

Ralph B. Bradford, Gary real estate operator and politician, was being held in South Bend last night while friends sought to raise $25,000 bonds to obtain his release. He was arrested on two indictments returned by the federal grand jury at South Bend, charging him with conspiracy to violate the Harrison anti-narcotic act and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Two alleged lieutenants of Bradford also were named in the indictments. They are Henry Le Boeuf of Gary, who was arrested with Bradford and held for $20,000 bond, and Steve Pappas, said to be a gambler of East Chicago. Pappas, it was said, will be surrendered by his bondsmen today.

Arrested in Lawyer's Office.

Bradford and Le Boeuf were arrested by United States Marshal Emmet O. Hall in the offices of Harry Long, Bradford's attorney. Attorney Long reiterated assertions that the charges were a frame-up engineered by political enemies.

Bradford is alleged by government agents to be the northern head of a dope ring which has headquarters in New Orleans.

On Sept. 5 Bradford's secretary, Miss Martha Machacek, was arrested as she signed for a package containing 100 cubes of morphine which postal inspectors had trailed to Bradford's office. Narcotic agents said the cubes contained about three grains each and were usually sold for from $3 to $5 each. On Sept. 6 Bradford surrendered at Hammond on a federal warrant charging narcotic law violations, and he was released on $25,000 bonds.

Charge Dope Traffic.

Bradford's offices, according to the federal agents, served as a clearing house both for liquor and narcotics intended for consumption in towns throughout northern Indiana and in Chicago.

Bradford has been active in northern Indiana Republican politics for years and served two four year terms as treasurer of Lake county. He formerly was a Ku Klux Klan leader and his charges before the Reed senatorial investigating committee in 1926 that bootleggers had been "shaken down" by organizations working for United States Senator James E. Watson caused a sensation at that time.

200 Named in True Bills.

The partial report of the South Bend federal grand jury yesterday contained 94 true bills, naming approximately 200 persons.

A revival of the East Chicago liquor conspiracy scandal, in which Mayor Raleigh Hale was convicted, was seen in the indictment of three alleged accomplices of Hale.

They are Lester Oppenheimer and Hyman Cohen, East Chicago attorneys, and John Antonion, hotel owner, who are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Hale case.

Virtually all of the remaining indictments are said to involve minor offenses.

Head of Storage Company Sued by Wife as Cruel

Walter G. Slater, head of the Slater Storage company, 907 Rush street, was sued for separate maintenance in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Stella B. Slater, 35 years old, of Park Ridge. Mrs. Slater's bill says that she assisted her husband in building up his business so that his salary has increased from $9 a week to more than $30,000 a year. She charges cruelty and misconduct. The Slaters were married in 1914.

Eugene Goes to Store for Mother; Meets Adventure

Eugene Langon, 13 years old, 7354 North Hoyne avenue, was buying groceries for his mother in a store at 819 Howard street yesterday when a man entered and said: "I'm a juvenile officer. Come outside. I want to talk to you." As soon as he got outside, the boy told the police, the man grabbed $2 out of his hand and ran away.

AN ARCTIC TRAGEDY

The dotted line shows the route followed by the expedition after taking off from Danes island, Spitzbergen, until the balloon was forced down 500 miles from the north pole.

From that spot the heavy line traces the heroic march across the ice. The party headed toward Fridtjof Nansen Land, but was carried back by drifting ice. Again near Seven islands the ice carried the party east to White island, where the three men died.

SHIPS RUSH AT S O S CALL OF ITALIAN VESSEL

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Italian tank ship Tuscania wirelessed a call for aid in a heavy gale off the coast of Brittany today. Several other vessels, including the British steamship Temple Mead, also sent out calls for help.

Southwesterly gales, veering to the northwest, were sweeping the entire seaboard of Brittany from Cherbourg down to Lorient. Wireless stations were continually receiving appeals of distress from ships floundering in heavy seas between Cape Finisterre and The Lizard.

ANDREE'S DIARY BARES TRAGEDY OF ARCTIC DEATH

Wandered 200 Miles on Ice After Crash.

bears and hunger pangs warned them that starvation might follow. All felt the weakening effects of short rations.

During this long and painful trudge over the crumbling, treacherous ice, one after another of the three dauntless explorers fell into the pools dotting the ice surface or into concealed crevasses.

Knut Frankel and Nils Strindberg suffered periodically from bruised feet and severe attacks of diarrhea. But the diary shows that despite their sufferings they never lost heart. Encouraged by Andree, they kept up one another's spirits with jokes and laughter.

A Scientist to the Last.

The leader of the expedition showed his heroism in many ways. In the face of the terrors and fatigues and uncertainty of the trek, Andree continued conscientiously to fill his diary day by day with scientific observations of the utmost interest.

Not only did he do this, but when every ounce of extra weight must have added to the already burdensome difficulties of the explorers he collected samples of interesting finds along the line of march.

He notes some twenty bits of clay, gravel, moss, and driftwood that he picked up on the ice. One of the samples he dried on his bare chest.

Row Boat for "Rest."

Throughout the diary the entries frequently show his solicitude for these specimens, which he believed might prove of great importance in future study of the polar ice drift.

Thus slowly and painfully the three explorers approached the northern coast of Spitzbergen, wearily making on foot a longer journey than only a few weeks before they had sailed by balloon.

Their chief respite from fatigue was an opportunity from time to time to load the whole of their equipment in the canvas boat they had frequently used since leaving the balloon. To row a few miles amid the ice floes in the occasional open water of the arctic, even in this fragile boat, was to enjoy a few hours of comparative rest.

Find Food Under Ice.

Hunger at the same time sharpened their skill at picking up nourishment from the most unpromising sources, on or under the surface of the ice.

Knut Frankel became adept in preparing what Andree calls a "blood pancake" as a substitute for bread. Nils Strindberg's specialty was creating dishes from the raw materials of seaweed.

Off the northern coast of Northeast Land, in the Spitzbergen group, the explorers reached shallower waters, and here suddenly the direction of the ice drift began to change. The effect of the changed drift immediately was to cut them off even from their goal on the seven islands.

Between Sept. 12, about two months after they left Danes island on the polar flight, and Sept. 17 the ice drifted with the hapless explorers for more than 100 kilometers [62 miles] in an east south east direction, steadily bearing them away from the food depot.

Meanwhile autumn was at hand, the days were growing shorter and shorter, and the cold was becoming increasingly bitter. Insufficient nourishment made the cold all the harder for the explorers to bear.

Marooned on the drifting ice, the three men at length resigned themselves to spending a Crusoelike winter of isolation on a suitable "ice float." They set to work building what the diary describes as an "ice cot."

Finally Sight White Island.

At last, on Sept. 17, they sighted the tall, ghostly peak of White island, the first land they had seen since flying from Spitzbergen on July 11. In his diary Andree called it "New Iceland."

The sighting of land also brought them good luck in hunting. On the next day they killed their first seal, and on Sept. 19 they bagged three more. On Sept. 20, after a long fast from bear meat, they managed to kill a polar bear.

The increased food supply sent their spirits soaring. Andree notes the stroke of good fortune and estimates his little band will have sufficient food to last until the April following.

A week later the three explorers moved into their newly finished ice cabin on the drifting floes. They christened it "The Home."

But disaster was just around the corner. A few days later, on the morning of Oct. 2, it struck them. The ice floe on which they had built their little "home," suddenly split up with a thunderous sound, and the house of ice was shattered into a hundred pieces.

Worst of all, the party's equipment and provisions were dispersed and drifted about on chunks or the original ice floe.

In desperation the explorers had to plunge into the icy waters to rescue them. And in the midst of this unexpected blow, stricken in sight of land, Andree found too much to do to continue the heroic work of noting scientific specimens or even the account of their misfortunes. The diary abruptly comes to an end.

Last Entry One of Courage.

With this sturdy defiance of misfortunes ends the record of the three wanderers over the arctic ice and seas from the end of their balloon flight to their sighting of the land that sheltered them until death.

How they reached it is not recorded in this diary. But in addition to the vivid account of the march, the diary settles the fact that all three clung together through the worst and implies they reached White island still together.

It was there, in a camp laid bare by melting snows and ice, during an unusually warm and damp arctic summer, that Dr. Gunnar Horn, Norwegian scientist and explorer, on last Aug. 6 at last solved the riddle of their fate and brought back to the world the record of their sufferings.

ANDREE EXPLORERS BEGIN LAST JOURNEY ON SWEDISH WARSHIP

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Coffins containing the earthly remains of Salomon August Andree, Nils Strindberg, and Knut Frankel, pioneer polar aeronautic explorers, were carried aboard the Swedish gunboat Svensksund today and started on the last part of their journey home to an honored resting place in Stockholm.

The transfer of the coffins from Tromsoe cathedral to the decks of the gunboat was accompanied by impressive ceremonies. In the cathedral they were formally handed over to the Swedish authorities by Norwegian officials. Officers of the gunboat and of the Norwegian government steamer Michael Sars formed a guard of honor.

The coffins were borne by Swedish sailors through crowded streets to the quay near which the Svenskund was lying. As they were taken aboard the gunboat, a band played the Swedish national anthem.

FATHER BLAMES GIRL'S DEATH ON EVOLUTION STUDY

A father who indirectly attributed the death of his young daughter to the evolution teachings of Prof. Ernest Lauer, 822 Foster avenue, Evanston, of the history department of Northwestern university, was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct before Police Magistrate Harry Porter in Evanston yesterday.

"This man," said Prof. Lauer, indicating Alfred J. Robinson, 59 years old, of Brookfield, "has hounded me ever since the death of his daughter. He said that she became fanatical on the subject of evolution, religion, and philosophy. He has accused me of causing her death, and has threatened to take me for a ride."

According to Robinson, his daughter, Roslyn, 19 years old, had been a student in one of Prof. Lauer's classes and her studies of evolution, which were part of the course, led to a nervous breakdown and death. Magistrate Porter placed Robinson under a peace bond.

ZONING APPEALS BOARD WINS PAY FIGHT IN COURT

Victory Is Revealed in Budget Estimate.

The five members of the city's zoning board of appeals, whose salaries were fixed in the 1930 budget at $1 a year, have obtained judgments against the city for back pay from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1, 1930, on the basis of the 1929 salary rate. Knowledge of their successful suit was gleaned yesterday from the board's estimates of its 1931 appropriations which were submitted to City Controller Schmidt.

Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton, chairman of the board who was paid $7,500 last year, was given a judgment for $5,441. The other four members of the board, Leroy Milliner, Lawrence Cuneo, John A. Lind and James A. Creighton, whose 1929 salaries were $5,000, obtained judgments each for $3,333.

No Defense by City.

The suits were prosecuted in the Municipal court before Judge George A. Curran. The judgments were entered on Sept. 10 after a hearing in which, according to reports in the city hall, no defense was raised by the city.

The reduction of the board members' salaries to $1 a year was a bone of contention during the hectic sessions of the city council in the preparation of the 1930 budget. Several aldermen argued for the abolition of the board, and twice Mayor Thompson vetoed the $1 salary appropriations. A majority of the aldermen finally won and the salaries remained at the lower figure.

Authority Matter of Dispute.

Reasons for the reduction which were advanced by the aldermen cited the fact that the board's powers to grant variations from the zoning laws were under attack in the Supreme court. A case was cited by the aldermen to show that the high court had ruled that the board has only a limited power. A petition for a rehearing has been filed.

Pending the final disposition of the case the board has not granted any variations but has only made recommendations to the council buildings and zoning committee.

REPORT 5 MORE INDICTED FOR GAS TAX FRAUD

Five men were reported to have been named in the second set of true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday in the investigation into the charges that the state has been defrauded out of thousands of dollars by nonpayment of the gasoline tax. Several days ago the jury voted indictments against seven other men.

Those reported named yesterday are John F. Connor and Poole Harrison of the Reliable Oil company and the John F. Connor Oil company, and Maurice P., Robert W. and Smythe O'Mears, brothers, who operated the Smythe Oil company. Connor and Harrison are charged with defrauding the state of $200,000 and the others with holding out from $125,000 to $175,000 in taxes.

SON OF RASKOB TO WED TYPIST, GET $2,000,000

Engagement, First Denied, to Be Announced.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Existence of one of those Cinderella romances that many a stenographer dreams about became known tonight in the announcement of an engagement. The typing Cinderella of the story is pretty Miss Minerva Aaronson, 19 year old Jewish secretary of New Haven, Conn., and her prince charming is John J. Raskob Jr., son of the multi-millionaire chairman of the Democratic national committee, and a Roman Catholic.

But it is not to be a case of where a young man of wealth and social position defies parental objection and sacrifices an inheritance of millions to follow the dictates of his heart. Not only is there no parental objection to the match, it was learned, but the elder Raskob has even set aside a trust fund of $2,000,000 for the couple, to become operative the moment they are married.

Graduated from Yale.

First reports that young Raskob and Miss Aaronson were going about much together were circulated early last June, just before the youthful heir of many of the General Motor millions was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school, the engineering branch of Yale university.

The reports were denied at the time, both by Miss Aaronson and at the office of Raskob's father, who termed them "practical jokes." Today, however, Miss Aaronson's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Aaronson, at New Haven, formally announced the engagement and said the wedding will be in the spring.

An additional evidence of the Raskob family blessing was shown about a week ago when Miss Aaronson was invited to spend several days on the Raskob estate, at Wilmington, Del. There, it was learned, her fiance's mother invited her to select a diamond from the family jewels for her engagement ring.

Met at Broker's Office.

The romance started when Raskob chanced to call at the brokerage house where Miss Aaronson is employed. Fraternity dances and rides with the Orange, N. J., Hunt club sped matters along.

After the wedding and honeymoon, young Raskob plans to open offices in Boston for a new engineering enterprise, it was said. His wife may use her business experience in helping him to get the venture started.

Mother Rescues Her Baby Son from Flaming Attic

Mrs. W. R. Spaid, 33 years old, 1127 Commonwealth avenue, North Chicago, was busy in her backyard yesterday when Leon, the 4 year old son of the family, ran out of the house, shouting: "Mama, the house is on fire!"

Mrs. Spaid ran up to the attic which she found in flames. She snatched her other son, James, 18 months old, and carried him to safety.

U. S. CHARGES GERMANY BACKED WAR SABOTAGE

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

THE HAGUE, Sept. 19.—The American investigators today revealed the identity of one of the men who blew up the Black Tom terminal in July, 1916, with its million dollars' worth of munitions for the allied armies.

His name is Michael Kristoff, according to the story Robert W. Bonynge, American agent, unfolded before the mixed claims commission in The Hague peace palace, where the United States is attempting to recover from Germany $40,000,000—including the amount of losses and compound interest—claimed as a result of the Black Tom and its sequel disaster at Kingsland, N. J., in 1917. Fourteen years ago Kristoff was arrested in Jersey City on suspicion, but he was released for lack of evidence.

Linked to German Agents.

Today for the first time he was linked to German agents, and Mr. Bonynge told a story that he was directly in the employ of Capt. Frederick Hintzsch, who after 1917 was head of the German military secret service in Mexico, but who at the time of the Black Tom explosion, on his own admission, had been prominent in sabotage activities in the United States.

"There can be no possible doubt now," said Mr. Bonynge at the conclusion of his story, "that Kristoff was one of the men who blew up Black Tom and that he did it at the instigation of German agents."

The Mysterious Stranger.

The mysterious stranger named "Francis Graentzor," with whom Kristoff said he worked just before the Black Tom blast, was really Hintzsch, according to new evidence the Americans presented from three independent German sources today. The discovery, Mr. Bonynge asserted, throws new light on Kristoff's statements in 1916.

"His answers to the Jersey City police are no longer those of a subnormal or half-crazy man," said Mr. Bonynge. "They are those of a man who was guilty and was trying to conceal his guilt."

Kristoff was the dark haired laborer who burst into his aunt's home in Bayonne early that Sunday morning in 1916, when shells from Black Tom were still bursting in the harbor and shattered glass was littering the streets of New York. He was highly excited and pacing up and down the room exclaiming:

"What have I done! What have I done!"

Police of Jersey City arrested him. The story he told, however, was regarded as "senseless" and he was released. He lived a few years, with three prison terms for burglary, and died several years ago.

2 WOMEN SLAIN; BODIES FOUND ON A COUNTRY ROAD

Bloodstains on Auto May Be Clew.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The bodies of two Virginia women, with bullet holes in their heads, were found on the country road several miles southwest of here late today.

The women were Mrs. John Ahlgren, about 43, and Mrs. Mabel Hoey, about 37, a widow.

With the finding of the bodies police of all communities in this section of the state were asked to aid in the search for Victor Kettunen, about 40 years old, of Virginia, whose automobile was found abandoned this morning with bloodstains on the running boards and two bullet holes in the top.

Bloodstains on Clothing.

Subsequent investigation by police disclosed bloodstains on clothing found in Kettunen's room, but no trace could be found of him.

Discovery of the bodies was made by deputy sheriffs, who were led to the spot by a friend of Kettunen's who knew of the latter's frequent visits to the place where he, Mrs. Ahlgren and other friends often had gone swimming.

The bodies were lying side by side at the edge of the road, a short distance from the lake shore. It was the belief of authorities the shooting had occurred in Kettunen's car, which was found abandoned on a Virginia street.

Go for Automobile Ride.

Police believe the motive for the slaying was the determination of Mrs. Ahlgren to end her friendship with Kettunen, in whose company she had been seen frequently in recent months. Kettunen called at the Ahlgren home early Thursday evening and finally persuaded the woman to accompany him on an automobile ride, police learned.

Mrs. Hoey was at the house and Mrs. Ahlgren asked her to accompany them. That Mrs. Ahlgren was determined to end her friendship with Kettunen was learned Thursday when she informed deputy sheriffs she feared the man, who, she declared, had threatened her life. She was told to communicate with police and informed the deputy sheriff she would do that today.

Mrs. Ahlgren and her husband have not lived together for several years, the latter being employed as a baker at Ironwood, Mich.

Accused of Slaying Girl.

Roseau, Minn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Carl Brandevold, 35 year old farmer, was held in the county jail here tonight charged with first degree murder for the death of Anna Wold, 25, whose charred and dismembered body was found in a partly burned strawpile on the Brandevold farm yesterday.

Brandevold was arraigned in Justice court today, but a hearing was postponed while authorities delved into circumstances surrounding the death of the girl, who was slain by a shotgun charge before an attempt was made to cremate the body. Miss Wold, authorities said, was soon to become a mother.

Although he admitted intimate relations with the girl Brandevold denied any knowledge of her death. He admitted, authorities said, he had set fire to the strawpile but said he had no knowledge it contained the body of the girl. The skull and one leg were found in the pile, while the torso, seared by flames, was unearthed in a plowed field.

Miss Wold left her home near Haug, an inland town 20 miles from here, on Aug. 24, ostensibly to visit neighbors. Her absence occasioned no alarm until two weeks ago when her father, Anton J. Wold, notified county authorities. A search revealed her coat and a string of beads on Brandevold's farm and subsequently the body.

MILLIONS IN GRAFT CHARGED IN DEAL FOR NEW YORK PARK SITE

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Controller Charles W. Berry today charged that the awards totaling more than $12,500,000, made for land preempted by the city for Rockaway Beach park, is ten times the most recent assessed valuation of the property.

He inferred that the corporation counsel had not properly presented the city's case when the awards were made by the Supreme court.

His charges were made in a letter to the board of estimate. He also wrote to Justice Dunn asking him to postpone the date for a hearing on the awards, set for Sept. 25.

BERWYN JUDGE DEFENDS SELF IN FEE DISPUTE

Police Magistrate John H. Ehardt of Berwyn yesterday faced the task of defending himself from charges of operating a "traffic mill" as the result of a protest Ehardt made Tuesday night before the city council that the mayor and several aldermen were fixing automobile cases, thus preventing him from collecting costs.

Ald. C. F. Zak submitted figures showing Ehardt's income from costs alone to be nearly $10,000 a year, and charged that he had heard the magistrate instruct policemen in his court to go out and make more arrests "because he needed money for his campaign."

After other aldermen had testified that Ehardt was "in no danger of going to the poorhouse," an ordinance was passed instructing the chief of police to set traffic cases for hearing before justices of the peace.

REPEAL OF AUTO LIGHT STATUTE URGED BY HAYES

Acts as Police Prepare for Campaign.

The repeal of the city ordinance which provides a fine for automobile owners who park their cars on the streets at night without lights was urged yesterday by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. Mr. Hayes said that its enforcement will work a hardship on thousands of motorists. He directed attorneys to prepare a repealing ordinance which will be submitted to the city council at its next session.

The ordinance has been a part of the city code for some time, but in recent years no attempts have been made to enforce it. On Thursday, however, Acting Police Commissioner Alcock gave notice that within a few days the police will attach a red warning card to each car found on the streets between sundown and sunrise without two white lights displayed in the front and a red one in the rear. After the warning violators will be summoned into court.

Can Hang Out Lantern.

These lights, according to Commissioner Alcock, do not necessarily have to be those attached to the car's battery. He said he knew of no objection if the car owners hung lanterns in the manner of Paul Revere, providing that they remained lighted, but expressed the belief that few would adopt that policy.

"Enforcement of the ordinance will work a hardship on those persons who park their cars at a curb where the street lights provide ample illumination to protect passing cars from collision," said Mr. Hayes. "On dark streets the car owners will leave the car lights burning as a precaution in the protection of their own property. The motor club believes in law enforcement, but also believes that public safety can be provided without this ordinance."

The same distinction between parking on lighted and unlighted streets was drawn by Joseph H. Braun, attorney for the motor club. He stated that enforcement should not extend beyond the dark areas where it could be proved that the parked cars present a danger to the public safety.

Against Auto Pound.

While drawing the repealing ordinance Attorney Braun came across an ordinance introduced into the council in July by Ald. John A. Massen [48th] creating an auto pound. He said that the club is opposed to the auto pound, and that, while it might have served its purpose at another time when harsh measures were necessary, the motor vehicle laws can be enforced now without a pound.

An order to the police department directing enforcement of the car light ordinance will be sent out, according to Commissioner Alcock, as soon as it can be drafted

GERMANS HAIL 4 OCEAN FLYERS BACK FROM U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Sept. 19.—Standing on the bridge of the liner Hamburg as it steamed into Cuxhaven harbor today was Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions on his recent flight to America via Iceland, Greenland, and Labrador. They were greeted with the shrieks of sirens and the cheers of thousands of admirers lining the quaysides, while overhead circled squadrons of planes displaying streamers against the blue sky. As the liner entered its sister ship, the Deutschland, sailed. The departing voyagers waved their welcome and the ship's band played American and German national hymns.

The reception that followed at the dock made a touching scene. Capt. von Gronau was greeted by his wife and two of his children, and also by his proud father, the aged Gen. von Gronau, who appeared plastered with medals and decorations. In the afternoon the flyers were received by Burgomaster Ross and signed their names in Hamburg's golden book on the same page on which Charles Chamberlin, Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, Capt. Herman Koehl, Maj. James Fitzmaurice, and Dr. Hugo Eckener had signed.

Tonight the airmen attended a banquet. Their plane is being reassembled and they will fly it to Potsdam on Sunday.

Educate People, Plan of Expert.

Business men and medical experts gathered yesterday in the office of Health Commissioner Kegel to exchange ideas on diminishing the din of a busy city. They agreed on a united campaign to soften Chicago's bedlam of noise.

Samples of the noises that reverberate up and down the loop streets were on display for the eye in the form of photographs taken by Dr. William B. White, director of acoustic research for the American Steel and Wire company. Dr. White has been in Chicago for several months taking pictures of the screeches left in the wake of street cars, elevated trains and trucks.

Pictures Show Noises.

One of these pictures, which shows an extremely jagged line, was taken when Dr. White's cat landed on the keyboard of a piano at the end of a two foot jump. The picture looked a good deal like the one taken of the passage of a street car around a curve in the loop.

"Noise is nothing but scrambled music," Dr. White told his confrees. "Each note struck by the kitten's paws was music, but the combined effect was anything but harmonious. From the pictures I am trying to determine the component parts of noise as a guide to finding what produces it. To get the public aroused against noise to the point where they are interested in remedial legislation is to win the battle."

Must Educate People.

The education note was seconded by O. W. Rosenthal, a contractor, who argued that if Chicagoans are taught to become noise conscious there will be less noise. And Dr. Kegel added: "We will have to make the citizens of Chicago a cultured, well-poised family, each member of which will speak in well-modulated tones."

While the conferees were attending to the appointment of a noise abatement committee headed by Dr. White, which will convene Monday at the Hamilton club, Judge William Helander attended to an automobilist who used his horn instead of a doorbell while calling for a friend. The offender, Frank Willman, 2930 North Lotus avenue, was placed under a $500 peace bond and warned that a second offense would merit more punishment.

5,000 WELCOME FRENCH FLYERS AT MILWAUKEE

Coste and Bellonte Are Greeted at Airport.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—For an hour and twenty minutes today Milwaukee was host to Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte, French trans-Atlantic flyers. They were cheered by a crowd of more than 5,000 as they swooped down out of the skies from Chicago in their scarlet monoplane The Question Mark.

The official welcome was extended by the mayor's committee of 25 prominent Milwaukeeans. More than 100 high city, county, and government officials were on hand to add to the welcome and to attend the luncheon arranged in their honor at the airport.

Minneapolis Greets Flyers.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte brought their plane to earth here at 4:41 this afternoon, making the flight from Milwaukee in three hours and 22 minutes.

A committee of 14 headed by Mayor W. F. Kunze met the aviators at the field to welcome them to the northwest.

BID GOOD-BY TO CHICAGO.

Just at noon yesterday the adventurous red sesquiplane from Paris, the Question Mark, nosed into the wind at the Curtiss airport and hopped off for Milwaukee, Coste and Bellonte waving their farewells to the crowd below. Their progress out to the field from the roof bungalow at the Sherman had been marked by the same shouting and waving they encountered on their way into the city Thursday night.

Both took leave of the French consul, Count Charles de Ferry de Fontnouvelle, with verbose phrases of gratitude for their reception in Chicago. On his third trip, which he estimates will take place not long after he returns to France from his American and Canadian good will tours, Capt. Coste hopes to bring Mme. Coste with him. He had at first planned to have her join him in this country on his present trip, but it was found impractical.

"Next time I come back I hope I come by boat," he called in French as a parting shot.

U. S. DISCLOSES RUSSIAN PLOT TO UPSET WHEAT

Hyde Tells Board of Short Sales.

break the Canadian pool. This pool, according to reports, has found itself in a rather unfavorable condition, the result, it is said, of holding considerable quantities of grain off the market from the old crop.

Some of the board of trade members took the view last night that Russia, as a heavy holder of wheat, might make a legitimate use of the Chicago pit for hedging against speculative losses, despite the fact that it will be unable to deliver its wheat in America. It was pointed out that—because the wheat market is worldwide—Chicago hedging would be an effective protection against general changes in European price levels.

Depends on Motive.

Some of the leaders on the board said that Russia's culpability in making heavy wheat sales would depend entirely on motive. If it can be proved, they said, that the Soviets are unloading on the Chicago board merely for the purpose of upsetting the market and disorganizing economic conditions, then some means must be found to call a halt on the scheme. But, they pointed out, Russia can scarcely be called to task for using the great Chicago grain market for the purpose of hedging its crop.

Pressure of Russian wheat in Europe has been extremely heavy for some weeks, and the grain has been on the market at prices radically under those of other countries. Reports came from Dusseldorf, Germany, yesterday that Russia had chartered boats to take out 20,000,000 bushels of export wheat. This was in addition to some 13,000,000 cleared out from the southern Russian ports since the first of July.

An Economic Cycle.

An interesting sidelight on the ambitions of Soviet Russia for a world command in wheat was disclosed last night, revealing a strange cycle, which might threaten permanently severe competition against American wheat by means of American made grain machinery.

According to reports the Russian government recently placed huge orders with American farm machinery manufacturers, two of them Chicago concerns. To pay for these tractors and harvesting machines, the soviet government ordered exportation of a large part of its 1930 crop. These heavy exports, according to cable dispatches, threaten starvation in large Russian cities. As the cycle goes, according to reports, the money realized on the 1930 crop is for the purchase of the American machinery which will be used to produce larger crops in the future which, in turn, will be used in world competition with the American, Canadian, and other grain markets.

ASK INDICTMENT OF GANGSTER AS SLAYER OF GIRL

An indictment will be sought from the Lake county grand jury charging Harry Higgins, Chicago gangster, with the slaying last March of an unidentified girl whose partly burned body was found in a shack at Deep Lake, State's Attorney A. V. Smith said last night. Higgins, once a member of the Bugs Moran gang, has been missing for more than six months. He may have been slain, authorities believe.

HUNTED AFTER SHOOTING.

William Wilkins was shot and seriously wounded yesterday during a drinking bout with Arthur Pickel in their room at 458 Deming place. Pickel fled after the shooting and was sought by police last night.

MASSMEETING OCT. 3 TO START G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

Mrs. McCormick Will Be Chief Speaker.

Plans to open the Republican campaign in Cook county with a meeting in the Coliseum for all the city's fifty wards and the country towns were announced yesterday by Chairman Bernard W. Snow.

At a meeting of the county managing committee he said that the big public drive for votes would not be begun until two weeks later, but that the Coliseum meeting will be held on Friday, Oct. 3, in order to start the organization out with plenty of pep. In the meantime the ward units will be making their house to house canvass with pledge cards urging favorable votes on the wet and dry referendum.

Mrs. McCormick to Speak.

The principal speaker at the big massmeeting will be Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, nominee for United States senator, whose thirty minute speech, starting at 9 o'clock, will be broadcast. The county candidates to follow her will represent all the factions. They will be Howard P. Savage, nominee for treasurer; Municipal Judge William E. Helander, for county judge; Otto F. Reich, for president of the county board; Francis Boutell, for assessor, and Joshua D'Esposito, for drainage trustee.

The meeting of the managing committee, at the Bismarck hotel, was held to fill the vacancy on the ticket caused by the withdrawal of Ald. Arthur F. Albert, who won but declined a nomination for county commissioner. The place went to Samuel R. Ballis, who ran on the Snow ticket in April, but failed by a narrow margin to land among the winners. With ten to be nominated he landed in eleventh place. He is the owner of several women's apparel stores in the Roosevelt road-Halsted street district.

Two Others Proposed.

There were two other names placed before the committee. Ald. John A. Massen proposed the name of Mrs. Helen G. Mehrle, who was an unsuccessful candidate on the Deneen ticket. Building Commissioner Paschen suggested Henry P. Runkel of the Forty-third ward. Both trailed far behind Ballis in the vote.

The county headquarters in the Steuben building, Chairman Snow announced, will be reopened next week.

During the meeting City Sealer Daniel Serritella, elected committeeman of the First ward last spring, received congratulations because of news that his election as state senator from the First district had been made certain. Word has been received from Springfield that Norman Macpherson, the Democratic nominee, had withdrawn. As no independent filed in this district before the last day for such nominations Serritella will have no opposition on Nov. 4.

This development was considered an echo to the United States senatorial primary last April. Michael Kenna, former alderman, is the admitted boss of the First ward. Just before primary day it became known that he had agreed to deliver it to Deneen; and it was the only ward in the city that went for Deneen. So far as is known Serritella, who won his own election as Republican ward committeeman and his own nomination as state senator over Senator Adolph Marks, a Deneen follower, did not stand in Kenna's way.

Macpherson, the Democratic nominee for state senator who now has taken himself out of Serritella's way, is a Kenna man.

DEMOCRATS TO PAY DEBT TO NORRIS FOR SUPPORTING AL SMITH

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Democratic national campaign managers are keeping hands off the Nebraska senatorial contest. This policy, it is admitted by the party leaders, is being pursued as a favor to Senator George W. Norris, the Republican radical nominee, in return for his open support two years ago of Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee. It is expected that Senator Norris thus will be aided materially in his fight for reelection.

A peculiar feature of the situation is that Senator Norris is dry while the Democratic nominee, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, is wet. In most states the Democrats have preferred to back the wet side. Former Senator Hitchcock also stands high in Democratic councils.

To some extent the Democratic policy of noninterference will be offset by a similar policy on the part of the Republican national committee and the Republican senatorial committee. Inasmuch as Senator Norris is the leader of the anti-administration radical group in the senate the regular Republicans in control of the party committees have no love for him and are indifferent whether he wins or loses.

AUTO DRIVEN BY GIRL INSTRUCTOR AT U. C. IN CRASH

Two automobiles collided and overturned early this morning at Jackson boulevard and the outer drive, seriously injuring Radcliffe Massey, 28 year old bond salesman residing at the Park-Dearborn hotel, 1260 North Dearborn parkway, and V. J. Kennedy, 155 North Latrobe avenue. Massey was riding in a car driven by Miss Marjorie Case, 22 years old, 5336 Cornell avenue, a physical training instructor at the University of Chicago. Miss Case escaped with minor injuries. Kennedy was pinned beneath the wreckage of his automobile and extricated with difficulty. All three were taken to St. Luke's hospital.

H. G. Brewer, 87 years old, 1241 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, died yesterday at the Evanston hospital of injuries incurred last Sunday in an automobile accident near Barrington. His daughter, Mrs. Edith Loucks, 44 years old, died on Wednesday of gangrene resulting from injuries received in the accident. This death increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 734.

COLIN FYFFE RIPS STATE INCOME TAX PROPOSAL

Criticizes Report Sent to the Voters.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Attorney Colin C. H. Fyffe, veteran battler on constitutional questions, lashed out last night in a new way at the proposed amendment to the organic law of Illinois which is to be submitted to the voters of the state on Nov. 4.

In addition to attacking the amendment itself, as has been done widely by numerous speakers, Attorney Fyffe criticized severely the "public address" mailed to all the registered voters of the state as required by the statute prescribing the method for submitting constitutional amendments to the people.

He charged that this pamphlet, printed at state expense and mailed at the expense of cities having election commissions, is faulty from the cover down to the last paragraph. The cover describes the proposal as "the tax relief amendment."

Predicts Tax Relief.

"We urge the voters to study carefully the amendment here proposed," reads the last paragraph. "We believe it has merit and will aid in relieving the people of this state of their distressing tax situation and we therefore recommend its adoption."

But there is no identification of the "we" who do the urging. Instead there is merely the certificate of Secretary of State Stratton that it is a copy of the report of a committee created by the sepcial session of the general assembly last spring. The personnel of the committee is not listed.

Fyffe Raps Amendment.

"The worst part of the public address," said Attorney Fyffe, addressing a meeting of the Downers Grove Taxpayers association, "is that it is entitled a 'tax relief amendment' instead of a 'tax increase amendment.'

"The address states that the amendment does not increase the power of the general assembly or municipal corporations as to the amount of taxes to be levied. Technically that is true, but is does increase the number of ways by which taxes may be levied.

"The address says on page six that 'the amendment will permit with certainty the exemption of the incomes of small wage earners.' The amendment does nothing of the kind. It grants no exemptions whatever, and the exemptions still left in section 3 of article IX have been held to exclude any other exemptions whatsoever.

"Do you know that by this new amendment the general assembly may give power to all municipalities, including sanitary districts, to make improvements by special assessment? Under the present constitution it is denied to all municipalities except cities, towns and villages."

Aldermen Must Trim Bond Issue Requests $25,483,480

The task of cutting down bond issue requests totaling $53,483,40 to $28,000,000, which is the maximum that the city may increase its bonded indebtedness at this time, will be undertaken by members of the council finance committee on Monday, it was revealed by figures prepared yesterday by the committee's staff. At the Monday morning meeting the committee will decide what bond issues to recommend to the council in the afternoon for placement on the Nov. 4 ballot.

Technically, the city has an unburdened bonding power of $40,000,000, according to V. S. Peterson, deputy city controller, as the total bonding power is $182,517,556, and the bonded indebtedness is $142,332,723. But the aldermen have been asked to hold their bond recommendations to $28,000,000 in order to provide $12,000,000 for the working cash fund.

The amounts of the various requests and the purpose for which they are to be issued are:

Construction of outer harbor and docks	$15,000,000
Five new bridges and repairs to others	11,000,000
Fire department	5,670,000
Ogden avenue bridge	5,460,000
Public benefits for street paving	4,700,000
Widening South Park way	3,000,000
North Ashland avenue bridge	2,228,480
Street lights	2,000,000
House of Correction	1,100,000
Open air opera house	900,000
Extending fire alarm system	750,000
Traffic signal lights	500,000
Extending Indianapolis avenue	400 000
New isolation hospital	175,000
Total	$53,483,480

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, according to the figures, runs a close second to Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st] in his requests. Ald. Coughlin asks a $15,000,000 bond issue for the construction of an outer harbor and docks on the lake front between the river and Randolph street.

Faherty Asks $12,388,480.

Faherty's requests total $12,388,480. These include the proposed bonds for an Ogden avenue bridge, which the voters have defeated three times and which the council has twice refused a place on ballots; the construction of a n bridge in North Ashland avenue; and the payment of public benefits for paving on Ashland and Western avenues, La Salle street, and nine other streets which were recently paved.

South side aldermen and civic organizations are seeking the $3,000,000 issue for the widening of South Park way between 79th street and the southern city limits as a traffic provision for the world's fair. They also want an issue of $400,000 to open and pave Indianapolis avenue between Ewing avenue and 100th street.

Wants Limit of Bonds.

A recommendation that the city issue to the limit of its bonding power, $28,000,000 worth, has been made by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, as a means of giving employment on municipal construction. Ald. Clark pointed out that the city will have an additional $7,000,000 in bonding power on Jan. 1, 1931, with the retirement of that amount of bonds then.

AL SMITH WILL MAKE SIX TALKS FOR ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will take a more active part in the coming campaign than he intended originally, it was learned today.

In addition to placing Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination at the Democratic national convention, Mr. Smith, according to present plans, will make nine speeches, six in the state campaign for the ticket to be headed by Gov. Roosevelt and Lieut. Gov. Lehman and three under the direction of the Democratic national committee as part of the campaign to elect a Democratic congress.

Mr. Smith's speech at the Democratic state convention at Syracuse probably will be made on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

FIVE BROTHERS FETE NEW HEAD OF LAUNDRY ASSN.

When Frank J. Huebsch of San Francisco was installed as president of the Laundry Owners' National association yesterday at the Palmer house the first five men to offer congratulations were his five brothers, all engaged in the laundry business. They are Charles A. of Minneapolis, William G. of Milwaukee, John of Eau Claire, Wis., and Joseph and George of Milwaukee.

Two other brothers, who are also engaged in the laundry business in Wisconsin, were unable to attend the convention, which has been in session for the last week.

Laundries should not be blamed if the material shrinks or the color runs or fades, according to George H. Johnson, director of research at the American Institute of Laundering.

MINORITY PUZZLE AGAIN STIRS UP LEAGUE LEADERS

Beneficiaries of Austria's Breakup Block Reform.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—The Graf Zeppelin cruised over Geneva this morning while the league solons were scrapping over minorities. The delegates feigned to ignore the passage of the airship, but as the drone of the motors increased to a roar there was a general craning of heads to glimpse the mammoth silver cigar.

Dr. Koch-Weser, a German delegate, urged revision of the procedure in handling the complaints from minorities, pointing out that only 26 out of the 57 petitions received by the secretariat last year were considered receivable.

Hungary Pleads Losses.

More than half were merely forwarded to the governments complained against, who ignored them. The venerable Count Apponyi, on the behalf of Hungary, supported the German viewpoint, pointing out that his country had lost more than 3,500,000 of her population to neighboring governments through the dismemberment of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia, as recipients of all this territory which was carved up, opposed a revision of the methods for handling minorities and insisted that the present procedure is entirely satisfactory.

The budget committee this afternoon haggled over the $57,000 which was appropriated for the league's preparatory disarmament conference, to begin Nov. 3, and the general disarmament conference of 1931, until Hugh Dalton of Great Britain pointed out that if the nations would devote the sums they were spending on armaments in one year to the league they would suffice to run the Geneva organization for 600 years. The league at present costs an aggregate of $5,700,000 annually, while the nations belonging to the league spend an aggregate of $3,420,000,000 annually on armaments.

Cuba Stirs Committee.

The committee for the revision of the world court statutes was again stirred up over Cuba's refusal to agree to the protocol. Prof. Noel Baker, a British delegate, made another effort to get Cuba to withdraw from its stand, saying that this would endanger the entrance of the United States to the world court. The protocol has a clause which guarantees against the league asking the court's opinion on any matter affecting the United States except with the consent of the United States. Lack of this guarantee, known as the Root reservation, would, it is feared, cause America to refuse entry to the world court.

Rumors are current that the Briand-Grandi accord on the respective naval strengths of France and Italy was rejected by Premier Mussolini when the Fascist foreign minister rushed to Rome recently and submitted to him the tentative agreement.

M. Briand's private conversations with Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, are also reported to have failed to make progress owing to the result of the German reichstag elections. Dr. Curtius is said to have been unable to enter into discussions for fear the changed majorities may upset the government and make any pledges useless.

Another committee took up prison reform and invited the league council to send the humanitarian model prison rules of the international prison commission to the nations of the world.

CUBA'S WORLD COURT DELAY EXPECTED TO HALT SENATE ACTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Further postponement of senate action on the question of American adherence to the world court is considered certain to follow the action of Cuba yesterday at Geneva in objecting to immediate league ratification of the protocol revising the court's statute.

In authoritative quarters it was said that it is now extremely unlikely that President Hoover will submit the revised protocol providing for American entrance into the court to the senate during the coming short session of congress. The administration is represented as preferring not to bring the world court issue to a head during the short session, when final action would not be certain. President Hoover is also said to feel that it would be unwise to submit the court question to the senate before all world court members had signed the protocols providing for American accession and for revision of certain sections of the court statute.

It was said at the state department today that the action yesterday of Dr. Orestes Ferrera, Cuban ambassador to the United States, in blocking immediate ratification by the league of the protocol revising the court statute, has no effect on the protocol providing for American entrance into the court.

OFFICERS WATCH BANK ROBBERY, THEN SEIZE PAIR

Pennfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Two men held up the Bank of Pennfield before an audience of sheriffs and deputies today—and were caught.

Sheriff Grimes of Vermilion county had received advance information that the holdup was to ocur today, so he had been watching from a nearby grain elevator. The officers saw three men drive up to a filling station about a block from the bank. Two of them went directly to the bank.

Gordon and Harry Collins, sons of President Michael Collins of the bank, were the only two in the building as the pair entered and scooped up about $312 in currency. The officers then swooped upon the two gunmen and arrested them. They gave their names as Gene Cole and Byron Dickinson, both of Danville.

Braidwood Bank Robbed.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Three bandits at 1 p. m. today robbed the Bank of Braidwood, Ill., 20 miles southwest of here, and escaped with $2,500.

Lone Bandit Gets $3,000.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—While a companion waited in an automobile outside a lone robber entered the Algonquin State bank today, covered employés with a gun, and fled with $3,000.

Cashier Disarms Bandit.

Furley, Kas., Sept. 19.—(AP)—An attempt to rob the Furley State bank failed when E. B. Merril, cashier, engaged in a fist fight with the holdup man today. Merril disarmed the bandit, who, after a scuffle, obtained the gun again, fired three times, and fled without loot. No one was injured.

RUMOR OF FRENCH LOAN TO ITALIANS EXCITES BANKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Banking circles in Paris are all agog over the rumor that the Italian government is seeking to negotiate a large loan in Paris. In official quarters the belief is expressed that there is little likelihood of the French granting an Italian loan until the naval question is settled.

It is known that the Italians are very anxious to secure a loan, but hitherto have found it difficult to interest foreign capitalists owing to their strained relations with France and the consequent danger of war.

Well informed financial circles here thought France would be quite willing to grant the loan to Italy out of the steadily increasing gold reserves, providing she could obtain assurance that the money would not be used to build more battleships. It is being said that Premier Mussolini is willing to give up the claim for naval parity with France in return for financial assistance. The Fascist government's shaky economic condition is reported to be causing him much anxiety.

Engine Entering Station Is Found Belching Out Smoke

Chief Smoke Inspector Frank Chamber's attention was called last night to a smoking locomotive at the Union station which was violating the city code. THE TRIBUNE has filed a suit which will be heard shortly by the Illinois commerce commission, that would compel all railroads in Chicago to electrify their terminals and thus end the smoke nuisance.

ENGINEERS TALK OF SUBWAYS, BUT DECISIONS WAIT

Debate Street Location for West Side Tube.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The board of advisory engineers—George M. Wisner, Edward J. Noonan, David Wallace and George C. Lenth—discussed questions relative to subway planning at a session yesterday, but reached a conclusion on only a few of them.

They said that they would decide next Tuesday whether the south arm of the west side subway—to be constructed after the State street bore has been finished—shall be in Polk street or in Harrison street. Edward J. Noonan recommended that this line be placed in Harrison street. He is engineer of the railway terminal committee of the city council and thought that a subway in Harrison would best serve the interest of the railroads and would meet fewer obstacles in construction.

Kelker Urges Polk Street.

Maj. R. F. Kelker, chief engineer of the city council's subway staff, recommended Polk street, which, he said, would give the central business district more opportunity to grow southward and better serve an air right development over the south side tracks.

The reason assigned for considering the second subway is because the connection with the State street subway influences the planning for the latter bore.

The advisory board did tentatively agree that the State street subway shall pass under the Chicago river by means of three tubes, one for two tracks and two for one track each.

The board hesitated to approve a preliminary profile, although Robert Ridgway of New York, chief consulting engineer, suggested to the other engineers that it is only tentative and subject to change as obstructions and difficulties are encountered. The profile of the subway is a base upon which to do planning. One has been assumed in all of the planning thus far. Chairman George M. Wisner of the advisory board announced that the planning may proceed upon the tentative profile presented.

Stairway Action Postponed.

The width of the tread and the height of the riser in stairways was another subject on which action was deferred. Mr. Ridgway said that New York has had much experience in that matter and has done considerable experimenting with the result that the New York subway stairs have a riser of seven inches and a tread of eleven inches.

Mr. Wisner suggested a riser of six inches and a tread of 12 or 13 inches. He said that Ernest Graham, architect, favored a six inch riser and an eleven inch tread. That subject is to be discussed next Tuesday or later.

President Faherty of the board of local improvements was present at the meeting and again urged the engineers to get to their conclusions. He later said he was better pleased with yesterday's session than with previous meetings.

DECLINES TO SELL ANCESTORS' GRAVES TO STRAIGHTEN ROAD

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—With Maj. Thomas Hitchcock Sr. holding out, the town of Cos Cob, Conn., today was on the lookout for other Hitchcocks, who might be more willing to sell the ground where the bones of their ancestors lie and thus enable the town to remove a blind bend near the intersection of the Post and Siwanoy roads. "The cemetery has belonged to my family for 245 years now and I could scarcely be expected to sell the resting place of my ancestors," says Mr. Hitchcock of Westbury, L. I., the father of Thomas Hitchcock Jr., polo internationalist.

The township will try to find the rest of the Hitchcock clan in the hope that they will be less adamant and can be persuaded to sell the ground.

TRIBUNE BRIEF FILED IN 'EXPERT' CITY 'FEES' CASE

Shows Huge Sums Paid Out for "Advice."

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The brief, covering 861 pages, of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the expert fee case of THE TRIBUNE against President Faherty of the board of local improvements, which also involves Mayor Thompson, County Treasurer Harding and the experts, was filed in the State Supreme court today.

THE TRIBUNE charges that $1,892,000 in real estate expert fees on certain major street improvements was paid out in 1920 and 1921 to Ernest H. Lyons, Arthur S. Merigold and Edward C. Waller Jr., for "the private benefit of the conspiring defendants and for the benefit of the Thompson political machine."

It is charged in the brief that "the amount of the fees paid Waller, Lyons, Merigold, Krautigam and Nichols [the last named two sub experts under the trio] was so much greater than the reasonable value of their services warranted that the payment thereof was in fact a gift of public money."

Details the Fees.

In support of its contention, the brief says that Lyons was paid $2,950 as a real estate expert on the Twelfth street widening, and $36,981 on the Michigan boulevard product for the three years 1916-19, while on other major improvements in 1920 and January 1921 he received $640,000.

Merigold as city expert in the Ogden avenue case in 1919 collected $20,037 and in his private real estate work in the preceding year not more than $8,000. Yet he is charged with collecting from the city in 1920 and January, 1921, $612,707. Waller, who collected $36,969 for his Michiga. avenue experting in 1916-19, collected more than $640,000 on later major improvements in a 12 month period.

The brief goes on:

"The combined fees of Lyons, Merigold and Waller in 1920 and January 1921, on the basis of a 200-day year, amounted, in the case of Lyons and Waller to a per diem of over $2,100, and in the case of Merigold to a per diem of over $2,000. The highest per diem paid to any city real estate expert during the same period was but $50."

Are Convincing of Fraud.

After more comparisons, the brief says: "Results such as these do not follow without the interposition of fraud. They do not arouse a mere suspicion of its existence they produce the conviction that fraud was actually perpetrated. These were not fees. They were donations."

It is also charged that "the payments in question were followed by large donations to the Thompson political machine.

The purpose of the brief is to argue the correctness of these contentions and replies to the briefs filed by the defendants. The original suit was filed in the spring of 1921.

FIRE DESTROYS THREE BUILDINGS, ALARMS SCHOOL

Shooting across a 30 foot gap, flames from three burning houses in the 4800 block South Laflin street spread to two other structures in the rear and caused $25,000 damage yesterday afternoon. Burning embers carried by a strong wind to the roof of the Hamline school, 4747 Bishop street, a block away, caused no damage.

When embers alighted on the school, Principal Lawrence G. Collins ordered all pupils kept in classrooms, and in readiness for an emergency exit.

Marshal Michael Corrigan directed the fighting of the fire, for which a 2-11 alarm was sounded. The blaze originated in a rubbish pile in the rear of 4802 South Laflin street, quickly spread to three frame buildings, and reached across to the other two residences in the rear. The buildings fronting on Laflin street were destroyed. The other two structures were not badly damaged.

U. S. RELAXES LAW TO ADMIT ATLANTIC FLYER

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Col. James Fitzmaurice had a fresh reason today to be glad he flew the north Atlantic with Koehl and von Huenfeld in the airplane Bremen.

The colonel was detained by immigration authorities when he returned from Europe on the liner Reliance, but after a conference they decided that "in recognition of his brilliant achievement in flying across the Atlantic" he would be admitted and paroled in his own custody.

Fitzmaurice had been in this country since last fall, on a non-quota visitor's passport, extended until Oct. 22. The extension was automatically canceled when he left a few weeks ago for a European visit, a point of law with which the colonel was not familiar.

The oversight resulted in only a few hours delay, and he was not even taken to Ellis Island.

GUARD OFFICERS' ANNUAL SESSION PRAISES DAVIS

Work Is Demanded for Unemployed Soldiers.

Officers of the Illinois National Guard met in annual convention at the Palmer house yesterday and spent much of their time lamenting the resignation of one of their distinguished associates, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, who has tendered his withdrawal as commander of the 66th infantry brigade to Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black.

Business accomplished during the executive session included the re-election of Col. Walter J. Fisher of the 106th cavalry as president of the National Guard association and the adoption of a resolution wherein business men were called upon to provide employment for guardsmen out of work.

Banquet Closes Session.

Last night a banquet was held in the Palmer house which closed the one day convention. About 300 were in attendance at one time or another.

Gen. Davis' resignation caused much comment and brought eulogies to his military ability from ranking officers present.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, division commander; Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, and Gen. Black all paid tribute to their retiring companion and Gen Davis himself, shaken with emotion, took leave of his comrades with affecting sincerity.

Rising to speak amid a storm of applause which brought 300 fellow officers to their feet to honor him, Gen. Davis fought for a long minute to control his voice before he made his official farewell. "It is a farewell, yet not a farewell," he said. "I leave active duty but I hope to be permitted to aid you to any extent possible. You are engaged in the most patriotic endeavor known to any loyal American; your work is the most potential reminder of the duties of American citizenship. It has been an honor to serve with you and I hope I may ever be welcomed in your midst."

Touches Delicate Subject.

Gen. Davis then touched on the delicate situation which arose more than three years ago when Gen. Keehn was elevated to the division commandership over the heads of Davis, Gen. Garrity and others from the judge-advocateship. Gov. Small made the appointment.

"I have told Gen. Keehn that I was going to be specific about this," Gen Davis said. "When the chief vacancy in the guard occurred some of my friends felt the appointment should have come to me. The same silence I maintained at that time shall be my rôle on this occasion. I gave Gen. Keehn all that I could and he gave the same to me."

Later in the afternoon Gen. Garrity called Gen. Davis' leave "the loss of one of the guard's most valuable officers." He, too, took occasion to refer to Gen. Keehn's appointment. "No doubt there was some disappointment," he said. "When I came back in the guard in 1924 it was with the understanding that I would succeed Gen. Foreman when he retired, but I feel that Gen. Keehn has been able to do far more for the guard than I could have been able to do."

Criticizes Marksmanship Ability.

Gen. Black was equally eloquent in his appraisal of the retiring brigade commander, but afterward he had some censure for the marksmanship ability of the guard. "I haven't heard the alibis offered by our rifle team which went into class B at the Camp Perry shoot," he said, "but I believe it is a waste of time to send men who cannot shoot above 270 in a national meet." The adjutant general added, however, that Sergt. Alcatar of the Illinois team had shot 284 individually, while the champion of the matches, a marine corps sergeant, topped him by only three points.

Other speakers during the morning session included Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, 6th corps area commander; Gen. Keehn, who regretted to his officers the resignation of Gen. Davis, and Col. W. H. Waldron, executive officer of the militia bureau. Gen. Keehn said he has not decided upon an officer whom he will recommend to the governor for the Davis vacancy.

Judge Refuses to Hear Case of Man 10 Times Wed

Paul Ellis, 1529 South Sawyer avenue, who has been married 10 times and is the father of 17 children, yesterday escaped a sentence for failure to pay alimony when Circuit Judge Lynch refused to hear the case. It was the third time Ellis, a painting contractor, had been in court in the last two weeks. Yesterday his ninth wife, Mrs. Rose Ellis, 3451 Grenshaw avenue, complained to Judge Lynch that Ellis owes her $88 for the support of their eight year old daughter, Goldie. The judge directed her to make her plea to another judge.

Ex-Official Sentenced to Jail for Job Graft

John Cohn, former assistant city engineer, was found guilty of conspiracy yesterday by a jury in Judge E. I. Frankhauser's Criminal court and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $2,000. He was charged with conspiring to obtain civil service jobs for applicants in return for a financial consideration. The state's star witness, Mrs. Marie Gamble, former stenographer in the office of the corporation counsel, testified that she had collected money for Cohn.

Herein Humor, Intrigue and Murder Mingle

Bromfield Does Good Job with Them.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Twenty-four Hours," by Louis Bromfield [Stokes].

"Twenty-four Hours" is, as the title suggests, a novel whose action takes place within a day and a night.

Technically it is an amusing stunt which the author brings through without a tremble. As a story it is a cross between Edith Wharton and Edgar Wallace, a thriller which happens against a solid and impeccable New York background.

There is a murder in it—two murders in fact—there are characters that actually are fantastic; emotions of the most primitive kind race through its pages—yet it has that quality of permanence and importance almost unique in thrillers.

The book opens with a dinner party in an apartment on the roof of a Sutton Place building. The host is old, rich, flabby, possessive, who has collected bibelots and objets d'art instead of experience with the passing of the years, and whose passion is a nephew who is handsome and amiable, but who has none of the virile charm of his father, who had married the old man's older sister, then run away with his younger one.

The guests are a husband, who is rich, soft and a drunkard; his wife, who is selfish, spoiled and passionately in love with a forceful self-made man whom the host has ghoulishly invited to dine, to watch the fireworks; a woman who is self-made, like the man, and with whom he falls in love; and one of the most delightful old women in modern fiction, Savina, who once had the temerity to ask her host—when they were both young—to marry her and who has spent her life waiting up, as it were, for life to come home.

The dinner party, with its messy scene caused by the jealous woman, who feels that her lover is tiring of her, starts off the twenty-four hours. Mr. Bromfield squeezes every drop of juice out of that scene in his characteristic fashion of detailing napery, food, adornments, as well as emotions. He makes the reader as present there as if he physically had touched the rare old lace and felt the almost elastic smoothness of burgundy glasses so old that they were almost living. It is an intense dinner party at which the emotions of each of the characters are the guests rather than their physical bodies.

All through the book emotions are the real heroes and heroines, but after the elevator goes down leaving the old man to the relaxation of purple silk, physical facts begin happening. The husband goes to the night club where the girl who is kind to him sings. He is so drunk that he doesn't know what happens until he wakes the next morning on a couch in her apartment and finds the door to her bedroom locked. When he breaks it open he finds her murdered.

The causes and the consequences—the emotional ones—of that fact compose most of the book. It has every element of excitement and almost a dime-novelish plot, but is far from being cheap in either conception or execution. It is a thrilling cross section of New York which reminds you of those delicately cut slices of apple that you used to be given as a child, where if the slicing was done with enough skill the outline of the apple-blossom appeared in the center. The germ of the city is in "Twenty-four Hours" as plain as skill can make it.

Mr. Bromfield has a real task on his hands weaving those diverging threads into his pattern without ever once knotting them or putting the purple where the pink should be. He accomplishes it without one slip. And he does it in this fashion. Whenever the reader is all tense and excited about something that is happening, the author ends a chapter and begins weaving in the story of another character and another emotion. He keeps them all in his fingers, like an old French laceworker, his bobbins fly in and out, the design appears and then disappears, but when it is finished—voila.

Mr. Bromfield does one thing which always slightly irritates me. When he has made a character as intimately real as one's masseur, he invariably puts on one final touch of unreality. He has done it certainly in the last few of his books, as if he felt that a human being must be fantastic to attract attention. Whereas the power in his writing lies in the fact that he sees so into the emotions of his characters that he can record their fantastic mental gyrations. And such things are much more attention compelling than any physical trait. What makes life so exciting is that, although the inside always does create the outside up to a certain point, the real mystery of the human mind is only indicated by the shell of the face and body.

WRITES THRILLER

Louis Bromfield, whose "Twenty-four Hours" is not only an excellent modern novel, but a thriller de luxe.

NINA WILCOX PUTNAM TELLS OWN STORY, OF HER WORLD, TOO

"Laughing Through," by Nina Wilcox Putnam (Sears) is the autobiography of one of the most successful of the writers of popular fiction and near-fiction. The picture of the heroine as a brave little woman, in spite of all obstacles, is drawn with a true fiction writer's skill.

Some autobiographies are panoramas of the period in which their authors lived, or records of the fascinating people who touched their lives, or are, by their sheer, deep sincerity, human documents of the most alluring kind. Mrs. Putnam's life might have been lived in any age or any period, so far as it reflects her time. Except for a crusade which she made for dress reform there is little of the reaction of her period upon her or of her upon her era.

Mrs. Putnam says that she knew, at first through her father, who was an editor at Harper's, and later through her own efforts, many important and fascinating men and women, but it is always their effect on the heroine of the book that she records and rarely their abstract brilliance or amusement. She tells something about Alan Seeger which is news. Every one knows what a remote, strange young person he was, but never before has the real reason for his joining the Foreign Legion been made known. He was desperately in love with Mrs. Putnam, and he was such a bother to her with his moonings that she finally very definitely and violently forbade him the house, after he had made the final unforgivable gesture of walking ninety-five miles from New York to see her.

He went away instanter and kept his rendezvous with death. Some of his most beautiful poetry was written to her—most of it, in fact—and she still has a few poems of his which have never been printed and will not be, she says, until after her death. "Laughing Through" is an interesting document because it has perforce much about the artistic and bohemian world of the last twenty years in it, and any autobiography has a reality that the same class of fiction never achieves, but it sounds more like the story of a heroine of a novel than the placer mining of a soul—which great autobiography always is. F. B.

More Time Tested Books Appearing in Dollar Series

The two latest additions to the cheaper books campaign are Blue Ribbon Books and Bonibooks. The Blue Ribbon Books are reprints of the successful nonfiction mostly published by Harper & Brothers, Harcourt Brace & Co., and Dodd Mead & Co. They retail for $1.

The first group includes such alluring titles as "Mother India," by Katherine Mayo; "Microbe Hunters," by Paul De Kruif; "Benjamin Franklin," by Phillips Russell; "Fix Bayonets," by John W. Thomason Jr., and "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," by George A. Dorsey.

Bonibooks are reprints, in paper, of books previously published in most cases by Albert & Charles Boni. They are excellently manufactured, and are more for 50 cents than any fifty cents' worth I ever remember in the book business. Some of the outstanding titles are: "The History of Mr. Polly," by H. G. Wells; "Cheri," by Colette; "Open All Night," by Paul Morand; "The Lost Girl," by D. H. Lawrence; "Michelangelo," by Romain Rolland; "Why Men Fight," by Bertrand Russell, and "Tar," by Sherwood Anderson.

Author Regrets Dry Law and Debates on It

Anne Douglas Sedgwick Tells of Life, Work.

BY DALE WARREN.

CHESHAM, N. H.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Although I do not care for wine and seldom drink it at home in England, I cannot look with favor on prohibition," declared Anne Douglas Sedgwick here in the first interview ever granted on American soil. "I regret also the extent to which that subject absorbs American opinion."

ANNE D. SEDGWICK.

In the shadow of Mount Monadnock, gray-blue in an autumn morning haze, the author of "The Little French Girl," who is revisiting America for the first time in twenty-five years, expressed no regrets at having temporarily left the English scene.

Although her short hair is prematurely white, Miss Sedgwick looks far younger than her years. Born in New Jersey of American parents, she lived at Irvington-on-Hudson until her ninth year and was then taken to the London which she evokes with such fidelity in the first chapter of her "Tante."

After studying art in Paris for five years she married Basil de Selincourt, an Englishman of French extraction, and has subsequently made her home a few miles outside of Oxford. She occasionally goes to France, where she often sees the original of "The Little French Girl," and now and then hears of some one who claims acquaintance with the "Old Countess," although Mme. de Lamouderie was one of her purely fictional characters.

"Until the war I was regarded as an English writer," she said, "but within the last ten years my American nationality seems to have been quite generally recognized. I never have seen England with the fresh eye of Henry James, as it has always been home to me, and I seem rather to look upon America as Henry James looked upon England, with the sense of strangeness in familiarity, of a past from which one is detached yet toward which one has a yearning.

Miss Sedgwick's American visit, which will last until late fall and will take her to Boston, New York, and Washington, as well as to the Berkshire home of the Sedgwicks at Stockbridge, Mass., was not undertaken for the purpose of securing literary material. For the first time since the war she was able to persuade her husband to take a long holiday and desert his post as conductor of his village choral society, admitting that the depressing dearth of tenors had left the local chorus in a badly crippled state.

By an odd coincidence, however, her next book, "Philippa," will have an American hero. The character was suggested by—though not drawn from—a young American she met in England.

Miss Sedgwick spoke of the "pity and nobility" of Willa Cather's "Death Comes for the Archbishop," of the "violent talent" of William Faulkner, of the "convincing work" of Julia Peterkin, and of the English recognition of Thornton Wilder. Marcel Proust she laid aside when "Albertine" became a "ghastly bore" and admitted a preference for "Buddenbrooks" over Thomas Mann's "Magic Mountain" and "Death in Venice," because it did not so "exude the atmosphere of a charnel house."

In her opinion the influence of James Joyce on modern writers cannot be overemphasized. She paid high tribute to Virginia Woolf and dispelled one of my illusions when she described Mrs. Woolf as having fair hair and blue eyes, instead of the brunette complexion suggested by her many photographs. No novel ever written, in her estimation, approaches Tolstoi's "War and Peace," which she referred to as "La Guerre and La Paix" and maintained should be read only in French by those who would be floored by the original Russian text.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

Picaresque, by David Hamilton [Scribner's], is a delightful and diverting tale of people who are charmingly mad, written by one of Chicago's white hopes of literature.

The Great Jasper, by Fulton Oursler [Covici-Friede], is the story of a man with the spirit of a pagan, the prowess and technique of a Casanova, and the amiability of the Good Samaritan.

The Island, by Naomi Royde-Smith [Harper's], is a tragic tale of strange love, done with the finesse of an artist.

The Tides of Malvern by Francis Griswold [Morrow] is the story of Charleston and the south from the beginning of the 18th century to the present day.

Mr. Gumble Sits Up by Douglas Durkin [Liveright] is a fantastic tale of a gentleman who couldn't stay dead—and his adventures. It has a James Stephensish flavor.

Heroine of the Prairies by Sheba Hargreaves [Harpers] is a tale of the Oregon trail.

The Third Day by George Manning Sanders [Liveright] is about a man who was supposed to be dead and what he made of his new life.

The Castle, by Franz Kafka [Knopf], translated from the German by Edwin and Willa Muir, has been called abroad "a modern 'Pilgrim's Progress.'"

The Duel of the Queens, by E. Barrington [Doubleday-Doran], is a romantic historical novel of the rivalry between Mary Queen of Scots and Elizabeth, queen of England.

Glory Place, by Marian Bower [Bobbs-Merrill], is the story of a charming devil.

Love's Not Enough, by Simonne Ratel [Farrar & Rinehart], has been adapted from the French by Joseph Collins and brings to American readers a delicate, intimate tale which was awarded the Prix Minerva for 1930.

MYSTERY.

Charlie Chan Carries On, by Earl Derr Biggers [Bobbs-Merrill], has the real "IT" of mysteries.

The Charming Murder, by Frank Shay [Macaulay], is about a murder in a house (souse) party.

SHORT STORIES.

Tales Told by Simpson, by May Sinclair [Macmillan], are thirteen stories, mostly about women and love, by one of the outstanding novelists of our day.

The Street of the Islands, by Stark Young [Scribner's], is a group of eleven subtle tales told with distinction.

Seven Tales and Alexander, by H. E. Bates [Viking], was called, when it was published in England, "return tickets to childhood."

Flowering Judas, by Katherine Anne Porter [Harcourt-Brace], are six powerful and passionate stories.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Al Capone, by Fred D. Pasley [Washburn], is a sprightly, keen biography of the career of our local barons by one of the aristocracy of newspaper reporters, "Paz" of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Letters of Henry Adams, edited by Worthington Chauncey Ford [Houghton-Mifflin], brings us intimate glimpses of one of America's most fascinating literary figures.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams, by Dorothie Bobbe [Minton-Balch], gives a new and charming picture of the man whom history has called coldly formal.

NONFICTION.

The Coming of the War, 1914, by Bernadotte E. Schmitt [Scribner's], is the definitive work on the subject, two volumes of epochal importance, the result of ten years' research.

Blenheim, by George Macaulay Trevelyan [Longmans], is the first volume of a history of England under Queen Anne by one of the greatest historians of our age.

Not for Children, by Roland Young [Doubleday-Doran], is a priceless book of pictures and verses to which Ring Lardner has written an introduction of one sentence, "Perhaps it's 'Not for Children,' but it made me a Young fan."

The Old Book, edited by Dorothy Hartley [Knopf] is a mediæval anthology published in an edition limited to 500 copies for America.

New Poem
THE GLORY OF THE NIGHTINGALES
By the author of TRISTRAM
"...In the subtle tonal effects of which he has not been sparing, there is beauty if not lustre, an insistent and pervading beauty, a sort of subdued organ accompaniment which rises and falls but continues throughout. And truly the poem is a literary achievement the magnitude of which must grow with renewed reading. Psychological analysis of a peculiarly penetrating and accurate sort, philosophic profundity, and a dramatic human episode—only Robinson can so weave such things together that one exclaims that he has achieved, or nearly achieved, the ultimate in his elected genre."—Percy Hutchison, New York Times $2.00

Southern Girl Novel Heroine for Isa Glenn

Georgia Author's New Book Almost Ready.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Isa Glenn's novel, just passed the galley proof stage, soon will be off the press. It has the piquant title, "A Short History of Julia." A glance at the galleys indicates that the story is quite as spirited as the title, for which, the author relates, she is indebted to school girl recollections of Mr. Green, who wrote histories long and short of the English people. Julia is a southern girl, "a study in frustration."

"Southern Charm," it will be remembered, is Mrs. Glenn's earlier witty commentary on the land of her birth. She hails from Georgia. "Transport" and "Heat," her two novels of army life, reflect her years as wife of an army officer stationed in the Philippines. Her next novel may be of New York. "Though I'll have to go abroad to write it," she affirms. "One has to have distance, in either time or space, to give one perspective."

Mrs. Glenn's father was a cousin of Whistler. The artist in her blood cropped out first in stories that she wrote and illustrated. In her early teens she set about writing a passionate romance in the form of love letters. By way of realism, she wrote them on some grand stationery acquired for the purpose. Mother discovered one of these effusions. Took it to father. Daughter was called into the library to face parental inquiry as to this secret love affair. In a dramatic scene the realistic needs of an author were set forth, but rather than share with the family other chapters of this passionate romance the great work was abandoned.

Mrs. Glenn's vivacious mind, quick observation, and wit are as evident in her conversation as in her books. A petite, graceful woman, she wears her frocks with Parisian chic and pronounces her "a's" with the rich caress of Georgia.

Bayard Schindel, whose second novel will be published in the spring, is her son.

Julia Peterkin's "Scarlet Sister Mary" reaches the stage next month with Ethel Barrymore in the title rôle. The occasion is also the stage debut of the star's daughter. The conjunction of the Pulitzer prize novel with America's favorite theatrical family has given the premiere such importance that, if all the people that have told us they are going really to get in, the event will have to be staged in Madison Square Garden. . . . The autumn will bring to town Margaret Anderson, who is coming over from Paris to lecture us . . . and will bring back from Minneapolis Martha Ostenso, who has been summering with her parents and mixing in politics.

It Appears Go-Getters Are Not Such Recent Products

According to Angel Flores' life of "Lope de Vega" [Brentano's], the wit, the pleasure seeker, the lover of other men's wives and of life and adventure, sometimes got the blues. On one occasion he wrote to a friend. "Live, take good care of yourself, get rich, take it easy, don't fulfill your promises, don't pay your debts, make no loans unless the interest is pretty substantial, don't give a damn about loyalty . . . if some one tells you that I write for fame tell him he's a liar — I do it all for MONEY!" Very up to date that gentleman's advice.

DEVON VILLAGE NEW WILLIAMSON THEME; CALLED VERY ENGLISH

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—All is quiet and calm in literary London. Our authors are taking summer holidays, visiting cricket matches, motoring, and resting from labor. The results of what they have been doing earlier will shortly burst upon the world, but at the moment there is a lull.

HENRY WILLIAMSON.

Few literary persons are to be seen in the Savoy Grill, and fewer still elsewhere; although H. G. Wells is in London settling into a new, comfortable flat. As it happens, the countryside of England has been looking very good this year, and a number of writers who generally go abroad have been making acquaintance with their own land.

Those who cannot take holidays have been, instead, reading Henry Williamson's new book, which is not a novel, but a collection of sketches and tales concerning a Devonshire village. It is called "The Village Book" and it gives, I think, a better picture of English rural life, for better and for worse, than any other book of its kind to be published since W. H. Hudson died.

In an hour when young writers are too much concerned with their own literary sets, Mr. Williamson shows courage as well as originality in following his bent, living far from the madding throng, and telling in his own poetical way the truth about simple forms of human nature. "The Village Book" is full of beauty, humor, and truth. And it is very English in its setting.

A very different kettle of fish is Mr. Wyndham Lewis's monstrous novel about the intelligentsia, "The Apes of God." This is the largest and heaviest novel I have ever held, and much of it is mysterious to me; but it Mr. Lewis is to be believed, our English intelligentsia are very queer people indeed. There are some portraits in the book, rather unfriendly in tone, and some vigorous invective which has probably scorched the backs of its victims. But at least the portraiture is based upon familiar knowledge of the subjects; and this is more than can be said for some of the so called books of memoirs that appear from time to time.

Books for Boys Ranging from Plains to Tyre

With Young Heroes for Each Adventure Yarn.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"Red Man's Luck," by Constance Lindsay Skinner. [Coward-McCann.]
"Wonder Tales from Goblin Hills," by Frances J. Olcott. [Longmans-Green.]

In "Red Man's Luck" Constance Lindsay Skinner has added another good frontier story to that list which includes "The White Leader," "Andy Breaks Trail," and others which have made her a general favorite with boys and girls who like stories of good historical background, well written and full of action.

The setting of this latest one is that in which the author spent her childhood, a fur trading post in the Canadian northwest. She has succeeded admirably in passing on to her readers the atmosphere of danger and daring, and the sense of ever smoldering enmity between the Indian and trader which slumbered but to be awakened time and again by the unscrupulous and the crafty among both races.

The hero of the story is a white boy, a waif, who divides his time between the Indian camps and the fort. The boy is a strange mixture, with his love and understanding of the Indians and his loyalty and devotion to the white men.

Another book of interest in an unfamiliar setting is Helena Carus' "Metton of Tyre," a story of a young Phoenician lad who lived in the days of King Solomon. It tells the story of Metton's beginning his career as a trader and recounts the adventures of his first trip down the Nile in his father's fine new bireme. Later he accompanies the pack train carrying material for Solomon's new temple, and pays a visit to the land called Britain, then the end of the known world.

The author, who, by the way, is a Chicago woman, has told a very interesting story of the days of the Phoenician traders and has given us a realistic picture of a period and a people about whom there is little in this form.

Children who enjoy folk tales will welcome another wonder tale collection from the hand of Frances Jenkins Olcott. "Wonder Tales from Goblin Hills" is a collection of German folk tales including brief legends, longer tales, and verses from the German poets. It is similar to Miss Olcott's earlier collections of this kind.

The Medieval Peasants Covering Their Fires for the Night, Gave Us Our Word

Curfew

In the Middle Ages, the peasants of France were required to cover or to extinguish their fires at a fixed hour in the evening. A bell was rung to notify them of the time to obey the command, "Cover the fire"—in French couvre feu. The French came to call the bell, and the time of its ringing, covrefeu or cuevrefu. The Norman French conquerors used it in England, and the medieval English adopted it as curfu, meaning the hour and the signal for all citizens to retire to their homes. It became curfew, which to-day, although indicating perhaps a later hour, still is the time, or the signal, to retire from public places.

AMERICANS AND THE WORLD CAREER.

Frank B. Kellogg has been elected by the league of nations to fill out the term of Charles E. Hughes as judge on the world court bench. This is regarded as a certain indication that he will be chosen two weeks from now for a term in his own right when the full bench is selected. He was given thirty of the forty-seven votes in the election to fill the vacancy. The companionship of the league and the court, as guardian and ward, may be noted again, but the thing of immediate interest is the view of American careers as they are revealed with international opportunities open.

Mr. Root's connection with the international court is regarded as distinguishing his later activities. Mr. Hughes did prefer the place of chief justice of the United States Supreme court to his seat as associate justice of the world court, and that may be taken for him at least as an indication that there still remain some honors at home more highly considered than honors abroad. Mr. Kellogg is elevated to what Mr. Hughes relinquished. A glance at Mr. Kellogg's record will show that his adult life has been one of almost continuous public service in trust busting, in the United States senate, in diplomacy, in law, in the department of state, and in national politics, but what prepared him for the international court was the single item of his peace pact.

So long as Mr. Kellogg confined himself to the affairs of the United States and its services and interests his reasonable prospect upon retirement was a return to his law offices in the Merchants Bank building in St. Paul, Minn., there to enjoy the autumn of his days with the respect of his neighbors and the consciousness of patriotic service. But Mr. Kellogg flew a balloon into the wider sky and at seventy-four years of age he receives the votes of thirty nations and is elected an international judge in a scheme of things from which his countrymen, although not all his fellow public men, have pretty consistently shied away.

John Quincy Adams, a President, found his subsequent reward in public life satisfactorily in the house of representatives of congress. That stripe of satisfaction has faded out of American public life. The inclosed sea of American service to America seems to offer merely preparation for gratifications to be gained by longer journeys to far parts. When the public men of a country find that a rounded career requires the approbation of other nations for services esteemed important in other lands an incentive to action has been released which is independent of the value of their services to their own countrymen.

Mr. Coolidge in a headdress of feathers, with a tomahawk in his hand, can be received into a Sioux tribe in the Black hills with a certain feeling of joviality all around and without any ambition to give the Sioux the capital for a lodge hall, but when Mr. Wilson had been given three triumphs in Europe he was determined to make the United States a part of a European federation.

The cosmic adventures of American statesmen unquestionably set their ambitions outside the horizon of their country's exclusive welfare. If higher rewards are recognized there will be extraneous enterprise. If the final prize is something which a man's fellow citizens cannot give him the inspired effort will be for an achievement in which they may be interested only to their detriment. The reward of life cannot be put out of the national circumference and the activities retained within.

AID FOR SMALL BOATMEN.

Along the ninety miles or more of lake shore in Chicago and its suburbs a great sport and business is rapidly developing that will bring health and recreation and prosperity increasingly to hundreds of thousands of Chicago's citizens. From the owner of one swimming suit to the man with a canoe, a sailboat, a cabin launch, or a Diesel engined yacht, all aquatic Chicago gains from increased facilities on the lake shore, and the men who sell these swimming suits and ships and marine equipment gain as well. To keep up with Chicago's marine growth is a hard problem, but a worth-while one. Today Chicago needs more beaches and small harbors and more marine facilities in general.

North of Belmont the lack of harbors has held back the growth of pleasure shipping. South of the river the yacht harbors show already signs of overcrowding. The Grant park harbor soon will be too full for comfort, and action should be taken to distribute yacht anchorages among other harbors. The harbor north of Navy pier is now available for yachts and small boats, but needs a few improvements. The northeast gap in the breakwater should be closed in part to break the surface waves and currents. A short pier should be built near Chestnut street for small boat landings. Yachtsmen already have subscribed money with the purpose of building and giving a pier to the city or park board, and this work should go through promptly.

Eventually the outer breakwater might be widened, filled with earth, and planted to trees and shrubbery to break the force of northeast winds. With these and other aids to yachting Chicago soon can be one of the world's aquatic centers.

WIPE OUT THE SYSTEM.

The case of "Lefty" Lewis, brought before Judge Lyle on charges of burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods, merits not only the emphatic action taken by Judge Lyle but the special consideration of our citizens. Lewis' character and career illuminate the situation which this community finds itself in and should strengthen its determination to wipe it out. His is not a special case but one that is typical, illustrating not only the vicious forces which have been and are at work but the deplorable weakness and corruption of our defense against them.

When Lewis was tried for the murder of Isadore Braverman eight witnesses identified him as the killer. Yet he was acquitted, the police authorities holding this result to be one of the worst failures of justice in our records. When his flat was searched in the present prosecution five revolvers were found, besides stolen goods, and Judge Lyle's assertion that he is one of the most dangerous men in the city, a "cold blooded, vicious killer," does not seem in the light of circumstances exaggerated. That such a man should go at large and unwhipt of justice is not exceptional, for there are others, but for that reason it is the more significant. Men like Lewis have been able to defy justice only because subterranean influences operate in political organization and in the administration of the law to protect them. The occasional punishment of criminals is more than offset by the notorious immunity of the worst malefactors. It does not break the system which protects them. Only a drastic housecleaning, a persistent and overwhelming warfare upon politicians with known underworld backing and upon officials who show a lack of vigor in enforcement of law, will do it.

Happily, good citizenship is beginning to understand the factors of the problem and organization has been accomplished to initiate and, what is equally essential, to maintain an effective support of vigorous measures for the defeat of organized criminality. Sporadic defense is futile. The alliance of crime and corrupt politics never sleeps. It can only be destroyed by a counter-organization of citizenship which will keep fighting without letup until the system is rooted out.

Some amendment of judicial procedure and perhaps some changes or additions in substantive law are wanted. Improvements in police methods are needed. But these will not produce substantial results in themselves. They can be evaded and defeated. The essential is organized, permanent agencies of responsible citizenship to keep guard over the actual administration of the law and to direct public action against all men in office or in political management who are slack or incompetent in the enforcement of law or exchange favors with the underworld of protected vice and violence. The conditions which defeated the effort led by Mr. Loesch revealed how powerful and far reaching is the alliance of crime and corrupt politics and at the same time taught us that the cure must be drastic and thoroughgoing. Impromptu attack in one sector will get nowhere, however vigorous and determined it may be. The fight must be persistent all along the line.

BOSTON'S BIRTHDAY.

From this brash and clumsy youngster, not yet a century old, trampling the sand and sloughs along the lake with thunderous feet, go congratulations to old Boston of New England. Three centuries are long as things American endure time, and Boston seems even older than the years that time awards her because she saves old things. Old buildings, old graveyards, old thoughts, old books and loves, old ships and memories, all of them Boston has learned to save. They hold their claim on her.

America is always new because she burns her past, and little from last year remains. But Boston saves her years beautifully, and there are many of them.

Editorial of the Day

WARNING FROM A FILIPINO.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

It is refreshing to find a native Filipino of light and leading discussing with courage, candor, and sound judgment the question of the immediate independence of the Philippines. Mr. Vicente Villamin, an economist and publicist of distinction, told the Kiwanis club at a luncheon why he opposes immediate independence. He discussed the question from the standpoint of the Filipinos, not of Americans, although he gave strong reasons why America should postpone the granting of independence until the Filipinos have had further opportunity to develop their resources and build up a strong economic foundation upon which to establish an independent government.

Mr. Villamin holds that immediate independence, or independence within so short a period as five years, would be suicidal for the Filipino people, without any cause for suicide given by the United States. He credits the United States with a great work of construction and instruction in fitting the Filipinos for democracy. American experts have laid the foundation of effective sanitation and education, and instead of oppressing or exploiting the Filipinos America has given them all these advantages with full liberty, as full as that enjoyed by American citizens. We have given them the rights and privileges of American citizens without the obligations.

Although for ultimate independence, Mr. Villamin opposes immediate independence chiefly on economic grounds, though he adds a strong argument against it from the standpoint of the international situation in the orient. He asserts that politics has ruled. In the clamor of the politicians the Filipinos have overlooked the economic side of the question, and are just beginning to realise that "the maintenance of industrial pay rolls for the masses is much more important than the maintenance of government pay rolls for the politicians." In fact, one depends upon the other. He foresees that by depriving the Philippine industries of United States tariff protection and practical free trade with America, independence would sap the lifeblood of the country and plunge the people into poverty, misery, and chaos. It would lower the standard of living to the level of the Chinese coolie or the Japanese peon and undo the constructive work that has been done in the Philippines. The archipelago is a foreign trade country, most of its production being an exportable surplus. As an agricultural country it is capable of producing many commodities which America now buys from other foreign sources, frequently monopolized products of possessions of other countries. The lack of capital and initiative and the addiction to politics instead of business has been largely responsible for this.

Mr. Villamin believes that by shifting production in the Philippines from the industries depending on the American tariff, developing commodities which will be more and more needed by the United States, but not grown there, the economic relations of the two countries would be put on a stable basis.

TYPHOID AND WATER.

It is well to continue unusual precautions against typhoid fever for another month, but the crest of this season's danger has passed. When typhoid was in its heyday the crest was not reached until the middle of the autumn. Labor day now sees us over the divide. This change in seasonal distribution is regarded as additional proof that the disease is on the wane. Most of the typhoid is now spread by carriers, and this service is not subject to great seasonal fluctuation.

On the other hand, oyster production is now better watched, our milk is pasteurized, fly breeding is at a minimum, and nearly all waters are safe nearly all the time. The oyster, fly, milk, and water borne typhoids have become methods of some importance.

Dr. O. B. Nesbit sends me the following quotation from Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi." It related to the public water supply of St. Louis:

"'What is a person to do here when he wants a drink of water? Drink this slush?'

"'Can't you drink it?'

"'I could if I had some water to wash it down with.'

"Here was a thing that had not changed; a score of years had not affected this water's mulatto complexion in the least. A score of centuries would succeed no better, perhaps."

Enough to remove Mark from a catalogue of prophets. Probably in less than twenty years after Mark wrote "A score of centuries will not improve the water supply of St. Louis . . ." we find that city giving its inhabitants crystal clear water, appealing to the senses, and safe as to typhoid and other bacterial diseases. Hand in hand with the improvement in the water supply there has been increase in safety against typhoid. In twenty years St. Louis did what Mark Twain said it could not do in twenty centuries.

DEFECTIVE GUTTERS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—The gutters of a house in the 3000 block of South Kedvale avenue are in bad condition, allowing all water to come down on the adjacent property, endangering foundation and preventing passage between buildings during rain. Complaint to owners does no good. Can anything be done in regard to this condition?

F. H.

You are advised that an inspector has been assigned to make a thorough investigation, and if any violation is observed proper action will be taken to effect an abatement.

DISPUTE OVER WEDDING PRESENTS.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In case of a married couple not being able to live in harmony and the wife decides to leave a home furnished by relatives as a wedding present, can she return and claim the furniture and lawfully evict the husband without any reasonable cause?

A. M. R.

Much depends on whether the home was given to the husband or to the wife or to both. Take the matter up with one of the assistants on duty in the Court of Domestic Relations, city hall.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WILL DEFERS PAYMENT.

Chicago Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a beneficiary under a will which is payable ten years from now. 1. Is it possible to get money on it at this time through an insurance company—that is, can I borrow on it through an insurance guarantee? 2. Any suggestions you have to offer will be appreciated.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

WAKE-LINE: In the late '60s J. H. McVicker did most of the printing for McVicker's theater in the basement of a building across from the southeast corner of the theater. Scenery and properties were stored in the room above until needed for some performance. Col. L. L. Sharpe was theater manager, James Baggot property man, and Gus (I never knew his last name) was principal scene shifter.

Among the actors at that time were Joseph Wheelock, Edmund Bok, Mr. Aiken, Harry Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Marble, and Mrs. McVicker also took part in some of the plays. Among the troupes playing was Dupree & Benedict's minstrels.

Look back, if you will, at one of those scenes. The curtain goes up for the first performance with the company standing in a semi-circle, all wearing black coats and black masks and all singing "Three Blind Mice." In the circle are several boys. As the end of the song nears the actors gradually fall back. One of the boys falls to back up, and one of the company whispers instructions, which causes the audience to laugh. That boy was Eddie Fitzgerald, later known as Eddie Foy.

One of our great annual events was the trip from old St. Joe to the auto show in Chicago. Dad got us up at 2 a. m. (It really wasn't necessary; we couldn't sleep anyway.) We walked through the silent cold of early morn, boarded the 3 a. m. Père Marquette and reached Chicago about 6. Then breakfast and out to the Coliseum, to be on hand when the doors opened for a grand day of inspecting the shiny cars. At noon, a ham sandwich and coffee in the smoke filled basement, with waiters scurrying here and there with foaming beers.

More auto show in afternoon, with a constantly increasing load of catalogues. Supper and a musical comedy, hurrying to catch the 11:50 train home. Back in the old town before another dawn, still giddy with the thrill of the great event.

BALLADE TO A LADY GAY.

Out of the dark of a hidden street
You come to me like a haunting sprite,
With glittering eyes and with dancing feet
As though to summon some weird delight,
As though to mimic some eerie wight
Or ever the dawn of a dreamless day—
You with your laughter and scorn for fright,
You with your song and your manner gay.

Each to ponder the other's plight,
Each to welcome a warm retreat
From kinsmen's ears and from townsmen's sight
Ere the great stars dim in their hurried flight
And the ghosts of the Gods are gone away—
I with a heart for the Devil's might,
You with your song and your manner gay.

And here we squander the hours fleet
While the wandering skies grow wan and white;
And no one will ever despoil or cheat
Our minds of a memory ever so slight,
For this is our heritage, this is our right:
That nothing of youth be forgotten for aye—
Ah, let me remember you after tonight,

L'ENVOI.

Lady, your bosom would offer respite
From all that is earthen and all that is clay—
You are a vision no wanton could blight,
You with your song and your manner gay.

More satisfactory, we think, is the plan of the Macomb Herald of Macomb, O., which solves this difficulty with succinct frankness. 16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 20, 1914.

LONDON.—The sixth day of the great battle along the Aisne river has failed to bring decisive advantage to either the allies or the Germans. There has been a series of advances and retreats at many points along the vast line and statements issued in Berlin and Paris differ on the result. However, the military experts here assert the allies are beginning to make their continued pressure on the German lines felt.

LONDON.—The famous Cathedral of Notre Dame at Reims has been hit eight times by German shells during the three days' bombardment of the town, according to the Evening News correspondent who viewed the fighting. He says that when shells began to fall some German wounded were brought from the hospital and laid on straw in the nave. Another dispatch says that Capt. R. N. Grenfeld, the well known polo player, is among the British officers killed in action.

PARIS.—Stories of German atrocities are not gaining the credence in Paris they are given in Brussels. There are plenty of these stories being told, but, while Parisians would like to believe the enemy capable of acts ascribed to them, they are sufficiently fair minded to demand proof, and there appears to be none.

WASHINGTON. — An emergency revenue bill to provide $105,000,000 for the year's federal revenue by taxing beer, wines, gasoline, sleeping and parlor car tickets, insurance, telegraph and telephone messages, amusement tickets and a variety of documents was agreed upon by the Democratic members of the house ways and means committee. It will be introduced Monday.

TAKU. — The allies attacked the Petang forts at daybreak. Heavy cannonading is going on.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gen. John A. McClernand, who had been critically ill for many weeks, died this morning. He was 88 years old May 30 last. His first military service was in the Blackhawk war, after which he took up law. He was elected to congress in 1843, in 1851 and in 1860. At the beginning of the civil war he resigned from congress and with John A. Logan and P. R. Foulke organized a brigade of volunteers known as McClernand's brigade. It participated in the glories of Fort Donelson and the battle of Shiloh. In 1863 he succeeded Gen. Sherman in command of the federal army in Mississippi and distinguished himself at the siege of Vicksburg. In politics he was a Democrat and he met and participated with Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas and Gov. Yates in some of the most stirring campaigns in the state.

LONDON. — The Times says that negotiations have been practically completed for the sale of the parliamentary charter of Charing Cross and Hampstead line of underground railways in London to Charles T. Yerkes. It is said construction of the line will begin almost immediately.

The differences between the loyal and the disloyal Creeks have been amicably adjusted. The federal commissioners have declared that the government refuses to acknowledge John Ross as chief of the Cherokee nation because of his duplicity and bad faith with the government.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—A squad of seven Indians was seen last week near Lake Sheetek. Col. Pfander, commandant at Fort Ridgeley, notified all frontier posts to look out for them and kill them if possible.

Arnold is a clerk in the provost marshal's office, and Spangler and O'Laughlin are working at their trade, carpentering, in the engineering department."

WISCONSIN GOES LA FOLLETTE.

Chicago, Sept. 18. — The editorial, "Wisconsin Goes La Follette," strikes me as being not only unfair but also in extremely poor taste. Surely every group of people has the right to nominate and elect whom it sees fit. This is one of the prerogatives of democracy, and when it is exercised there should be no criticism on the part of neighboring electorates who have the same privilege. This telling of equally intelligent people what is "for their own good" causes just resentment.

It has always been a thorn in the flesh of the Republican regulars that so prosperous and progressive a state as Wisconsin should not be willing to swing into line. Perhaps the people there appreciate that much of their prosperity and progress are closely tied up with what the La Follette family has done for them. They remember that not once did "Fighting Bob" surrender his ideals, sell out to the moneyed interests, or go back on the promises he made to his constituents at election time. The family has proved its good faith, and in Philip—as well as in Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr.—Wisconsin recognizes true sons of their father. With them in office, the state knows its best interests are being looked out for at all times.

One might add that no La Follette campaign fund has ever been questioned, nor have investigations been necessary.

A. J. GLEYSTEEN.

ONLY STATE PATRONAGE.

Milwaukee, Sept. 18.—In your editorial today regarding the La Follettes you state that with one La Follette as senator and the other as governor they will be in possession of patronage both state and federal. Since when did Senator La Follette or his late father ever handle federal patronage? Senator Blaine also has no federal favors to bestow. Patronage is given to "yes men" and withheld from senators who dare stand on their own feet in opposition to the administration Grundys and Mellons.

National Committeeman Vits, a stalwart head of the Aluminum corporation in this state, the Mellon corporation, is the man handing out the federal jobs, postoffices, etc.

THE JUNIOR CHAMBERS.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—I wish to emphatically protest the unjustified attack of Pegler upon the junior chambers of commerce. In the first place he is writing of a subject of which he knows nothing, always a foolish thing to do. Secondly, regardless of the merits of the controversy in which Mr. Pegler has become involved, the statement to which he takes exception in no way represented an official view of the junior chamber but merely the personal opinion of a man who happened to be president of the Macon junior chamber of commerce.

The junior chamber of commerce has a national membership of approximately 30,000 young business men, most of whom either own their own business or hold executive positions. Both Col. Lindbergh and Gov. Moody of Texas have held memberships in this organization as well as many other prominent young business men.

TAXPAYERS AND CUBS.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Statistics taken by the government during the war and later investigations by the research bureaus of the universities of Harvard and Princeton disclosed that we have in the United States 20 million feeble minded individuals. This figure seems to be about right to judge by the size of the baseball mob about the Cubs. Therefore during the last four days I have prayed hard that the Lord might help defeat the Cubs to prevent the world series games coming to Chicago. Why? I am afraid that thousands of that baseball mob will lose what little brains they still have, and that the city of Chicago will come into the dire need to build new homes for these completely deranged half wits and thereby aggravate its financial situation. Therefore, taxpayers, pray, pray.

MORE YACHT RACES.

West Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—The sympathy of the world must go out to fine old Sir Thomas Lipton in the contest in which he is engaged, but he may take comfort in the thought that the victory of Enterprise does not prove that she is the better boat, because she has not had the tussle with the Atlantic that Shamrock had before entering the race. It would be sporting just for the sake of proving her superior if some sporting American would offer a prize for both Enterprise and Shamrock to compete for in European waters. Enterprise to cross the Atlantic on her own bottom as Shamrock did before entering. If she won again, all the greater would be our glory.

CAUSES OF AIR ACCIDENTS.

Woodstock, Ill., Sept. 13.—I have been watching THE TRIBUNE for more days on the fatal crashes at the recent air races, but the matter has apparently slipped into oblivion.

When the Wrights first flew I was building an experimental plane and I have followed the design of planes very carefully ever since. My business has taught me many things about the dangers coincident with the presence of carbon monoxide gas. With a knowledge of plane structure and combustion gases, I arise to say that many of the unexplained crashes were caused by the pilot being made unconscious or even killed by carbon monoxide gas.

The design of many planes, particularly racing planes, tends to create a tremendous vacuum in the cockpit. At high speeds this may become very high. Even if it doesn't suck in the odorless and deadly carbon monoxide, it may cause unconsciousness, precisely as happens when a plane ascends to a rare and oxygenless atmosphere. The remedy is, of course, to put a pressure instead of a vacuum in the cockpit, which is simple and costless.

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. Clement is vicar of a country village in England. His wife, Griselda, is nearly twenty years his junior. The vicar's young nephew, Dennis, lives with them.

Col. Protheroe, a pompous parishioner, who makes life miserable for his daughter, Lettice, and his second wife, is expected at the vicarage at 6:15 one evening. At 5:30 the vicar is called to visit a dying parishioner and leaves word for the colonel that he will be late. On returning at 7 the vicar meets Lawrence Redding, an artist, who is living in a studio on the vicarage grounds, coming out of the house in an agitated state. The day before the artist and Mrs. Protheroe had confessed to him their love for each other. In his study the vicar finds the colonel dead, murdered, apparently. No weapon is found. Dr. Haydock is called and he says Protheroe has been dead half an hour, and sum-mons the police. A note, which the colonel started to write to the vicar, is headed 6:20. A clock, overturned when the colonel fell forward, stopped at 6:22, but it was always kept fifteen minutes fast.

Lawrence Redding and Mrs. Protheroe both confess to the murder.

Miss Marple, whose house adjoins the vicarage, saw Anne Protheroe going to the vicarage about 6:15. From there she went to the studio. She carried no handbag and had no place to conceal a weapon. Redding came along shortly after and joined her at the studio. They came out about twenty minutes later and walked toward the village.

Lawrence and Anne admit they had confessed the crime thinking the other had com-mitted it. Lawrence said he had come back to see the vicar, after leaving Anne, and had found his pistol and thought Anne must have taken it.

Three people heard a shot, which they thought came from the woods, the evening of the murder—the vicar's maid, Miss Marple, and Mrs. Price Ridley, who lives near the vicarage.

Mrs. Lestrange, a newcomer in the village, who had called on Col. Protheroe the night before he died, sends for the vicar. Inspector Slack calls while he is there. The inspec-tor is questioning everybody as to their whereabouts the evening of the murder. Miss Marple asks the vicar to call.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

LOCAL EXCITEMENT.

"My nephew," Miss Marple explained. "My nephew, Raymond West, the author. He is coming down today. Such a to-do. I have to see to everything myself. You cannot trust a maid to air a bed properly and we must, of course, have a meat meal tonight. Gentlemen require such a lot of meat, do they not? And drink. There certainly should be some drink in the house—and a siphon."

"If I can do anything——" I began.

"Oh how very kind. But I did not mean that. There is plenty of time, really. He brings his own pipe and tobacco, I am glad to say. Glad because it saves me from knowing which kind of cigarets are right to buy. But rather sorry, too, because it takes so long for the smell to get out of the curtains. Of course, I open the window and shake them well very early every morning. Raymond gets up very late—I think writers often do. He writes very clever books, I believe, though people are not really nearly so unpleasant as he makes out.

"Would you like to bring him to dinner at the vicarage?" I asked, still unable to gather why I had been summoned.

"Oh no, thank you," said Miss Marple.

"There was—er—something you wanted to see me about, I think." I suggested desperately.

"Oh of course. In all the excitment it had gone right out of my head." She broke off and called to her maid. "Emily—Emily. Not those sheets. The frilled ones with the monogram, and don't put them too near the fire."

She closed the door and returned to me on tiptoe.

"It's just rather a curious thing that happened last night," she ex-plained. "I thought you would like to hear about it, though at the moment it doesn't seem to make sense. I felt very wakeful last night—wondering about all this sad business. And I got up and looked out of my window. And what do you think I saw?"

"Perfectly amazing," I said, "Was she going to sleep—er— in the barrow?"

I looked inquiring.

"Gladys Cram," said Miss Marple, with great emphasis. "As I live, going into the woods with a suitcase."

"A suitcase?"

"Isn't it extraordinary? What should she want with a suitcase in the woods at 12 o'clock at night?"

"You see," said Miss Marple. "I daresay it has nothing to do with the murder. But it is a peculiar thing. And just at present we all feel we must take notice of peculiar things."

"Perfectly amazing," I said. "Was she goin to—er—sleep in the barrow?"

"She didn't at any rate," said Miss Marple. "Because quite a short time afterwards she came back, and she hadn't got the suitcase with her."

The inquest was held that afternoon [Saturday] at 2 o'clock at the Blue Boar. The local excitement was, I need hardly say, tremendous. There has been no murder in St. Mary Mead for at least fifteen years. And to have some one like Col. Protheroe murdered actually in the vicarage study is such a feast of sensation as rarely falls to the lot of a village population.

Various comments floated to my ears which I was probably not meant to hear.

"There's the vicar. Looks pale, doesn't he? I wonder if he had a hand in it. 'Twas done at vicarage after all." "How can you, Mary Adams? And him visiting Henry Abbott at the time." "Ah! but they do say him and the colonel had words. There's Mary Hill. Giving herself airs, she is, on account of being in service there. Hush, here's coroner."

The coroner was Dr. Roberts of our adjoining town of Much Benham. He cleared his throat, adjusted his eyeglasses, and looked important.

To recapitulate all the evidence would be merely tiresome. Lawrence Redding gave evidence of finding the body, and identified the pistol as be-longing to him. To the best of his belief he had seen it on the Tuesday, two days previously. It was kept on a shelf in his cottage and the door of the cottage was habitually unlocked.

Mrs. Protheroe gave evidence that she had last seen her husband at about a quarter to six when they separated in the village street. She agreed to call for him at the vicarage later. She had gone to the vicarage about a quarter past six, by way of the back lane and the garden gate. She had heard no voices in the study and had imagined that the room was empty, but her husband might have been sitting at the writing table, in which case she would not have seen him. As far as she knew, he had been in his usual health and spirits. She knew of no enemy who might have had a grudge against him.

I gave evidence next, told of my appointment with Protheroe and my summons to the Abbotts. I described how I had found the body and my summoning of Dr. Haydock.

"How many people, Mr. Clement, were aware that Col. Protheroe was coming to see you that evening?"

"A good many, I should imagine. My wife knew and my nephew, and Col. Protheroe himself alluded to the fact that morning when I met him in the village. I should think several people might have overheard him, as, being slightly deaf, he spoke in a loud voice."

"It was, then, a matter of common knowledge? Any one might know?"

I agreed.

Haydock followed. He was an important witness. He described care-fully and technically the appearance of the body and the exact injuries. It was his opinion that deceased had been shot whilst actually in the act of writing. He placed the time of death at approximately 6:20 to 6:30—certainly not later than 6:35. That was the outside limit. He was posi-tive and emphatic on that point. There was no question of suicide—the wound could not have been self-inflicted.

Inspector Slack's evidence was discreet and abridged. He described his summons and the circumstances under which he had found the body. The unfinished letter was produced and the time on it—6:20—noted. Also the clock. It was tacitly assumed that the time of death was 6:22. The police were giving nothing away. Anne Protheroe told me afterwards that she had been told to suggest a slightly earlier period of time than 6:20 for her visit.

Our maid, Mary, was the next witness, and proved a somewhat truculent one. She hadn't heard anything and didn't want to hear anything. It wasn't as though gentlemen who came to see the vicar usually got shot. They didn't. She'd got her own jobs to look after. Col. Protheroe had arrived at a quarter past six, exactly. No, she didn't look at the clock. She heard the church chime after she had shown him into the study. She didn't hear any shot. If there had been a shot she'd have heard it. Well, of course she knew there must have been a shot, since the gentleman was dead shot—but there it was. She hadn't heard it.

The coroner did not press the point.

Mrs. Lestrange had been subpoenaed to give evidence, but a medical certificate, signed by Dr. Haydock, was produced saying she was too ill to attend.

There was only one other witness, a somewhat doddering old woman. The one who, in Slack's phrase, "did for" Lawrence Redding.

Mrs. Archer was shown the pistol and recognized it as the one she had seen in Mr. Redding's sitting room—"over against the bookcase, he kept it. Always about." She had last seen it on the day of the murder. Yes—in answer to a further question—she was quite sure it was there at lunch time on Thursday—quarter to one when she left.

I remembered what the inspector had told me and I was mildly surprised. However vague she might have been when he questioned her, she was quite positive about it now.

The coroner summed up in a negative manner, but with a good deal of firmness. The verdict was given almost immediately.

After a series of tepid movies of the musical comedy variety, it's re-freshing to see a good old fashioned western again. Despite the fact that Zane Grey's books are consistently snubbed by all self-respecting literary editors, they continue to make rip-roaring shows of the frontier days.

"The Last of the Duanes," the latest film from the prolific Grey's pen, is not for the highbrow trade. It has plenty of appeal, however, for the fan who likes entertainment wherein shots reverberate through in-vigorating mountain air.

The story is the regulation yarn about a family feud in the early days of the Lone Star state. The last of the Duanes survives the last of the Morgans only because he pulls his trigger first. He becomes an outlaw and gets mixed up with a band of highway robbers.

He discovers that the bandit chief is detaining a young blonde against her will. Does he rescue her? Don't be silly. Is she grateful? You know your westerns!

The scenery and outdoor sound ef-fects show that Fox still is supreme in the art of making western films. George O'Brien, as Buck Duane, is a handsome, hard riding cowboy, out-doing Tom Mix in the saddle and in his choice of glorified cowboy apparel. Lucile Browne, in her first movie rôle, gives a competent performance as the heroine.

Alfred L. Werker, the director, is an old hand at western thrillers, hav-ing turned out dozens of pictures star-ring the late Fred Thomson. The dialogue, which is quite all right, was done by Ernest Pascal, author of "The Marriage Bed," which was banned, you remember, in Boston, and of "The Dark Swan." Authors who work in Hollywood must be versatile, if nothing else.

"Love in the Rough" is another little golf comedy on the order of "Follow Thru." A generous sprin-kling of laughs, a couple of catchy tunes, and a surprise ending make it a pleasant enough concoction.

Benny Rubin, who gets funnier as the talkies grow older, is the best thing in the picture. As a caddy who doesn't like his job he manages to keep up a running fire of wise cracks from start to finish. Robert Mont-gomery and Dorothy Jordan provide the romantic interest. They are both personable young people and make the most of singing "Go Home and Tell Your Mother."

Mr. Montgomery impersonates a shipping clerk whose golfing prowess makes him valuable to his employer outside of office hours. The boss treats him to a sojourn at a country club so that they may take daily turns together on the golf links. Benny Rubin goes along as the caddy.

The prettiest girl at the club imme-diately grows fond of the shipping clerk. Word gets around that he is president of the International Ship-ping company. The girl is delighted, even though she doesn't think she'd love a man for his money.

They elope, but after leaving the office of the justice of the peace the bridegroom breaks down and con-fesses. See the picture if you're curi-ous about the surprise ending.

Jack Oakie is appearing in the Chi-cago stage show. He sings and dances and talks to the audience in a chummy, friendly way. He received enthusiastic applause from a packed house yesterday.

EINSTEIN HAS NEW SPACE THEORY IN REPORT TO ACADEMY

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Prof. Al-bert Einstein, who lately in Birming-ham and again in Berlin characterized space as "the only theory represent-ing reality," has submitted to the Prussian Academy of Sciences a new treatise on the "Theory of Space Con-ceptions with Riemann Metrics and Extended Parallelism."

Dr. Einstein, "father of relativity," said in Geneva on July 27 last he was evolving another theory. In the treatise submitted today Dr. Einstein takes up consideration of certain non-Euclidian conceptions of space, those not limited to three dimensions, where-in, for example, the parallel lines which, according to Euclid, do not meet, no matter how far produced, might not fulfill that definition.

Dr. Einstein in his latest work ex-amines the attributes of space. With the help of the mathematical proposi-tion that in a series of differentia-tions the sequence of differences may be varied. He deduces a principle gov-erning the formation of compatible field equations.

The German scientist's latest contri-bution is closely connected with his formulation of a uniform field theory but embraces only a restricted phase of the general problem and, according to Prof. Einstein himself, needs still further research. In other words, no new general theory is involved com-parable with his relativity theory.

5,000 New Students on U. of Illinois 1930 Rolls

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—With permits issued to nearly 5,000 fresh-men and other new students, the Uni-versity of Illinois today began regis-tration. The figure is approximately the same as last year. More than 800 students have filed applications for work at the Y. M. C. A. bureau, an increase of 100 over last year.

Y. M. C. A. officials said the pros-pects are there will not be enough jobs to fill the demand.

Scientists Find Indian Pit 1,500 Yrs. Old in New York

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A feast pit, or cremation pit, dating back about 1,500 years ago, was un-covered at Willow Point today by a party of scientists headed by Dr. Ar-thur C. Parker, director of the Roches-ter museum.

The skeleton of an Indian girl also was uncovered.

A plot 200 by 500 feet, which was the site of Iroquois villages, was sur-veyed by the group of scientists and divided into 50 foot squares to be ex-cavated as the work progressed.

Daughter and Mother Go to Northwestern

Latter as Senior, Former as Freshman.

The dream of spending their college days together became a reality yester-day for a mother and her 14 year old daughter who enrolled as students at Northwestern university. The mother, Mrs. Nettie Seeley, 38 years old, is classified as a senior in the school of education. Her daughter, Betty Clark Seeley, is a freshman in the school of speech. They live at the Library Plaza hotel, Evanston.

"We have always planned to go to Northwestern together," Mrs. Seeley said yesterday. "I was only waiting for Betty to prepare herself for col-lege. After I get my degree in edu-cation and after Betty has finished her university course I plan to teach again. I suppose Betty will continue in her dramatic work."

Mrs. Seeley told how Betty as a small child would go with her to the rural school where Mrs. Seeley was a teacher. Betty paid close attention to what her mother taught, and when it came time for her to start to school she was placed in the third grade. She skipped a grade after that. She en-tered high school when 11 years old, and graduated last June from Wood-row Wilson High school, Long Beach Cal.

Betty is the second student to enter Northwestern university below the normal age in the last two years. Har-old M. Finley last year enrolled in the college of liberal arts at the age of 13. In addition to her activity in dramat-ics in high school, Betty also gave musical recitals, was a member of the French club, and worked on the school papeer.

Mrs. Seeley, while not on the campus, will help put herself and Betty through Northwestern by work-ing in an Evanston department store. Some years ago she took her under-graduate work at Michigan State col-lege. She has also taught art in the public schools of Cleveland and De-troit.

Hoover Invited to Talk to World Business Men

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, former president of the American Bar asso-ciation, invited President Hoover to-day to address the opening session May 4, 1931, of the international chamber of commerce with delegates from 47 countries here. The Presi-dent was said to have indicated he would accept.

Milton Sills' Verse Read as Feature of His Funeral Rites

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—A small group of relatives, servants, and lifetime friends said a last fare-well to Milton Sills, film star, at serv-ices in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Glendale, this afternoon. A verse which Sills wrote shortly before his death to his wife, Doris Kenyon, actress, was read by Dr. Ernest Holmes, director of a religious and philosophic institute here, as expressing Sills' own view on immortality. It said:

If love denied must find fulfillment, as indeed it must,
Though you and I descend into the dust,
And in the earth commingle side by side,
Yet shall our frustrate ghosts triumph and ride
To some far heaven where our love and trust
Anoint the bridegroom and the bride.
Then hushed and dreamlike shall our footsteps wind
Through fields of deathless asphodel where blows
No sharp wind of despair, and we shall find
Each other's hands again, and all our woes
Shall be forgot; our spirits sky enshrined,
While heart with crumpled heart climbs in the rose.

Mrs. Sills, her mother, Mrs. Mar-garet Kenyon; Dorothy Sills, daughter by his first marriage; Clarence Sills, Chicago banker, his brother; John Goodrich, writer friend of Sills, and his daughter; Ramon Novarro, Theda Bara; a Negro butler, Negro maid, and Sills' chauffeur filled the forward pews. Lawrence Tibbett sang.

The body has been temporarily placed in a crypt. It probably will be buried permanently in Chicago, his birth place. The motion picture in-dustry will hold memorial services next Wednesday at All Souls' church.

"Carry Two Watches" New Slogan of the Jewelers

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Amer-ican man who owns two cars and an extra shirt is now bsought to carry two watches.

The American National Retail Jewel-ers' association today adopted a reso-lution recommending "that men wear a wrist watch for great convenience and a pocket watch for great accuracy —two watches for complete satisfac-tion."

Other resolutions condemned retail selling by wholesale jewelers; approved efforts to set up international stand-ards of quality for platinum, gold, sil-ver, precious stones and pearls, and disapproved "long, unreasonable and deceptive guaranties on silverware" as likely to deceive the public.

MRS. MORROW USES MEXICAN TOYS AS FAIRY STORY BASIS

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A Mexi-can fairy story, "The Painted Pig," by Mrs. Dwight Morrow, written dur-ing her stay in Mexico City last win-ter and dedicated to her youngest daughter, Constance, was published today.

It is about two Mexican children, who live across the street from the American ambassador's week-end resi-dence at Cuernavaca, and it is illus-trated by Count Rene d'Harnoncourt of Mexico City, a collector of native toys.

Mrs. Morrow herself wrote the fol-lowing paragraph, which appears on the jacket:

"Count Rene d'Harnoncourt has a collection of Mexican toys in Mexico City which is famous all over the country. Last winter he showed them to Mrs. Dwight Morrow, the wife of the American ambassador, and she begged him to write a story about them. He made some pictures in bright colors of his toys, and Mrs. Morrow wrote a story about the search made by two little Pedros and Pitas in her three winters in Mexico.

"These two lived across a narrow street from her in Cuernavaca, where the Morrows have a little week-end adobe house. You can find Pancho down here, too, in the market any Saturday with 'Tortillas' as well as toys under his umbrella.

"Mrs. Morrow has dedicated the book to her youngest daughter, Con-stance, 'who helped me buy a paint-ed pig in the market at Cuernavaca.'"

Veterans of 10 Armies Hear Peace Appeals at Fidac Convention

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—While veterans of ten allied armies echoed pledges to wage unceasing bat-tle for peace, one of the most dra-matic leaders of the war that united them stood on the fringe of the Fidac congress today and voiced belief that the tragic command he led in 1915 is finding vindication.

Gen. Ian Standish Hamilton, who saw 200,000 casualties among his Brit-ish and French troops at the Darda-nelles—before he was relieved of com-mand, and the expedition abandoned —said "unprejudiced minds every-where are beginning to see that it was the only hope of ending the war quickly."

Another world war veteran, Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, declared at a dinner tonight that "modern wars usually grow out of racial and economic intolerance"; that the prom-ise of an end to wars, made so often during the last struggle, "seems now almost forgotten, and we again hear of wars and rumors of wars," and that those who fought together owe it to the comrades dead "to promote understanding."

Postponing election of officers, the delegates spent the day visiting an ancient Virginia tavern where George Washington ate, motoring to Mount Vernon, and exchanging reminis-cences.

National heroes of France, Portugal, Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Great Britain, Belgium, and the United States rubbed elbows under the flags that decked their hotel headquar-ters.

Among the delegates is Princess Cantacuzene of Rumania. She served in the biggest hospital in Bucharest throughout the world war.

There was Lady Edward Spencer-Churchill, cousin of Lord Winston Spencer-Churchill. She had turned her Windsor home into a hospital and served in it for nearly five years.

Two Polish women who went to the front and remained in the trenches four years sat with the auxiliary. A great-grandnephew of Gen. Lafay-ette, Count de Henricourt de Grunne, was in the Belgian delegation. He is now a diplomat, but he won the Bel-gian croix de guerre with palm, serv-ing at Ypres.

Col. John Brown, who responded to Secretary Hurley's address at the dinner, was with a landing unit at Suiva, Gallipoli, in that famous Dar-danelles campaign.

"Some thought then that it was a side show," Gen. Hamilton said, "but they are beginning to see that it was not. They are beginning to realize that if we did not take the Straits of the Dardanelles we would face the al-most hopeless situation of a more than 300 mile front in Europe."

On that campaign had rested hope of an opening to Russia, and the hope of crushing the rising menace of the Turks. The wiry British general, dressed in civilian clothes, was one of the few delegates who did not wear his decorations.

"It was the only way," he said of that expedition. "No frontal attack had ever proved successful; the only way to overcome an army is to circle it, cut off a flank. In Europe instead of the normal three mile front there was a 300 mile line, and to take it would have meant a 1,000 mile of-fensive."

Science Tests Electrons to Identify Atoms

Spectroscope Clews Are Basis of Discovery.

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Identity, a new principle of physics attracted the attention of the National Academy Sciences today at its closing session at the University of California.

DR. GILBERT N. LEWIS

Identity enables physicists to compare two particles without use of old fashioned measuring methods. It promises to explain some of the paradoxes that have puzzled scientists.

The principle was developed by Dr. Gilbert N. Lewis of the University of California, who recently proposed "two way time," and who is a world authority on thermo-dynamics and atomic structure. He showed that in mathematical physics time in the sense of future or past is not necessary. Physics problems work out as correctly running backward as forward.

Explaining identity, a new concept of many scientists, he said:

"In the old physics, if we had to compare two particles, we could measure with increasing accuracy their masses or electric charges or some such properties and say that the particles are or are not the same within the limits of experimental error.

"Now we are becoming aware that we have other methods which, even without exact measurements, tell us sometimes that the two particles are or are not identical.

"In the old physics the question was how nearly alike are the two? The new problem is to find whether they are exactly identical or not.

"We find, in fact, that certain quite simple phenomena enable us to ascertain often without exact meas-urement this question of identity or nonidentity. It generally has been be-lieved for a long time that any two electrons are exactly alike intrinsical-ly. The principle of identity draws the consequences of this assumption and shows mathematical and physical consequences that have not been hitherto pointed out.

"Suppose, for example, that we have a molecule of two atoms. Let us consider two such molecules and study their spectrum lines [the lines that light from them through a prism make on a photographic plate].

"We thought them the same, but find that one has twice as many lines as the other, and the reason, we dis-cover, is this:

"The molecule with the smaller number of lines is composed of two atoms exactly identical, but the one with double the number of lines is composed of two atoms which at first sight appear identical, but prove to be slightly different."

The academy announced establish-ment of the John J. Carty medal and award for the advancement of science. It is a $25,000 trust fund given the academy by friends of Mr. Carty in the American Telephone and Tele-graph company. It is given in recognition of his contributions to fundamental and applied science while in telephone work.

Naples' People Hail Sign of Future Safety

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The phenomenon of the boiling up of the blood of St. Januarius in its receptacle in the Capella del Tesoro cathedral occurred this forenoon, with all Naples' church bells ringing and the people shouting with joy.

The occurrence, for which science has provided in the past no explanation, came at 9:43 a. m., while a tremendous throng filed the cathedral chanting prayers for the supposed miracle.

The phenomenon occurs generally at stated periods. When it fails to materialize the people of Naples fear that a new eruption of Vesuvius is coming or that an earthquake, plague or other calamity impends.

The bottle is firmly sealed by some hard, gummy substance. For more than 400 years liquafaction of this substance has taken place at frequent intervals. The relic is so guarded that to expose it to view, as was done July 25 of this year at the public funeral of earthquake victims in Naples, requires the permission of both civil and ecclesiastical authorities.

Eighteen times in each year a silver bust believed to contain the head of St. Januarius is exposed upon the cathedral altar. This was done today as a part of the ceremony. At the same time the phial was brought out and held by the officiating clergyman in view of the assembly. In the congregation usually are a group of poor women characterized as the "zie di San Gennaro" [aunts of St. Januarius]. They pray more loudly than all the rest.

The custom requires the officiant to hold the reliquary by its extremities without touching the glass and from time to time turn it upside down to note whether any movement is perceptible in the enclosed substance. After an interval, sometimes but two minutes, at other times more than an hour, the mass is seen to detach itself gradually from the glass, to become liquid and of a more or less ruby tint, and in some instances to froth and bubble up, increasing in volume.

The officiant then announces, "Il miracolo fatto," there is singing of a Te Deum Laudamus, and the reliquary, with the contents in its liquefied state, is taken to the altar rail so that all may advance and kiss the containing vessel.

Catholic history says that rarely has the liquefaction failed to take place in the expositions in May or September, but that in that of December the mass remains solid more frequently than not.

MANILA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Douglas R. MacArthur sailed today for the United States to assume his new duties as chief of staff of the army. He was given a tremendous sendoff. Highly popular among the Filipinos, he left amid shouts of "Mabuhay," the Tagalog equivalent of "Viva." A farewell dinner was given Gen. Six Dogs to Die After Guarding Body of Master They Loved

While the body of their master, Carl Kunze, one time college professor, lay unclaimed in the county morgue yesterday, six of the twenty dogs he had befriended faced extermination in the municipal dog pound. The others escaped after Des Plaines police found them guarding Kunze's body on Wednesday in a building at 1225 West Jackson boulevard. Kunze, who made $4 a week as caretaker of the building, had been dead about three days.

It was said at the morgue last night that a man who refused to identify himself is trying to raise a fund to pay for Kunze's funeral and keep him from being buried in potter's field. Kunze, who was 70 years old, was said to have been graduated from a German university.

Metal Cloth, Velvets Now Are Popular

Society women evidently are following the dictates of the approved fashion rules concernnig the latest trends of the mode. Miss Elinor Whiting, one of this season's debutantes, wears for afternoon affairs a frock of the newest type of metal cloth.

This is a sheerer fabric than that which has previously been worn for evening gowns and dressy afternoon wear.

Miss Whiting's has a pattern of a design similar to that seen in old Persian shawls. The pattern is in pale colors shot with gold so that the effect is faintly shimmering. A medium long skirt is fulled from a point in the front. A lacing of the metal cloth joins the pointed hip yoke at one side, and the belt is of the same, braided and very narrow.

Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball was seen lunching one day this week, wearing a black cloth suit and a white blouse of the wool lace that all the smart modistes are showing for street dresses and blouses. Dark greens, reds, browns, and white are the favorite colors.

The black velvet gown which is perennially good is more than usually popular this year, partly because it adapts itself so happily to the new lines. Both Mrs. Solomon A. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Scott Bromwell, were attired in black velvet for the debut tea of Mrs. Smith's daughter, Caroline. Mrs. Smith's was trimmed with lace and net. Mrs. Bromwell's was high waisted and had a yoke of ecru lace applique on the velvet and down over the shoulders, a paneled skirt, and a narrow rolled belt with small buckle ornaments. Betty Offield, another debutante, also wore a black velvet with cream lace yoke and cuffs for Miss Smith's reception.

Seek $1,215,000 to Build Memorial for Conan Doyle, Author

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A world spiritualist memorial in memory of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is to be established here. It will take the form of a huge building as the center of spiritualism of all nations. A world appeal will shortly be issued, in which it is hoped to raise $1,215,000 for the proposed memorial.

"It is hoped to put spiritualism definitely on the map," Lady Doyle said. "I would like to see on the building a big dome from the top of which a flame would be burning night and day as symbolical of burning faith and of the everlastingness of our belief."

It is understood that the will of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, which will be probated within a few days, leaves $2,500 for spiritualistic societies, to which during his lifetime he devoted considerable sums. The value of his estate is not yet known, but he leaves, after various bequests, the residue of the estate, one-half to Lady Doyle and the other half to be divided between his three children equally.

Rome to Celebrate on the Anniversary of Fall

ROME, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The sixtieth anniversary of the entry of Italian troops into Rome, with the consequent fall of the papacy's temporal power, falls due tomorrow; but in view of the Lateran treaties concluded last year between the Italian kingdom and the Holy See the patriotic demonstrations, often smacking of the anti-clerical in the past, will be lacking.

In fact, it will be the last time the Italians celebrate their triumph of 1870 over the papacy if a prospective bill is made law by parliament. This bill abolishes the Sept. 20 holiday and substitutes for it Feb. 11, the date of the signing of the Lateran treaties last year.

The only commemoration of an official character foreseen tomorrow is the unobtrusive visit of Prince Boncompagni Ludovisi, governor of Rome, to the famous breach in the Porta Pia, forced by the victorious invaders. Accompanied by an extremely small suite and in civilian clothes instead of full ceremonial uniform, he will there lay a wreath the foot of the plaque which records the famous feat of arms.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—A French motorist in Algeria was killed by a stone hurled by a monkey from the roadside between Maillot and Bouria, according to a message received from Algiers. In the region in which the Frenchman was killed, the monkeys are extremely dangerous. They go about in bands and often engage in battles among themselves, using stones as weapons.

Society Is Busy; Polo, Weddings, Debuts Today

BY THALIA ——

Today's program of events of social interest is crowded and interesting.

The annual Onwentsia hunt meeting, more commonly referred to as the "Steeplechase," will take place this afternoon at the Onwentsia Polo field, with several exciting features scheduled.

There are two important north shore weddings, that of Miss Ellen Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stuart of Hubbard Woods, to George A. Poole Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole of 936 Lake Shore drive; also that of Miss Jean MacLeish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, to John E. Dern III., to take place this afternoon in Winnetka.

The debutante affairs include the tea to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey at Exmoor for their daughter, Mary, and the dinner dance at Onwentsia to be given by Walter B. Smith for his nieces, Miss Caroline Smith, daughter of the Solomon A. Smiths, and Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith.

The hunt meet events include the race for the Onwentsia gold challenge cup, which Lieut. Seas, owned by Walter Briggs of Detroit, already has won several times; the Helen Niblack trophy race, in which Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter Jr., Betty Poor, Eleanor Wheeler, Frances Richardson, Libby Chase, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, and Miss Laura Sprague are entered; and a flat race.

There are a number of out of town visitors for the Steeplechase, among them groups of hunt enthusiasts from Milwaukee and Detroit.

The sociabilities include the dinner given for the owners and riders from out of town last night at Onwentsia, dinner parties to be given by the Vaughan C. Spaldings and the Philip D. Armours III. this evening, a luncheon today by the John P. Kelloggs, and a breakfast at the Hunt club tomorrow morning the Charles G. Cushings are giving. The first hunt was to have been held tomorrow, but it has been postponed because the ground is not in the proper condition.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover left the White House today for the presidential camp on the Rapidan. She was accompanied by her younger son, Allan, and by Mrs. Stark McMullin, who has been with her since the late winter. Herbert Hoover Jr. still is ill at the camp, but his illness is not considered serious.

Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Princess de Ligne, wife of the Belgian ambassador, were the ranking guests at the luncheon given today at the Mayflower by the American Legion auxiliary in honor of the Fidac auxiliary and the women accompanying the delegates to the Fidac conference. Lady Spencer Churchill was the principal speaker, and the day was designated as Great Britain's day. Mrs. Donald MacRae Jr., national president of the American Legion auxiliary, was hostess for the organization.

The Stuart-Poole wedding is to take place at 4 o'clock at the Winnetka Congregational church, with a reception at the Stuart residence following. The assisting buds have been invited to stay on to dinner and the dance at Exmoor this evening. The group includes Corinne and Louise Brewer, Winifred Wheeler, Virginia Waller, Virginia Lamson, Barbara and Dorothy Senn, Jane Martin, Sarah Wood, Betty Offield, Katherine and Jeanne Street, Lucie Stone, Letitia Channon, and Eleanor Roberts.

The goal is 20,000 volumes, to be distributed through the depot at Sault Ste. Marie.

Crying Spells of Happy Children Are Few and Far Between

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A booklet on sex education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The crying of little children. . . . Doesn't it hurt?

There's something heartbreaking about the abandoned crying of a child. To hear a child cry, then sob, then hiccough from uncontrollable weeping is almost unbearable.

Sometimes when the kind intelligent letters keep coming in, I begin to feel that all mothers have "seen the light." And then a series of episodes will show me that there are those who haven't, and in such a striking way that it is distressing.

One episode involved the mother whose children are always in tears. That woman, whose small son or daughter cries often, pitifully, and tumultuously, should look at her own conduct carefully—and stop calling her children bad, or impudent, or disobedient. She should take such frequent crying as a danger signal of the serious effect that she is having on her children's lives, and make a radical change in her ways with them.

Then, one sees or hears others who make you wish they had no children—or could see themselves. I wonder if women have any notion of how they look and sound when they yell or hiss at their little children, "Come here—haven't you got any brains?" with a yank.

Or, "Stop that or I'll beat you."

"Get out of here—go on, I'm going to go away and never come back—never—and you'll be all alone because you're so bad."

Or in a street car, accompanied by slaps, "How many times have I told you not to do that—I'll teach you manners!"

The shrewish look, the strident tone, the red flush of violent temper are very unbecoming—if they but knew it—and show to every listener or looker-on who is really at fault.

I know of one woman who really almost never spoke a civil word to her child and usually screamed at her abusively. One day two neighbors got so wrought up over her treatment of the little slender wisp of a girl that they held an impromptu indignation meeting [quite unintentionally, in her hearing] saying in no uncertain terms what they thought. From that day to this she has, apparently, been a different woman. I suppose she really loved the child and perhaps she didn't realize how unspeakably she acted.

It may be that many parents don't realize how they sound and look—and perhaps today's cold print will serve as a mirror! For the children's sake, let us hope so.

FARM AND GARDEN

NEIGHBORHOOD CLEANUPS.

Strangely enough, some communities always get the sudden ambition to conduct a clean-up campaign during the spring months when buds and blossoms set the human blood to tingling.

Why is it that they haven't realized the peculiarly fit time to accomplish such results in early fall? Weeds can be mowed before they go to seed, and burned with the leaves, to make room for planting of grass and flower seeds and bulbs. Trees and shrubs may be planted to good advantage in the fall, and are quite inexpensive at this season.

Evidently some communities have realized the advantages of fall campaigns to clean up the neighborhood. It is worth the while of any public spirited citizen in the Chicago metropolitan area to see a concrete example of it—and he would need spend but a few profitable minutes in Lockport, southwest of Chicago, in the delightful Des Plaines river valley.

A short time ago this community, inspired by a nucleus of energetic citizens, set out to beautify the right of way along the principal railroad and the arterial highway on which Lockport's main street is developing. Very little money is available, but results have been notable and immediate.

The chairman of the Lockport beautiful committee, Mr. E. B. Biglow, gathered up loose ends and when put together they form a good example of how a neighborhood can start up from lethargy to almost instant activity. Pledges of money, labor, seeds, dirt, trees, shrubs, bulbs, or trucking services have been secured from the citizens. Those spots needing attention have likewise been classified.

The committee, then, acts as an exchange, agreeing to fill in dirt and to plant any weedy, neglected areas when these have been cleared of debris by owners or neighbors. Members of the Lion's club, leaders in the women's club, the city officials, church groups, electric and steam road officers, business men and an oil company in Lockport, have all been called into service.

Of course, the impending anniversary of the community's first settlement a century ago is an activating force. But the methods and the timeliness of this neighborhood movement are worthy of wide attention.

A FRIEND IN NEED
BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Wants Washing Machine.

"If any one has a washing machine to give away I would certainly appreciate having it. I have three children to wash for and I am expecting another this month. My husband is working only two or three days a week and he doesn't earn even enough to pay out expenses. MRS. M. R."

If you are about to invest in a new washing machine your old one would relieve this mother of a great deal of her burden. May she have it?

Offers Household Aids.

"I have a carpet sweeper, dust mop, and a few other articles, all in good condition which should be of use to some one. MRS. F. L."

You'll find the rugs easier to care for and the floors simpler to polish with these household aids. Write me for them if they are not already included in your equipment; please do not telephone.

Deft Application of Rouge Leaves No Glaring High Spots
BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Spotty is a handy word. You can put it to work so often when you're short of adjectives. You can use it on land or sea. On land, one place it comes in particularly useful is in connection with rouged faces. They are so often "spotty." Powder, too, can be spotty. But with rouge usage of the word may be more freely applied.

However, we're not recommending that you strive for the compliment, because it isn't one. If the color in the cheeks is spotty it's bad facial work. Keep the word in mind when you're giving your face its next doing up. And don't let it come out from under the rouge operation spotty.

Rouge produces spottiness because it is not blended carefully over the surface to which it is applied. It's purely a matter of applying the color. It is a question whether paste, liquid or dry rouge is most conducive to the condition we speak of. Dry rouge can be put on easily enough, but so often it is permitted to stay on the surface just as it is applied. It may need a puff kept strictly for the purpose for smoothing down the rough edges so that there are no edges nor perceptible end to the foreign coloring.

With a cream base the paste rouge should be handled with ease and the blending easily accomplished. The liquid calls for quicker disposition of the coloring. But in any event, whatever you use, watch your cheek area for spottiness.

And, speaking of cheek rouging, if you have been an addict to the habit of putting the color beneath the cheek bones and fairly close to the nose, try another way of putting on the color. It may improve you a thousandfold. Start beneath the pupil of the eye. Keep the color this distance removed from the nose. Blend the rouge along the cheek bone, working upward to the corner of the eye, then to the hairline.

With the rouge placed higher on the cheeks like this there is less danger of shadows appearing in the cheeks and close around the nose.

What Do You Say to This Accusation Made By a Reader?
BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Your faith in modern men is touching, Miss Blake, but slightly askew, my dear. Take me. Good looking enough to be popular. Have gone with boys and now with men for years. My mother is a rare peach, with ideals. I've never been hard up for dates.

"Now, your suggestion about having men as friends until they prove they're not fit company, or words to that effect—it is a dangerous and distasteful job. I am a tolerant person, although a lady with morals. I have never bothered to make it a concern of mine how a young man acts when he is not with me, but when I am the recipient of unwelcome attentions, that's something else again.

"I don't pick up with anything, you may be sure. Can't stand a stupid person. Yet how many times have I come home with a man who managed to convey the message that a goodnight kiss, or several of them, was meager fare compared to what might have been expected! He must needs have a petting party—and more. Crude—but I know what I am talking about.

"And I know I am not one of those girls who deliberately attempt to rouse men to the point of such request. You don't need to say there must be something wrong with me. I don't give them the sort of encouragement to sponsor the sort of thing I am trying to put down here in the least crude terms I can manage.

"And I'm not the only girl of my particular species. I am with a group of them—cleaner and more full of fun girls you couldn't find the world over. Yet their story is my story time and again—every so often an experience that is actually rotten and you or any one else would be unjust to presume that we go out with the intention of something of the sort happening to us.

"There are nice 'uns, though, Doris. So I am not a sorehead, because I know some of them and they're grand. But you and a lot of our critics I notice are inclined to give the men a clean slate, bestowing undeserved blame upon us."

Hostess Gown of Soft Silver Lame
BY BETTINA BEDWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Wiener's new sheer lames are one of the textile sensations of the new season. They are as fine as georgette and almost as supple, semi-transparent and printed in the new colors, in indefinite floral patterns—some of them small, some simply enormous. Light colored golds predominate but there are also signs of a silver revival in the near future.

The couturiers are using these beautiful, dreamlike fabrics for afternoon frocks to wear with velvet coats, for tunic blouses to complete the dressy suit, for formal evening frocks, and, of course, for hostess gowns and cocktail pajamas.

The hostess gown sketched is from Philippe et Gaston. It's of silver, gray and blue, sheer lamé. Its slenderizing drapery makes it particularly flattering to the older woman and it would turn the white haired hostess into a perfect picture. Another great advantage it presents is that of being easy to get into, having no fastenings. It just slips on over the head and the round draped yoke forms the sleeves and ties at the point of the decolleté in the back.

Four huge godets lend sweeping fullness to the skirt, which trails a little at either side. Soft shirrings a little below the natural waistline adapt its princess line to the fuller figure. The bodice descends into the skirt in a long point in front, creating an illusion of slimness. The whole gown has that careless Grecian air which continues to be popular in the new Paris fashions.

Making a Good Impression.

The most embarrassing moment I ever had in my life occurred one evening at a dinner party.

I was the guest of a young lady whom I admired very much and naturally wanted to appear at my best. Everything progressed beautifully until a dish of whipped cream was being passed. How that dish got out of my hands, I've never quite figured out; but it did, and fairly flung itself right at the young lady. There was great gobs of whipped cream in the saucer of her coffee cup, in her plate, and all over her silverware.

Fortunately none of it got on her dress. It was an awful sight and my hostess was most gracious in trying to relieve my embarrassment as the maid cleared it away. But since then I cannot look at whipped cream and retain a normal complexion. F. L. D.

Food Talk.

The other day I was asked if kohlrabi was some kind of disease. Perhaps the last two syllables of the name are puzzling. Yet it seems strange that any vegetable so abundantly and inexpensively produced in this latitude should be so little known as is kholrabi.

Just now kohlrabi is at the height of its season. It is even more hardy than turnips and grows on in spite of hot, dry weather, but it is much more delicate if grown rapidly under good soil and moisture conditions.

Kohlrabi will grow to the size of a man's head. When it is this large, however, it is hard, tough, woody and is either lacking in flavor or possesses a disagreeably strong turnipy flavor. The heads are at their best when no larger than a golf ball.

Kohlrabi, a member of the cabbage family, is often described by the botanist as a mutation. It doesn't resemble a cabbage, but looks more like a green turnip growing above the ground. Instead of having the food materials stored in the leaves as in the cabbage, they are deposited in the stem. It is so closely related to cabbage that it will readily cross with all members of the cabbage family, such as cauliflower and Brussel sprouts.

The finest kohlrabi on the market has the leaves attached, is a light green, heavy, solid and crisp. Avoid those that are spongy and light in weight for their size. A fine kohlrabi is almost as crisp and moist as the most turgid of cucumbers.

Kohlrabi is easily cooked. Like cabbage it should be boiled rapidly in an open kettle and in a small amount of water. Only about ten minutes of boiling is necessary if the vegetable is tender. When done there should be little of the cooking water left. This may be drained off or carefully evaporated. Kohlrabi is delicious buttered or with cream, or when cold it can be used in combination with other vegetables like carrots, peas and green beans in salads. Its sweet, nutty flavor also makes it an excellent vegetable served raw. Grated or thinly sliced it makes an exquisite salad resembling cole slaw but with a fine flavor all its own.

The food value of kohlrabi is interesting. It is considerably richer than cabbage in calcium and phosphorus but it contains less iron. It is also a good source of all the vitamins. Kohlrabi is an inexpensive delicacy, a vegetable so excellent that it is unfortunate that there is any reluctance about eating it and learning to prepare it in more ways than one.

CUBS TIE FOR 2D PLACE; BEAT BRAVES, 5 TO 4

Qualifying Tests at Seven Fields.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Seven sections of Chicago will hold qualifying tests this morning at 9 o'clock in THE TRIBUNE'S forward passing and drop kicking championships. Five hundred and two boys will compete. Winners will meet a week from today at Mills stadium in the championships.

All contestants must report on time. The locations of the preliminaries follow:

Washington park, 53d street and South Park way.
Douglas park, 18th street and California avenue.
Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street.
Edgar park, Wrightwood and Kostner.
St. Paul university field.
Loyola university field.

Each group of contestants will be met by a representative of THE TRIBUNE. His decision on all passes and drop kicks will be final. The winner or those tied for first place will enter the championships next Saturday.

Two Age Divisions.

There are two age divisions. Boys 16 years of age and under compete together. The senior group is composed of boys between the ages of 15 and 19. Following are the rules of the tests:

BOYS 14 YEARS AND UNDER.

Forward passing—Five trials from a distance of 15 yards at a stationary target ten feet in diameter.
Drop kicking—Five trials from a distance of 30 yards from the goal posts.

BOYS 15 to 19 INCLUSIVE.

Drop kicking—Five trials from a distance of 35 yards from the goal posts.

The majority of the contestants are the oldest boys eligible for each division. The 13 and 14 year old lads dominate the junior group. Correspondingly the 18 and 19 year old boys form a majority of the senior entries.

Mills stadium and Douglas park have the largest groups of the senior entries.

Accuracy to Count.

THE TRIBUNE sponsored these contests with the purpose of reviving interest in the art of drop kicking. Accuracy is the most important essential in both the passes and the kicking. With more than three weeks' preparation many of the boys are expected to make excellent records in the preliminaries.

The champions will be THE TRIBUNE'S guests at either the Notre Dame-Navy game at South Bend Oct. 11 or the Illinois homecoming game with Northwestern on Oct. 18. All traveling expenses will be paid.

GULDAHL LEADS $10,000 ST. LOUIS OPEN WITH A 66

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl, an 18 year old fee course professional from Dallas, Tex., stole the spotlight of a great par-breaking set in the first round of the $10,000 St. Louis open golf championship at Bellerive Hill today.

Guldahl shot a spectacular 66, an even half dozen strokes under par, and one stroke lower than the totals turned in by two of the outstanding favorites, Tommy Armour of Detroit and Harry Cooper of Chicago, who finished second. Guldahl, a dark horse in the field of 216, bagged six birdies in his triumphant round and held his advantage by stroking even par on the rest of the holes.

Six golfers landed among the 60s, four shot 70, four turned in totals of 71, while seven more equaled perfect par. Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., professional; Abe Espinosa, Chicago, and Eddie Williams of Cleveland were the other trio to land in the sixties, each bagging a 69. Eleven entrants, including Walter Hagen, were unable to finish because of darkness. They will be permitted to play the rest of their round tomorrow.

MAROONS GET A TASTE OF BATTLE

STAGG DEVOTES DAY TO POLISHING HIS PASS ATTACK

College Football

Quantico Marines, 14; John Carroll U., 0.
Geneva, 25; St. Vincent, 0.
West Virginia, 7; Duquesne, 0.
Shurtleff, 13; Springfield Teachers, 0.

Coach A. A. Stagg yesterday sent the University of Chicago squad through a strenuous scrimmage session. The Maroon had one casualty when Bob Wallace, promising sophomore half back, injured his arm.

No running plays were handed out, both teams shooting passes of all lengths and descriptions throughout the entire scrimmage period. Capt. Erret Van Nice raced for a touchdown after a pretty 30 yard run that convinced the Chicago fans he has lost none of his open field running ability.

Coach Stagg made frequent changes in both teams, but these were his starting lineups. On one team Cowley and Wein were at ends, Horwitz and Manelikis, tackles; Toigo and MacKenzie, guards; Diefendorf, center, and Birney, Kanne, Wallace and Stackler in the back field. The other eleven was made up of Thomson and Bellstrom, ends; MacNellie and Cassels, tackles; Hamberg and Gibson, guards; Brislen, center, and Paul Stagg, Van Nice, Temple and Knudson in the back field.

N. U. TO PLAY FROSH

Just how far Northwestern's grid squad has advanced during the first week of practice will be determined this afternoon when Coach Dick Hanley sends them up against the freshmen in a regulation game. The practice will be secret.

Since Sid Burnstein has been lost to the squad for several weeks with an injured knee the Purple coaching staff has been casting about for another half back to fill his place. The search appears to have been ended with the rapid development of Ken Fossler, former Crane Tech star.

Fossler was the outstanding ball carrier in Thursday's two scrimmages and he is to get another chance to do his stuff against the yearlings today. The fight for the two half back assignments has become more complicated. Bruder and Moore, last year's regulars, have a hold in the positions but there are a number of willing youngsters who demand consideration. In addition to Fossler they include Bill Griffin, Bob Halls and Roy Leming of last year's squad and such sophomores as Agate Martin, former New Trier star, Jimmie O'Mara and Phil Seghi. The latter is on the injured list with a sprained ankle.

Jones and Rivals Assemble for National Amateur Golf

Merion, Pa., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The battle smoke is in the air. The fans are gathering. Bobby Jones arrived Wednesday. Harrison Johnston drifted in yesterday. George von Elm, George Voigt, Francis Ouimet—most of the nation's best amateur golfers—have parked their clubs in the locker house of the Merion Cricket club and are playing practice rounds preparatory to the start of the national amateur championship on Monday.

Jones, despite a shoulder with a crick in it, is playing in his usual effortless way. He has been around in 72 and 73, even without any great assistance from his famous putter, "Calamity Jane." Voigt also has been keeping close to that figure in his practice jaunts and if the luck of the draw brings them together in one of the 18 hole matches Robert Tyre Jones may be jobbed out in his fourth major championship of the year.

Met in Semi-Finals.

They met in the semi-finals of the British amateur last spring, and it looked as though Voigt would win. He let down at the 14th hole, when he was 2 up, and handed a victory to the Atlantan.

But George has had his lesson. It isn't likely if the same opportunity is presented him again that he will toss it away. The campaign in England taught him a lot. He played as good golf as any one in the field during the campaign at St. Andrews.

The recent rains have made the course soggy, but if bright weather prevails the fairways will harden up and give drives longer rolls.

Best Caddy for Bobby.

The folks at Merion would like to see Bobby win this championship and set a record that probably never will be equaled. Since the Atlanta wizard is generally conceded to be the emperor of golfdom, great pains were taken in picking out his caddy. Howard Rexford, the best one at the club, was chosen after a lot of heavy thought.

At a luncheon in the Penn Athletic club Jones was presented with an honorary life membership in that organization—a gift in the past only to Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd, and Lieut. Frank Schoble, a hero of the world war.

Little World Series Opens Wednesday at Rochester

The little world series between Louisville, which won the American association championship yesterday, and Rochester, winner of the International league title, will open at Rochester next Wednesday. This was announced by President Thomas J. Hickey of the American association last night.

Ira L. Couch Wins Glen View's 'Twa Days' Golf Meet

Ira L. Couch, golf champion, won Glen View's 17th annual "Twa Days" invitational tournament yesterday with two rounds of 78 for a 156. Considering the golfing conditions this was good golf. A strong wind hoisted many shots into the woods or out of bounds and all suffered alike.

H. W. Bishop of the home club also had a 156, but as he had a handicap, low gross, or the "Laigh" trophy was awarded to Couch. Bishop got the "Lang," or low net trophy with his 156—6—150.

There were prizes of some sort for nearly half of the field. The players were grouped into flights of eight each and the low net man was given a trophy. The winners in each flight were:

First flight—E. H. Burns, Glen View.
Second flight—E. P. Cobb, Glen View.
Third flight—Elmer Rich, Glen View.
Fourth flight—R. J. Bich, Bob o' Link.
Fifth flight—Camp Carry, Glen View.
Sixth flight—Don Riley, Glen View.
Seventh flight—K. L. Nicol, Glen View.
Eighth flight—J. S. Knowlson, Glen View.
Ninth flight—N. W. Bang, Rolling Green.
Tenth flight—J. S. Somerville, Glen View.
Eleventh flight—C. J. Ahearn, Dwight.
Twelfth flight—J. H. Oughton, Dwight.
Thirteenth flight—C. D. Frey, Glen View.

Among the low gross shooters were: K. H. Burns, former Glen View champion, 160; Alden B. Swift, 161; E. P. Cobb, 161; Elmer Rich, 164; Johnny Victor, 165; Don MacMurray, 166; Anthony Haynes, Rockford, 165.

GEHRIG'S FOUR HITS RAISE HIS AVERAGE TO .386

[By the Associated Press.]

Lou Gehrig and Chuck Klein did practically all the hitting for the Big Six yesterday. Gehrig clouted his 40th homer of the year and made three other hits in six trips to the plate, raising his average three points to .386. Klein hit two homers, his 37th and 38th, in four times at bat, increasing his mark by one point and holding third place in the Big Six standing.

The leader, Bill Terry, again dropped below the .400 mark as he failed to get a hit in four attempts and lost two points. Babe Ruth got one hit, but it required six trips, and he lost three points. Babe Herman and Al Simmons had a day of rest. The standing:

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The St. Louis Cardinals moved one step nearer the throne room of the National league by a 7 to 3 triumph over the Phillies today.

Trailing up to the seventh inning because of Chuck Klein's 37th and 38th homers of the season, the Red Birds put on a five run rally against Phil Collins that clinched the victory.

The margin, however, between victory and defeat was slim. Had Pinky Whitney been able to close his hands on Hafey's drive in the seventh with two out and three on the bases, the story of the game might have taken an entirely different hue.

Bases Fill Up.

Fisher, pinch hitting for Haines, led off the inning with a bounder long the first base line which caromed off Hurst's shoulder for a scratch single. Collins hit Douthit with a pitched ball, but Adams forced Fisher at third.

Scoring seemed averted when Frisch lifted an easy fly to Brickell for the second out of the inning. Collins, however, hit Bottomley and the bases were full. Hafey then drove his liner through Whitney.

Tying Run Is Scored.

Douthit raced across the plate with the tying run and Adams followed him across later with the winning counter. Watkins, who had been poison to the Phils all afternoon, then bounced a single off Thompson's shins which pushed Bottomley across with the third run of the inning. Then Mancuso connected with the first ball pitched for a double between Brickell and Friberg which scored Hafey and Watkins.

This ended the scoring for both sides, as the Phillies could do nothing with Grabowski, who had replaced Haines.

During the first six innings it looked as if Chuck Klein would be the hero today, as his two home runs had given the Phillies a 3 to 2 lead.

He clouted his first in the opening frame with two out and Friberg on first base. His second round came in the fourth with the count 2 to 1 in favor of the Phillies.

Watkins Hits Triple.

Watkins, who was the big bertha of the vistors' attack with two singles, a double and a triple, was responsible for the first two counters hung up by Gabby Street's men. The big right fielder tripled with none out in the fourth frame and scored on Mancuso's sacrifice to Brickell. And then in the sixth after Bottomley had doubled this same young man thumped a two bagger to center which scored Smiling Jim.

Haines, who twirled the first six inning with two out and Friberg on in fine fettle, and with the exception of Klein's two homers pitched superbly. Willoughby, who took up Collin's work after the uprising in the seventh, blanked the Cards without a hit in the last two frames. Score:

Hornsby Tells Boston He'll Be Better Player Next Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass.[Sept. 19.—This is the town in which Rogers Hornsby was signed to manage the Braves for three years and didn't, by a matter of two years.

But they're still interested in Rogers here and inasmuch as he made his first appearance of the year at Braves field this afternoon there was a flood of inquiries about his future.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

He told them that he expects to be better in 1931 than he was in 1929, when he played in every game, and in every inning up till the time the Cubs had the pennant packed away by a margin of ten games.

Broken Leg a Blessing.

He told them that after his personal disappointment at being on the injured list has faded he'll probably look upon his broken leg as a blessing in disguise, for the reason that he was forced to give his horned heel a rest that he never would have given it otherwise.

He told them that the reason he had appeared slow in several instances during the few games in which he has played was not due to the present state of his injuries but to the fact that his enforced inactivity caused him to get out of playing condition. There are other things that Rogers told the more intimate of his acquaintances.

For instance, he thinks if the Cardinals win the National league pennant that their particular talents will be ideally opposed to the special talents of the Athletics and that the Cardinals will win the world championship. And Rog isn't one of these "my league yes men," either.

Thinks Hallahan Speedier.

He thinks Bill Hallahan is faster than Lefty Grove and thinks that if the pair get together in the world series it will be one of the best world series contests in years.

He thinks that the greatest problem confronting baseball is the development of pitchers like Grimes, Kremer, Vance, and Mitchell.

"There are several in the American league who might be good examples for these strong-armed youngsters to follow," Rog says; "but I'd rather talk about the league that I know."

Braves Dispute Cubs' Right to Mixup Patent

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19.—All Chicago partisans opined it was refreshing to see Maranville, Welsh, and Berger gather in short right center and permit Gabby Hartnett's pop up to fall for a two base hit, which cost the Braves the ball game. Refreshing because this play has become a specialty with the Cubs and it was beginning to appear that the Cubs had a copyright on this type of playing tragedy.

Those mixup plays rarely happen when players have been playing the same position for some time, and are familiar with the range of each other. Stevie and Farrell let two easy flies drop between them when Farrell started at shortstop several weeks back. Last Monday the Cubs lost a game to Philadelphia because Wilson and Heathcote did it twice, with Heathcote starting right field for the first time in many weeks.

Players always feel sheepish after this type of accident but it is one of the hardest mixups to prevent when the ball is knocked to certain in-between spots. Calling for the ball does little good if two or three players each call for it with equal emphasis.

The only solution, aside from knowledge of each player's range, knowledge which has reached the point of intuition, is for a player outside the play to bawl out the name of the player who should take the ball. And for some psychological reason baseball men long have tried to figure out, the bystanders usually become hypnotized and tongue tied when they see one of those collision plays in the making.

The Cardinals cannot clinch the pennant until Monday, even if the worst happens, and the Cubs close their sad eastern invasion Monday afternoon. Unless the Cubs lose three straight to the Braves they will be back among friends when they get the sad news officially.

14 Will Race in Dearborn Stake Today

Western 2 year olds go into two more skirmishes today in an effort to determine which is the closest rival to Jamestown, eastern champion, which won the Futurity at Belmont a week ago.

The $5,000 added Dearborn handicap at 7 furlongs is to be run at Lincoln Fields and has attracted a band of 14 in the overnight entries. At Lexington ten juveniles, some from the east, are scheduled to fight it out in the Breeders' Futurity, which will be worth around $25,000 to the winner.

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
Schooner	113	R. Ayraud	4-1
Farr	102	H. R. Riley	10-1
Martha Jones	106	W. Johns	8-1
Water Port	102	B. Hanford	30-1
Doris Jean	106	E. James	6-1
Bolling	106	C. Landolt	10-1
*Back Log	118	K. Russell	2-1
Chilly Flight	100	T. Vercher	100-1
Hillsborough	109	J. W. Fryo	50-1
Charmer	112	H. Kaiser	10-1
Gabbo	102	W. Moran	200-1
*Oswego	111	G. De Pese	3-1
†Frigate Bird	112	R. Finnerty	8-1
†Polinco	106	D. Trivett	8-1

*Gallagher and Combs entry. †Camden entry.

In the Breeders' Futurity at Lexington, Mate, owned by A. C. Bostwick and which finished third to Jamestown and Equipoise in the Belmont Futurity, was the overnight favorite. Pennate, Betty Derr, and Battle Sweep were considered the most dangerous outsiders.

Cards Must Win 6 Out of 8 Games to Clinch Flag

St. Louis' Cardinals moved a notch closer to the world series by continuing their successful efforts in the east yesterday. They are 2½ games ahead of the Robins and Cubs, who are tied for second place.

The Cardinals have eight games to play. If they win six neither second place club has a chance to prevent the pennant from going to St. Louis, even if Chicago and Brooklyn both win their seven remaining contests. This would give a final standing like this:

Cardinals	92	62	.597
Cubs	91	63	.591
Robins	91	63	.591

Granting that both the Cubs and Robins are likely to lose two of their seven games, the Cardinals then would only have to play .500 ball to finish under the wire. In that case the final percentage would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cardinals	90	64	.584
Cubs	89	65	.578
Robins	89	65	.578

If the Cardinals should happen to go stale today and lose their double header with the Phillies and the Cubs win from the Braves, Chicago pennant hopes would be somewhat revived. That would leave the Cubs a game behind and make the standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	91	63	.591

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19.—Rabbit Maranville, Wally Berger, and Jimmy Welsh of the Boston Braves, huddled in left center field in the ninth inning of this afternoon's game with the Cubs and held a debate as to who would have the honor of catching Gabby Hartnett's pop fly. The declamation lasted a second too long for Boston purposes, however, and the ball fell for a double. Then up came George Kelly with his third single of the game and Gabby raced home with the run that gave the Cubs a 5 to 4 victory.

Feeling themselves somewhat out of the pennant race when they took the field our boys relaxed for the first time since they took to the road on Aug. 30 and had no difficulty in making four runs in the first two innings. Then the scoreboard man put up some numbers which showed the Cardinals trailing 3 to 0 in the early innings of the game in Philadelphia. The effect on the Cubs was instantaneous. They began to gasp for air and could not trust their knees. Only four men faced Frankhouse in the third inning and only three in each of the following five innings.

Cubs Relax Again.

The scoreboard man revealed that the Cardinals had overtaken the Phillies just as the Cubs went to bat in the ninth. The Cubs relaxed again, and though Gabby's hit was spurious, it was propelled without the customary nervousness, as was Kelly's game winning single which followed.

There was no Brooklyn game and consequently no scores from that quarter to frighten our fellows. So they went into a tie with the Robins for second place almost without knowing it.

The 1929 champions are resolved to stay relaxed tomorrow with the idea of clinching second place at the earliest possible moment. And there is a lingering chance that bandits will catch up with the whole St. Louis team. Then maybe the Cubs would win the pennant by taking all the remaining seven games. Petty for the Cubs and Cantwell for the Braves are the probable pitchers for tomorrow.

Blair doubled to left center to start today's game and scored when English tripled to right. Woody held third while Cuyler tapped to Neun but scored when Chatham was throwing out Wilson, thus giving Hack credit for his 177th run batted in. Maranville threw out Stephenson.

After getting the Braves out in order in the first inning the Cubs came back in the second and got two more runs. Hartnett opened with a single to left and stopped at second on Kelly's single to right. Bell bunted and forced Hartnett at third. Teachout fanned but the bases were full when Blair beat out a roller towards third. English walked, forcing in Kelly. Zachary threw three straight balls to Cuyler then was relieved by Frankhouse, who completed the pass,

FANS FOOLED BY FLAG BEARER; HE REFUSES TO QUIT

Wins Riverdale Purse from Princeton.

BY FRENCH LANE.

But when he suddenly forgot to show a weak heart in the Riverdale purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday he brought on mild heart attacks to most of those in the crowd, for Princeton had been backed almost off the boards in the late rush. The spectators had put Flag Bearer down in their little red books as a notorious quitter.

When the stirring finish came at the end of the six furlongs Flag Bearer, with Jockey C. Landolt in the saddle, was leading Princeton home by a length. Cheers ran third most of the way and finished in that position, never threatening the leaders at any stage.

Quit in Four Other Races.

It was Flag Bearer's fifth start at Lincoln Fields. In his four other engagements he had always been out in front most of the way, but quit in the final strides and never had been able to win.

The crowd expected him to quit again. After leading from the start he headed into the stretch a length in front. Princeton was running second and Cheers was third. This wasn't much of a lead for a weak-hearted fellow like Flag Bearer. To last it out and finish in front he ought to have been leading by a much wider margin, the crowd thought.

Then came a ding dong finish. Flag Bearer showed some of the stamina that has made My Dandy famous. He wouldn't succumb to the drive of Princeton and Cheers. He hung on to the last stride and was running as easily as Princeton and Cheers when the finish came.

Flag Bearer ran his six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 and in the betting paid $17.32 to win, $5.50 to place, and $3.06 to show. Princeton was at $3.44 to place and $2.32 to show. Cheers paid $2.62 to show.

By Mistake Wins.

By Mistake, a full sister of Bubbling Over, won the South Bend purse and did the job quite neatly when she was home two lengths in front of Scotland Wise with ten other 2 year olds trailing.

It was the first race By Mistake had ever won. She was sold recently by Edward R. Bradley to A. Hirshfield, Kansas City attorney. She trailed in the early stages while Andora, Flying Plum, Regal Lady and Cherry May were fighting it out for the lead. She came on the outside in the last furlong and was pulling away at the end, although Scotland Wise was also making a game rally.

There was quite a plunge on By Mistake and she paid $6.92 to win, $6.12 to place and $5.34 to show. Scotland Wise, a 35 to 1 shot, paid $26.58 to place and $22.64 to show. Cherry May's show price was $2.80.

By Mistake won this race as if she might go on to much greater turf deeds and possibly make her big brother, Bubbling Over, proud of her after all.

MAUREEN ORCUTT, HELEN HICKS IN CANADIAN FINALS

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Two New York girls, Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., and Maureen Orcutt of New York City, gained the final round of the Canadian women's open golf championship today. Miss Hicks, the defending champion, shot the most phenomenal golf of her career to eliminate Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, three times Canadian champion, 7 and 6. Miss Orcutt defeaed the steady and consistent Detroit player, Mrs. Harlan Higbie, 5 and 3.

Miss Hicks shot a sensational 35 on the first nine holes, one under men's par for the course of the Laval Sur-le-Lac club. She did not lose a hole on the first nine and turned 7 up on her opponent. She went 8 up at the tenth, lost the eleventh, but halved the 12th to end the match.

The match between Miss Orcutt and Mrs. Higbie was much closer. The Detroit player took a one hole lead at the third, but the New York girl squared it at the fourth. The lead changed hands at every hole until Miss Orcutt rallied strongly to take the eighth and ninth and round the turn 2 up. After the tenth and eleventh holes had been halved, Miss Orcutt won the twelfth, thirteenth, and fifteenth to end the match.

East High of Aurora Grid Team Beats Hyde Pk., 26-6

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—East High of Aurora, using a reserve team for a large part of the game, tonight defeated Hyde Park of Chicago, 26 to 6. The East High line completely outplayed that of the Chicago school and the fast Hyde Park backs had no chance to get started. It was the first night game of the year in Aurora and more than 3,000 attended.

Benton, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—James Marcum, jockey who disappeared from the Lincoln Fields race track on Wednesday with Jockey Paul Neal, was back at riding today but instead of piloting horses down the track, he was riding a tractor on the farm of Neal's father near West Frankfort.

Both Marcum and Neal said they had grown tired of horse racing and decied to quit without giving their employers notice, although they realized that such action would cause their suspension and prevent their riding again.

Losing pitcher—Lyons.

Generosity such as was doled out by the White Sox yesterday is difficult to match, and the Yankees fairly staggered off the field after having run out an 18 to 9 victory to open their final series of the season at Comiskey park.

The game was to have been Ted Lyons' twenty-second victory of the year, but it developed into a hitting orgy that left the New York nine dizzy from circling the bases. Twenty-one Yankee hits tell the story of the pitching of Lyons, Braxton, and Wehde. One of these hits was Lou Gehrig's fortieth homer of the season.

The White Sox attack was late in arriving, but when it did come it amounted to thirteen hits off Roy Sherid and Ken Holloway. Carl Reynolds got his twenty-first circuit drive of the campaign in the ninth.

Barnes Overruns Easy Fly.

The Yankees started their attack in the first inning when, with two out, Lou Gehrig looped an easy fly to right center. Emile Barnes started after it with seemingly good intentions, but drew up some five feet in front of the descending sphere and waited until it had plunked into the dirt. Meanwhile Gehrig had progressed to second and there was nothing to do except award him with a double on a fly that Barnes should have caught with only the least possible exertion.

Things happened rapidly thereafter and before Lyons could be extricated from the barrage, the Yanks had counted six runs with five hits, which included doubles by Gehrig, Cooke and Dickey, a single by Lazzeri and a home run into the left field pavilion by Chapman.

The Yankees scored four more in the second with another collection of five hits off Garland Braxton. They picked up two runs in the third and seventh innings and one in the fifth. Braxton had suffered enough grief when the seventh was over and the throwing assignment then was turned over to Wilbur Wehde, the lad from Dubuque.

Sox Score Four in Seventh.

The Sox made only three hits off Sherid until the seventh, when they asserted themselves to the extent of four runs with as many hits. The Yankees continued in merciless fashion, however, scoring two more runs off Wehde in the eighth and one more—Gehrig's homer in the ninth.

In their half of the last inning the Sox drove Sherid from the mound with five runs and an equal number of hits, one of them a homer by Reynolds, but Ken Holloway came on in time to conclude the contest before dusk.

Ran Scores 3 Knockdowns in Winning Over Merz

Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight, scored three knockdowns in the first round last night in winning a decision over Billy Merz of Defiance, O., in an eight round bout at Jones and Baumrucker park. Ran dropped Merz for counts of nine twice, but had to finish fast to win. Barney Ross of Chicago, and Young Terry of Iowa, lightweights, fought a draw in another eight rounder.

Wrigley Tells His Story of the Cubs; Blames Ill Luck

consulting the experts. That player was O'Doul. I saw him playing with Salt Lake. I was sitting with Bill Lane, the Salt Lake owner. Told him I liked that fellow and wanted him.

"Wrap him up," was my answer.

"Well, the world knows that we didn't keep O'Doul and now he turns up and just about beats us out of a pennant. Anyway, my buy was a good one. I still refer to him as 'My Mr. O'Doul.'

Can't Buy Everything.

"There is one thing about owning a baseball club that I have learned," remarked the Cub chief as he started off on a new angle. "It teaches self-restraint. When I first got into the thing I was out there every day just as I am now and I was for raising hell about everything. If I thought a man loafed running I wanted him fired. I saw one of our fellows srttetch and yawn and remark about not being able to hit a pitcher one day. The man was waiting his turn at bat. I thought that a terrible offense. I had the man released.

"I was that way because I had the idea baseball was just like any other business. Up and going all the time. It's a different business in more ways than one. It's one business in which you can't buy what you want. I once thought you could and was surprised when I learned differently.

Fans Expect Too Much.

"But to get back to the players I wanted sent away because of what I now realize are minor incidents. In those days I was just a fan, not an owner. At least I didn't have the owner viewpoint. I wasn't close to the players. I didn't appreciate they have moods just as anybody else. They can't say on the days in which they are not feeling right that they will go out and play a little golf or something else for relief. They stay in there no matter how they feel. Most of them won't even let an injury keep them out. These are things the critical public doesn't appreciate.

"All of us are too inclined to think a player should do just the things we expect. If a man makes a sensational catch and turns a few somersaults, we think he should do it again. If he fails we find fault. If a grounder takes a bad hop and hits an infielder on the chin we blame him. We don't stop to remember that frequently a man is painfully hurt by such mishaps and yet continues to play."

Won't Discuss Managership.

During one of Wrigley's sprints to the ticker the interviewer let fly the all important question of the visit.

"What about all these rumors regarding the firing of McCarthy? You probably have been asked about them before this. Have you answered any of them?" was the question.

"I've heard them for several weeks, but I can't reply to them," spoke Wrigley. "I am a great admirer of McCarthy and as I said before the team, injuries considered, did the best it could. I will not say McCarthy will be manager next year. Neither will I say he will not be offered a new contract.

"We have no way of knowing what McCarthy might demand in the way of salary. He might ask $100,000 a year. Or maybe McCarthy might not want the job any longer. He might feel that by failing to win a pennant he had placed me in an embarrassing position. Why don't you go down and ask Bill Veeck [president of the Cubs] about it? Whatever he says or does I will second. I regard Veeck's baseball judgement as perfect. He's running the job."

Puts Victory Above Money.

Not being able to think up any more questions and knowing that the man of multitudinous affairs already was an hour behind the time he was scheduled to start for his Lake Geneva estate, we began edging toward the door. But he thought up a few more things to talk about.

Bill Walker Holds Reds to Two Hits; Giants Win, 7-0

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Giants walloped Ray Kolp and Ed Rixey today, while Bill Walker pitched a two hit shutout and won the first game of their final series with the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 0.

Walker had an easy time of it, allowing only a single by Swanson and a double by Cuccinello, while the Giants piled up ten blows, five of them coming in the fourth inning for as many runs. Six walks caused the only trouble for the Giant pitcher. He fanned three.

The one big inning, which drove Kolp from the mound, settled the game for the Giants. Mel Ott completed their triumph in the next inning by hitting a home run.

The victory gained no ground for the Giants as St. Louis and Chicago also won. They remained 5½ games behind the league leading Cardinals with only seven games to play.

PARTISAN BEATS VALENCIENNES IN AQUEDUCT RACE

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The fortune players received a severe jolt in the Picket handicap, the mile feature at Aqueduct today, when Partisan, owned by George D. Widener, beat the odds on favorite, Valenciennes, in the silks of Mrs. John D. Hertz. Glossin, the only other starter, was third.

Valenciennes was regarded by the wise ones as the best bet of the meeting and they supported the filly heavily, but when it came to racing Valenciennes was never dangerous, being outrun from the start.

Partisan jumped away to the lead and Glossin attempted to make a race out of it, but soon stopped and Partisan drew away to win by three lengths, Valenciennes, under wise handling, closed some ground and easily beat Glossin for the place.

The time was 1:39 3-5.

OMAN'S PLUNGES MARK BADGERS' 1ST SCRIMMAGE

Rebholz and Lusby Show Speed on Offense.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Special.] The University of Wisconsin football players received their first taste of scrimmage today when Coach Thistlethwaite gave them forty minutes of the real thing to wind up the afternoon practice session.

Four teams alternated in carrying the ball and playing defense. Most of the work was devoted to line drives and off tackle runs from the new double wing lack formation.

Tony Oman, the silent Finn, was easily the outstanding back, starting fast, driving hard, and recovering two fumbles. Rebholz, Lusby, and Linfor also peeled off some neat runs, and George Carey, veteran end, and Kabat and Bratton, line recruits, showed well in the defense.

GOPHER DECLARED ELIGIBLE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Al Krezowski, sophomore end, today was declared eligible to play with the Minnesota football team this year. He weighs 190 pounds and is better than six feet tall. His status has been in doubt for some time.

Today's work was topped off by a stiff scrimmage that found a number of changes in the first team lineup. Walter Haas, a sophomore, made several spectacular runs through the second team.

BUCKEYES TO PLAY SCRUBS.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Two easy practice sessions were doled out to Ohio State football players today. Emphasis during the afternoon drill was placed on defense. A scrimmage, probably a full game between scrubs and regulars is planned for tomorrow's session.

TENTATIVE TEAM NAMED.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Michigan squad will top its first week of practice with a scrimmage tomorrow afternoon, into which Coach Harry Kipke plans to throw almost all of his crew of 64 men.

Kipke intimated today that a team made of up Hewitt and Daniels, ends; Auer and Draveling, tackles; Hozier and either Grinnell or Samuels, guards; Smith, center; Tessmer, quarter back; Hudson and Heston, halves, and Cox, full back, would line up Saturday against an eleven composed of Ellsworth and Manuel, ends; Gitman and Miller, tackles; Cornwell and Samuels or Grinnell, guards; Morgan, center; Newman quarter back; Eastman and Wheeler, half backs, and Goldsmith, full back.

While lineups omit Capt. Simrall and Morrison, Kipke is saving them. Simrall underwent an operation early in the summer and probably will see little heavy work until he is needed. Morrison is bothered with a lame shoulder and furthermore is just being broken in at center.

KIZER SHIFTS BUTTNER.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Horace Buttner, Purdue guard of the last two seasons, was shifted tentatively to right tackle today, Coach Kizer said that the change was experimental but inasmuch as he has a wealth of guard material and no proven tackles outside of George Van Bibber, there is a possibility that the change may stick for the early part of the season at least.

The Boilermaker forward wall in tonight's scrimmage presented a changed complexion. Jack Christman, sturdy reserve of last season, was moved into Buttner's guard berth, while Miller, Sterns, and Van Bibber retained their normal positions.

HOOSIERS TO MEET FROSH.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Indiana varsity will go up against the freshmen tomorrow in the first practice game of the year. The squad was kept pounding at the tackling dummies today, and punting also was stressed. The kicking has been weak. Johnson, a tackle, joined the squad, making 66 men out for places on the team.

ZUPPKE TESTS NEW MEN.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Bob Zuppke continued to look over his material for the Illini football team and gave several new candidates trials. Hexton and Lander, guards, came in for attention on the first team. Two brothers, Stan and Ack Berman, worked side by side at guard and tackle. Zuppke's choice for a back field still rested in Perrine, Evans and Berry and Robinson. A heavy scrimmage finished the day's workout after signal drills. Tad Jones, former Yale coach, was a visitor at practice.

MANDELL-HERMAN BOUT AT COLISEUM SET FOR SEPT. 26

The Chicago Stadium has relinquished its fight date of Sept. 26 granted by the Illinois athletic commission. As a result James Mullen now stages the Sammy Mandell-Tommy Herman fight on that night at the Coliseum. The bout originally was set for last Wednesday. Mandell signed a contract yesterday. The match is to eight rounds.

Carideo Still Best of Kickers at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—With the opening scrimmage of the season scheduled for tomorrow against the freshmen, Notre Dame's varsity candidates had a day of comparative rest today.

Physical work was light, the drill largely consisting of returning kickoffs and practice on field goals and points after touchdown. Frank Carideo, quarter back; Mahoney, a sophomore end who may be seen with the shock troops, and Marty Brill, regular right half, did the kicking off.

Parker Back's 80 Yard Run Ties Kankakee

Parker High, 1929 south section champion of the City league, and Kankakee High battled to a 6 to 6 tie on the latter's gridiron last night. All of the scoring was done in the last five minutes. Kankakee was stopped on the Parker one yard line in the second quarter. With five minutes to play, Sharkey of Kankakee threw an 18 yard pass to Doman, who ran 20 yards for a touchdown. Two minutes of play remained when Bob Harper, Parker quarter back, broke through the Kankakee line and sprinted 80 yards to tie the score. Lineup:

PARKER (6).		KANKAKEE (6).

The Wheaton High football team opened its new stadium, Grange field, before a crowd of 3,500 last night with a 19 to 7 victory over Downers Grove. Pat Thompson, Ed Cassassa and Owen Sites scored the Wheaton touchdowns, while Broeker tallied for the losers. Downers Grove lights defeated Wheaton, 2 to 0.

Tulane to Have Strong Line, Green Backs

New Orleans, La., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The question of whether a football team can win games with a strong line and a green backfield must be answered this season by Tulane university, which plays Northwestern at Evanston on Oct. 4. With a single exception, the same stout line that carried Tulane through last season undefeated has returned, but all of the brilliant varsity backs have passed out of school.

Last year's substitutes, Dawson, Hugh Whatley, Glover, Massey, and Magnum, and a newcomer, Nollie Felts, are being shaped by the coaches for the back field, but they stand up poorly in the shoes of Bill Banker, Ike Armstrong, Sefuws, and Baumbach. Banker and Armstrong always could be counted on to put the punch into the team but this year that force must come from the line if it comes from anywhere.

Tulane supporters can take heart when they look at the line. There are the two great ends, Holland and Dalrymple; the powerful center, "Preacher" Roberts, captain; the strong guards, Bodenger and McCormick, and one of the crusading tackles, McCanse. Rucker is missed at the other tackle post, but there are promising reserves on hand for the job.

While Tulane has lost its varsity backs, it has gained in reserve strength and good replacement material will be available for all positions. Nothing but plain luck carried Tulane through last season with its thin reserve force.

Cubs Defeat Braves to Tie for 2d Place

forcing in Bell. Wilson then filed to Welsh.

In the third and fourth innings the Braves took over the scoring phase, but were considerate enough to produce only one run per installment. Maguire launched the third with a triple to center and scored while English was throwing out Frankhouse. Neun singled to left, but was out, Stevie to Blair, when he tried to reach second. Maranville popped to English.

In the fourth the damage was done after two were out. English threw out Clark and Berger, but Welsh and Chatham walked. Spohrer doubled to right, scoring Welsh, Chatham stopping at third. English threw out Maguire. After the third inning only three batsmen faced Frankhouse per inning until the ninth, but in the seventh the Braves tied the score and drove Teachout to cover.

After English had thrown out Frankhouse, Neun singled to right and stopped at third when Maranville singled to left. The pair scored when Clark doubled to center. Blake came in to pitch and gave Berger a more or less intentional pass, then Welsh filed to Cuyler and Chatham popped to Kelly.

Even after Hartnett and Kelly had put over the winning run the Cubs had something of a fright, for Clark singled with one out in the ninth and proceeded to second on Stevie's error. English made a nice stop to throw out Berger and Clark died on third when Blair threw out Welsh.

High Priced Hand Made Models Reproduced by Regal for $6.60

ALLEN & BRIDGE LONDON — BARTLEY & SONS LONDON — N. GRECO PARIS

THE Master Bootmakers of the World actually made by hand these six Original Models for the most prominent and best dressed men in London, Paris and New York.

We had access to their Customer's Book where everybody who purchased a pair of shoes wrote his name and address and the Bootmaker filled in a detailed description of Last, Leather, Pattern, Height of Heel, Weight of Sole—even the design on the Tip or Toe Cap.

This information was invaluable. We could not issue a summons and have this Titled List appear before us and cross-question them on Shoe Styles, but an analysis of the Customer's Book of these Famous Bootmakers, supplied us with all the information we wanted.

They gave us this inside information because we have been very good customers for several years. When we select a Shoe, we buy 42 pairs of each Style, so that we can show you the Original hand-made model and the $6.60 Regal Reproduction side by side, in every Regal Store.

Now don't forget, these Master Bootmaker's hand-sewed models were made of the finest Leathers, regardless of cost, and the Price was an incidental item to their customers.

JAMES ALLAN EDINBURGH — G. W. BUNTING, LTD. LONDON — ANTON NIHLEEN NEW YORK

But this year PRICE is a very important factor to our Customers. And we consider it an achievement in American Shoe Manufacture, to reproduce these expensive hand made models in our factory for $6.60.

When a shoe is made of Martin's of Glasgow Scotch Grain, there is no way to reproduce it except to use the identical Leather. So we sent our Representative to Scotland, to see Mr. Martin personally, and placed the largest order for this expensive leather that he had ever received.

As a matter of fact, with one exception, we used the same identical tannage in the Upper Leather in every Regal Reproduction, that the Custom Bootmaker used in the Original Model. In this one exception, our Leather Buyer advised us that the American Tannage was better than the Imported Leather, and strange as it may seem, it cost us more.

But there isn't any secret about it. I think it is safe to say we sew 1,000 pairs in our factory by machine to every one pair these Custom Bootmakers sew by hand. We have 84 stores located in all the principal cities of the United States and they have one shop in London, Paris or New York. It's the purchasing power of a National Institution. It's the Volume that makes this Value possible.

WOMAN TAKES HER OWN LIFE IN LOOP HOTEL

Another Swallows Poison in Taxicab.

A blonde nursemaid committed suicide in her room in the Hotel La Salle yesterday afternoon by slashing her left wrist with a razor. At the time her body was found a wife swallowed poison in a taxicab to win the sympathy of her husband, by whom she had been reprimanded for attending a drinking party.

An employé of the hotel found the body of the maid. She lay in a bathtub submerged by water deeply stained with blood. Coroner Herman N Bundesen declared that she had apparently cut herself after filling the tub and expressed the opinion that she had been dead several hours.

Lost Several Positions.

Identification was made from the hotel register and an engraved watch. The woman was Miss Marie Dunker, 30 years old. Police learned that she had lost several positions as a nursemaid because she was subject to fainting spells. She had not been employed for several weeks.

A note which she left read: "Please do not call the police and not the press. I wanted this to be strictly private." A letter from a sweetheart in Norway, translated by the police, led them to fix the motive as despondency over the fact that she could not raise money for her return to her home in that country.

Woman Found in Cab.

The wife is Mrs. Ethel Vacin, 28 years old, 4076 West 26th street. She was found unconscious on the floor of the taxicab when the driver stopped at the destination she had given from her home, the Chicago Temple building.

Mrs. Vacin was taken to the Iroquois hospital and later to the West Side hospital, where it was said she will recover. When she was revived she said that she had taken fifty tablets.

Her husband, Dr. Milo Vacin, who was notified by the police, said that his wife took the poison to win his sympathy after he had censured her for attending a party against his wishes. According to the police, Dr. Vacin said this was the second attempt at suicide by his wife following a quarrel over her attendance at parties against his wishes.

DAN SULLY, ONCE NOTED PLUNGER, DIES IN ECLIPSE

Made and Lost Millions in Wall Street.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Daniel Sully, one of the most spectacular plungers Wall street ever has seen, died today in Beverly Hills, Cal., in comparative obscurity.

Sully twenty odd years ago, was a cotton operative, who stunned the market with his audacious deals. He gained international fame when he predicted a crop of less than 10,000,000 bales against the judgment of the cotton exchange, and was supported later by the government report.

He made and lost millions in single deals; he cornered the cotton market, won millions, and lost them all when he hung on too long.

Mr. Sully was born in Providence, R. I., March 9, 1861, and prepared for Yale at the Norwich free academy. But he did not matriculate at the university and went from school into business. He married Miss Emma Frances Thompson, daughter of Col. David M. Thompson, manager of the D. B. & R. Knight Spinning mills.

Cotton His Specialty.

In the spring of 1903 he came into prominence as a fellow bull with Theodore Price, who had up to that time dominated the cotton market. Despite the fact that Price was a strong bull and noted for his nerve, he hesitated to follow cotton up above 9 cents and dropped out of the speculation whirl that he had himself been instrumental in starting.

It was at this point that Sully took the market into his own hands. For the next year he determined the price of cotton.

When the Bottom Fell Out.

So great was the popular participation in the bull movement that the market carried itself. In the midst of the boom Mr. Sully cashed in with a modest fortune and went abroad with his family.

When he returned he found the speculative craze still rampant and it was then that he began a new campaign. The bottom fell out of the market. When his failure was announced from the cotton exchange rostrum an hour before closing time on March 18, 1904, a wild panic followed. The avalanche of selling brought prices down 260 points for July delivery and 240 points for May delivery—declines respectively of $13 and $12 a bale.

When the market closed the 300,000 bales of cotton held by the Sully pool had shrunk in value from $22,800,000 to $19,200,000. Mr. Sully's liabilities were finally fixed at about $3,000,000 and settlement was made at 50 cents on the dollar.

SLAYER RETURNS TO SCENE OF CRIME; CAUGHT

In August, 1929, Victor Guttierrez, 24 years old, a Mexican, was shot to death at Harrison and Halsted streets. At the time Sergt. Joseph Haksa, investigating the killing, had an idea that Guttierrez's supposedly bosom friend, Clemente Segura, 25, also a Mexican, of 721 Congress street, knew something about it. But he couldn't find Segura.

Last night Sergt. Haksa, strolling near Harrison and Halsted streets, spied a skulking figure nearby. After a glance at a photograph he had carried in his pockets since Gutierrez was killed, the sergeant seized the loitering man.

"You're Clemente Segura and you killed your friend, Victor Guitterrez," announced the sergeant to his prisoner.

"Yeah. That's me and I did it," the prisoner, none other than Segura, admitted.

"He stole my wife and then mocked me when I demanded her back," explained Segura.

73 YEAR OLD PRINCESS WEDS PRINCE OF 41, JILTED BY MRS. COREY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A royal romance which has been intriguing half Europe culminated today in the marriage at the registry office here of Princess Marie Charlotte Constance de Broglie and Prince Louis Ferdinand d'Orleans, Bourbon cousin of King Alfonso of Spain. The prince claimed he had been fond of the princess 20 years.

The princess is 73 years old and very wealthy, and when it was announced some time ago that she intended to marry the 41 year old prince her family did everything in their power to prevent the match. The action they took in the French courts to restrain the princess from managing her own affairs failed. In Spain, France, and Italy it was impossible for the prince to marry without his parents' consent, and as he failed to win his father over to the match the pair came to England for today's marriage.

Some years ago the prince was expelled from France for being involved in an unsavory underworld scandal, and King Alfonso of Spain deprived him of his rank as a grandee of Spain and all honors and dignities. He was once engaged to Mrs. Mabel Gilman Corey, divorced actress wife of a Pittsburgh steel man, but the engagement was broken off in a public statement by Mrs. Corey on June 26, 1929.

Revokes Driving Rights of Four Evanston Motorists

Evanston's campaign for safer automobile driving bore fruit yesterday when Secretary of State William J. Stratton, acting on request of Frank Kreml, head of the Evanston bureau of accident prevention, revoked the driving privileges of four motorists for three months. The four are William Cook, 1020 Dempster street; William Gash, 1919 Wesley avenue; Carl Brown, Negro, 1865 East Railroad avenue, and George W. Fargo, 2728 West Railroad avenue. The men had been convicted two or more times of traffic violations.

TRAIN KILLS MICHIGAN MAN.

LLOYD GEORGE TO SUPPORT BRITISH CABINET 2 YEARS

Labor Will Adopt His Jobless Cure.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The cabinet today concluded the last of a series of three day meetings at which its world, domestic and foreign politics were discussed and plans outlined for the new session of parliament which begins Oct. 28.

The Labor party will face parliament in fine fettle, it was said, since it has received assurances from David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, that he will keep Labor in power for the next two years and coöperate in handling the Indian and Egyptian troubles.

Will Coöperate on Jobless.

In return the Labor party has agreed to adopt most of his plan for the relief of unemployment and to let him take a fair share of the credit.

How serious an effect the Indian situation has had on British trade is shown in the fact laid before the cabinet that unless the Indian boycott is withdrawn 95 per cent of the cotton mills still working in Lancashire will have to shut down before winter.

Fear Upset in Germany.

In foreign affairs the government's chief worry now seems to be the future of Germany. The laborites have received a severe jolt by the unexpected strength displayed by the Hitlerites, and they fear that Adolf Hitler may shortly obtain enough power to upset the peace of Europe.

The British ambassador to Berlin has been asked to report on the situation and on what coöperation for the maintenance of peace can be expected from the German Fascists.

Mrs. Larry Woltz, Wife of Sports Writer, Found Dead

An overdose of sleeping potion is believed to have caused the death yesterday of Mrs. Phoebe Woltz, 45 years old, 420 Fullerton parkway, wife of Larry Woltz, former newspaper sports writer. Mr. Woltz, on entering his wife's room, found her dead in bed, an empty vial on the floor. He told the Sheffield avenue police that his wife had been injured nine months ago and had suffered from insomnia, for which she had been taking sedatives.

ANNA WHEELER, WIDOW OF PHONE EXECUTIVE, DIES

Mrs. Anna Holt Wheeler, widow of Arthur Dana Wheeler, president of the old Chicago Telephone company, died of heart disease at her home, 507 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest, late last night. Gordon B. Wheeler of Hinsdale, a son; Mrs. Lillian Wheeler Tyner of Los Angeles, a daughter, and Miss Ellen Holt, a sister, were at the bedside.

Mrs. Wheeler was 70 years old and prominent in north shore and Chicago society. She was actively identified for many years with the Fourth Presbyterian church here, and was a member of several exclusive clubs, among them the Fortnightly and Society clubs. Mrs. Wheeler maintained a town home at 25 East Delaware place during the last few years after she had given up the old town residence at 22 Bellevue place.

Funeral arrangements will probably be announced today. It is expected that Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor emeritus of the Fourth Presbyterian church, will officiate at the services.

A.T.&T. ABSORBS ANOTHER LARGE CHICAGO FIRM

Western Electric Gets Teletype Co.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, greatest of American corporations, has absorbed another Chicago industrial concern. It has purchased the Teletype corporation, which has a plant on the north side and manufactures printing telegraph equipment. The Teletype corporation will be operated as a division of the Western Electric company, a subsidiary of American Telephone.

The purchase becomes effective Oct. 1 and involves an exchange of 150,000 shares of American Telephone common stock for the same number of Teletype shares. While the deal represents an exchange of stock with a par value of $15,000,000, on the basis of yesterday's closing market price of $310 a share for American Telephone stock the Teletype stockholders are receiving the equivalent of $31,000,000.

Has Rapid Growth.

Sterling Morton, 179 Lake Shore drive, is president of the Teletype corporation, which has expanded rapidly in recent years. The present concern was formed through the consolidation of two companies owning patents on the apparatus, which was invented around twenty years ago. Edward Kleinschmidt and Harold Krum are vice presidents of the corporation.

The machines developed are similar in appearance to the ordinary typewriter, but have electrical connections and equipment which enable the operator, sitting at a central keyboard, to send the same message simultaneously to any number of points where the machines automatically reproduce the typewritten message.

It is in this manner that an operator at the central Chicago police headquarters sends out crime flashes to nearly two score outlying precincts at the same time. All are equipped with the teletype, which has often proved valuable through the prompt circulation of information.

The Bell system, which is controlled by American Telephone, has been for a number of years the best customer of the Teletype corporation, although it has sold increasing amounts of apparatus to the Western Union Telegraph and Postal Telegraph-Cable companies. These companies, in turn, have installed the telegraph printer machines in the offices of large telegraph users, who are enabled to send directly their own messages over the lines of the telegraph systems.

Purchase "Desirable."

The Bell system has vied with the telegraph companies by giving telephone typewriter service over its leased wires and has more than 10,000 machines now in service for press associations, business houses, and brokers, police departments, airways, and other organizations. The Bell system also uses the apparatus for its own business, with more than 500,000 miles of circuits affected, and because its future needs will require a larger proportion of the Teletype corporation's production the announcement of the purchase stated that "it seemed desirable to acquire Teletype in order to realize the maximum of progress and economy through the complete coördination of research, development, and manufacture." However, the Teletype apparatus will continue to be available to the telegraph companies.

Business Outlook.

Business and industry have continued their recent gradual improvement this week, according to the mercantile reviews. However, nothing more than a fair seasonal pickup is predicted.

"Basic industrial activity is increasing slowly, building projects are somewhat more active, primary distribution and general trade are showing their seasonal expansion, commodity prices are definitely settling into stability and preparing for an upturn as forward buying becomes more active," the Business Week says. "There is no longer any doubt that the recession level of the depression was reached some time in August. The only question now is as to the speed, vigor and permanence of the recovery during the remainder of the year.

"There is warrant for the statement that some progress in the right direction has been achieved since the upturn in seasons," Dun's review says. "The more favorable trend of the stronger sentiment are not denied by the unsatisfactory aspects which still prevail. One of the significant features of the current week was the accumulating evidence of a revived and expanding inquiry and demand for some raw materials, based largely on the fact that prices for these commodities are at exceptionally attractive levels.

"Trade reports this week and a number of recent advices of a continued moderate increase in fall purchasing with, however, mention that the return of warm weather in various areas has tended to retard both wholesale and retail buying."

Heavy Foreign Buying of Copper Attends Price Cut

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19—Coincident with the lowering of the export price of copper to 10.50 cents a pound, announced this morning by Copper Exports, Inc., there was a heavy increase in buying of the metal for foreign accounts. The new price for export sales is ¼ of a cent below the previous price and was established for the purpose of bringing quotations here in line with the domestic cost.

New Trend in Tire Retailing Is Discussed

BY SCRUTATOR.

What's happening in the tire business today has elements of interest to the whole retailing field. Distribution of these essential articles has been accomplished in the past through a variety of channels, but the announced determination of the largest oil companies to sell them, along with motor fuel and oil, has brought protests, sometimes organized, from tire dealers.

Conditions are not good in the tire business. They are little short of chaotic in the rubber trade as a whole. Rubber prices are near 3 cents a pound, less than half the quotation early in the year. Nowadays the cost of the rubber in the ordinary tire is only 15 per cent of the retail price of the finished article. Rubber sells, according to some authorities, at 6 cents less than anybody can produce it for, and 11 cents under general production cost.

Tire making companies, this year at least, are not prosperous. Three large ones have announced that salaries of their employés have been cut. Another is in the hands of creditors. Definite data on tire dealing retailers are lacking, but information at hand indicates they are not doing well.

More Wear Out of Tires.

Consumption of tires is off this year, although the automobiles to which they are affixed are being driven more than they were in previous years. The gasoline statistics uphold that view. An economy wave that causes autoists to hold back on tire purchases but doesn't halt their driving marks a nice point in the study of the depression idea.

Yet the conditions probably are favorable for the entrance of new factors in distribution. In manufacturing and in farming, in fact, in all goods producing activities, it is prosperity that induces the new elements to come in. Distribution methods change, seemingly, with rapidity when it is demonstrated through adversity that the old ones are outmoded.

This observation could easily be applied too broadly. Still, it might be shown that the highly organized chain stores have been most successful in the retail lines where in past years mercantile efficiency was at a low ebb, notably in food. Chains, department stores, and mail order houses have not eliminated the independent. He still sells more than 60 per cent of the retail goods Americans buy, mostly because he has learned to combat the chain store man with his own weapons.

Discuss Motives.

In the entrance of the oil companies into tire dealings may be seen their desire to integrate service to the motorist as they have integrated the the production and distribution of oil. As a matter of logic, tires and gasoline would seem to belong at the same service station. It is conceivable that the oil companies may not make a success of their venture. Perhaps they are only following the principle of trying to get all they can in new ways out of a distribution system designed for a specific purpose.

That tendency is marked. Some large chain groceries have added meat to their stocks. Refrigerators and radios are another combination, with some automobile dealers handling all three. Much less than half the furniture dealers are strictly that. They sell many other things. Some cigar chains are putting in soda fountains. If there has been any big change in retailing in the last year, it has been this getting away from strict specilization.

DUNLAP SEES LOWEST CORN CROP IN 29 YRS.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A 2,000,000,000 bushel corn crop, the lowest in 29 years, was estimated for this year by R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, who was here yesterday for a conference with heads of the department's office here.

R. W. DUNLAP.
[Harris & Ewing Pho.]

This yield, while higher than predicted during the last stages of the drought, is about one million bushels below the normal national corn crop, Dunlap said.

The agricultural official said recent general rains may save the late corn crop, provided no early frost occurs. Middle west farmers, he said, are affected particularly by the drought since it has caused losses coming after the failure of certain crops in 1929 and 1928, making the cumulative losses almost ruinous in many instances.

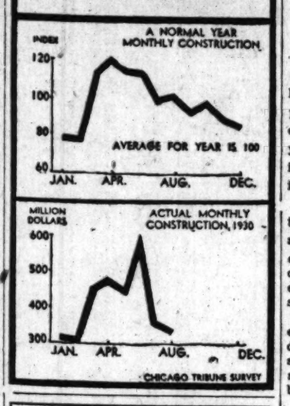
RAILROAD NOTES

The average speed of freight trains in July was the highest for any July on record, amounting to an average of 13.9 miles per hour, according to the bureau of railway economics. This represents the average per hour for all freight trains between terminals, including yard and road delays, no matter from what cause. The average speed for the month was an increase of five tenths of one mile above that for July, 1929.

During the week ended September 14 the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad handled 6,985 revenue freight cars as against 5,865 in the previous week and 9,591 in the same week last year.

The interstate commerce commission has set Oct. 10 as the date for the hearing of oral arguments on its complaint against the Pennsylvania railroad charging violation of the anti-trust laws in acquiring the stock of the Wabash and Lehigh Valley railroads.

The Seasonal Trend in Building Is Down in the Last Quarter



FREIGHT SHIPMENTS VIA LAKE STEAMER ARE BEING REVIVED

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The old days of freight handling on Lake Michigan have come back, in spite of the wide concrete roads, fast and cheap motor truck transportation, and long lines of refrigerator railroad cars.

The return to popularity of lake steamers as a means of transporting the fruit belt's tremendous crop to the great Chicago market is all the more surprising because of its suddenness. Thursday night the Goodrich steamer City of Saugatuck took 25,000 packages of fruit, in addition to a large general cargo. Because of lack of addition cargo space the steamer could not take all the fruit.

The night before 20,000 packages, and Tuesday night 15,000. The Friday market is always light, and about 15,000 packages went by boat. The S. S. City of Saugatuck is alternating on the Benton Harbor-Chicago run with the S. S. Bainbridge, a much smaller vessel, during the rush season.

H. D. Arnold, general agent, said the increased business was due to the ability of the boat line to handle grapes and apples rapidly and at a low freight rate. That smaller packets, motor trucks, and the railroads also are carrying huge grape shipments.

"Another important observation is the steady increase in general cargoes now being carried," Mr. Arnold said. "There has been a steady and marked increase in general merchandise freight in the last two months. The increase is becoming more significant every day and is proof of improving economic conditions. The fact that more merchandise is moving is evidence that merchants are renewing their stocks and business generally is taking on new life."

Scenes at the central docks in the last few days have recalled the fruit harvest season of two decades ago, when hundreds of covered wagons loaded with fruit, clanked through the streets on their way to the steamship docks and gangs of stevedores transferred the loads from wagon to vessel.

GASOLINE PRICE WAR IN DETROIT GETS IN COURT

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Detroit's gasoline price war today brought a suit in federal court asking that five national distributors be barred from the state for violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws, the Clayton act, and the statutes of Michigan.

The suit was filed by counsel for ten independent dealers who charged that the five distributors are conspiring to sell gasoline below cost in an effort to drive the independents out of business. The defendants are the White Star Refining company of Delaware; the Sinclair Refining company of Maine; the Standard Oil company of Indiana; the Shell Petroleum company of Delaware, and the Sun Oil company of New Jersey.

In addition to a ruling that the companies have forfeited their right to do business in the state and an injunction restraining them from continuing the price cutting policy, the independents ask damages.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Associated G. and E.

Scattered investment buying is probably being attracted to Associated Gas and Electric A around its current level, which represents almost a two years' low. Although earnings for the current year may be lower than in 1929, in view of business conditions generally, the corporation should be able to cover its cash dividend by a fair margin. In 1929 it earned $3.65 a share, against $4.31 in 1928.

Now at 7—Once Was 23.

Eisler Electric has failed to declare its dividend. The stock, it will be recalled, was given a rather spectacular spurt earlier in the year at the expense of the public. It is now around 7, once it was 23.

Asset Value Increases.

Although National Aviation lost $1,747,000 in the first six months, asset value of its stock increased to $14.05 a share, against $11.50 a share at the close of 1929.

Republic Steel.

Republic Steel corporation is said to be considering some new financing which will probably take the form of a bond or debenture issue. Directors meet next Tuesday for dividend action but it is not believed that the question of financing will be taken up at that time. An annual rate of $4 was initiated last spring on the stock following the organization of the company. Unofficial reports current yesterday said that directors have decided to omit the quarterly payment of $1.

Majestic Is Again Target in Weak Mart

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Sporadic strength, which developed late in the day helped a sorely depressed market on the Chicago exchange put up a better closing front yesterday, but fell far short of repairing the damage which was done early in the day.

Some folks who continually favor the long side found a mite of encouragement in the late rally. But it is equally true that many traders recently bullish had contributed to the early downfall by casting favorite issues on the sea of liquidation.

Yesterday's market was the most eventful chapter to date in a week of declining prices. During the morning stocks were offered right and left and sponsors were forced to take large blocks to steady their issues.

Trading Is Active.

Majestic Household proved the most vulnerable target, tumbling to a new low of 18¼ before the recovery set in. It was the first time that the issue had been forced below 25, at which it was offered last spring. At the opening a block of 3,000 shares was sold a few points below the previous close, and until it touched its low the issue was actively traded in at declining prices. More than 75,000 shares of the stock was exchanged. The last transaction was made at 20, off 6 points from Thursday's final sale.

After dropping to its record low of 6¾ established earlier in the week, Grigsby recovered to 7¼. Throughout the day the issue sold below its previous closing price of 8.

Among the specialties losses of a point or more were sustained by Electric Household, General Theaters, and Kalamazoo Stove.

An outstanding exception to the general trend was furnished by Pines Winterfront, which moved ahead 3½ points following announcement that the company had been awarded a favorable decision in a patent suit. The federal court at Minneapolis upheld the Furber patent of the company and entered an order for injunction giving the Chrysler corporation until Oct. 15 to discontinue the sale of automobile radiator shutters covered by the Furber patent.

Trust Shares Steady.

Investment trust shares displayed a fairly steady tone. Burnham Trading "A" was an exception, selling off moderately because of weakness in some of the shares in which it has substantial holdings. Chicago corporation and Continental Chicago preferred stocks were unchanged.

Among the utilities losses ranged up to 6 points. Middle West and Cities Service lost only a fraction each, but Insull Utility shed 2¼ and Edison fell 6¾. Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line was easier following announcement of the acquisition of a half interest in operating properties by the Columbia Gas interests.

FRAUDULENT USE OF WRIGLEY NAME CHARGED IN SUIT

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A temporary injunction restraining the Wrigley Pharmaceutical company, Inc., and its officers from further stock dealings was issued today in Brooklyn Supreme court.

Deputy Attorney General Giunta, who sought the injunction, charged the officers of the company with fraudulently availing themselves of "the trademark and good name of William Wrigley Jr.," head of the William Wrigley Jr. company, Chicago chewing gum manufacturers. Thousands of persons, Giunta said, had purchased stock in the company on the assumption that the head of the gum company was connected with it.

The concern's main office is in Atlantic City, N. J., the deputy said, and salesmen had sold approximately $3,000,00 worth of its stock at $1.00 a share since it was incorporated in 1920 under the laws of Delaware. He said the company had been enjoined from doing business in New Jersey and has never had a license to sell stock in New York state.

BUSINESS GAINS, SAYS FEDERAL WEEKLY REPORT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Increased business activity last week was noted by the department of commerce today in its weekly review of domestic business conditions.

"Business activity during the week ended Sept. 13, 1930, as measured by bank debits, outside New York City, registered an increase of 6 per cent over the preceding period, but declined from the corresponding week in 1929," said the department. "Bank loans and discounts of federal reserve member banks, while recording only a fractional change from a week ago, declined from the week ended Sept. 14, 1929. The average price for representative stocks, although increasing over the previous week, were lower than last year.

"For the week ended Sept. 6 increases occurred in the receipts of wheat and cattle at primary markets over the preceding period, while the activity of steel mills, bituminous coal production, freight car loadings, and the value of building contracts awarded declined."

Egg Futures Break One Cent Per Doz. in New York

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Egg futures broke a cent a dozen today on the New York Mercantile exchange clearing house, continuing a decline which in the past two weeks has carried prices down several cents. Sales aggregated 214 cars, or about 21,000,000 eggs, of refrigerator firsts for November delivery at 25@25½c, and 51 cars of about 7,500,000 eggs, for December delivery at 25¾@25¼c. Wholesalers said that the decline is unprecedented for this season, when the market usually advances because of a diminishing supply.

MIDDLE WEST'S STEEL DEMAND GROWS: EATON

Says Bethlehem Is "Poorly Located."

Youngstown, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton's pronounced views that the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with Bethlehem Steel corporation was economically unsound on the theory that Bethlehem's plants are poorly located brought on an enlivened exchange of questions and answers when the financier was recalled for cross-examination today. Newton D. Baker of defense counsel resumed his attack upon Eaton's credibility as a witness in the suit brought by the Cleveland capitalist's interests to enjoin the merger.

[P. & A. Photo.]

It started when Eaton made the statement that "with all due respect to the able men who run the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company" he thought they had missed the significance of what he described as Bethlehem's poor position in regard to freight rates.

After a lengthy exchange in which witnesses disagreed Mr. Baker brought up the question of Sheet and Tube's reputation in the pipe business. Eaton said it was excellent.

Transfers Affections.

Baker next spoke about the witness being in the pipe business, referring to the Republic Steel corporation.

"Hold on Mr. Baker," Eaton said, with a shake of his finger. "I want you to know that I am a director and executive committee member of Sheet and Tube. My interests are in that company."

"But you were the architect of Republic?" Baker said.

"I want you to know that my immediate affections have been transferred to Sheet and Tube," the witness answered.

Eaton testified that a merger of Youngstown with Inland Steel of Chicago would have been far more advantageous. He declared that Bethlehem's plants as a whole are poorly located and its costs therefore higher. He said its markets are centered in the east where demand shows but a slight increase, while the demand in the middle west and far west is increasing by "leaps and bounds."

Baker Cites Figures.

He declared he had sought information from President Frank Purnell of Youngstown with regard to Bethlehem's Buffalo and Lackawanna plants and was told it was not available.

Baker, admitting disagreement on what he said was an argumentative question and assuming that the handicaps outlined by Eaton were correct presented figures purporting to show that Bethlehem had increased its plant investment 45.2 per cent and its earnings 259 per cent from 1925 to 1929 while Youngstown's plant investment was increased 52.8 per cent and its earnings 88 per cent.

Eaton replied that he did not believe that meant much in this discussion.

Thinks They Are Competent.

Asked if he did not think that Sheet and Tube officials such as Purnell and J. A. Campbell, chairman of the board, were competent to study and recognize the freight situation, Eaton replied:

"I think they are competent but they missed an important point." This point, he explained was that Youngstown is in a much more favorable position than Bethlehem.

Eaton emphasized that he did not want any one to ge the impression that he cast reflections on the ability of Sheet and Tube executives.

"They don't make them better anywhere on earth," he said.

German Bonds Submerged in Selling Wave

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Uncertainty over the political situation in Germany brought a fresh wave of liquidation on foreign obligations in the listed bond market today, and raised the level of activity to the highest point in two months. Sales totaled $10,453,000, the best since July 11.

In large turnovers, German issues declined sharply, some to new lows for the year. The reactionary trend unsettled the whole list of foreign bonds. The immediate cause of the selling was a wild rumor that Fascists contemplated seizing the German government and while Berlin reported that the rumor had no foundation in fact, the liquidation did not diminish.

More than a dozen German issues lost a point or more, and other European issues reacted in sympathy, to a lesser degree. German International 5½s, offered last spring, became the most active bond on the exchange, dropping nearly 3 points, and closing 2¼ net lower, a new bottom for the year. Kreuger & Toll warrant 5s, the obligation of the Swedish Match trust which has extensive interests in Germany, reacted a point on a large turnover and regained a small fraction. Karstadt Rudolph 6s sold off 4, and Nuremberg 6s sank to a new year's low. The German 7s, so-called Dawes issue, lost only ⅝. South American issues were fairly steady and good buying developed for Argentine 6s of October, 1959.

Some of the stock privilege bonds of domestic corporations were sold in sympathy with the trend of equity issues, but investment issues held on an even keel, some of the high grade railroad and utility issues profiting from a good demand.

Utilities established a new high for the year in the averages. American Telephone debenture 5s repeated its previous high of the year. American and Foreign Power 5s were in demand. Columbia Gas and Electric 5s climbed to a new 1930 high. New peaks were also reached by Baltimore and Ohio, Toledo 4s, Boston and Maine 5s of 1967, Cotton Belt 1st 4s, Oregon Short Line 5s, and Coast Line 4s.

United States governments were steady. Liberty 3½s the most active bond, was firm.

RAIL GROUPS ATTACK NEW GRAIN RATES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—New rates on grain and grain products which the interstate commerce commission has ordered put into effect after October were vigorously attacked today in petitions opposing them filed by two railroad groups.

Railroads operating in the west already have indicated opposition to the new schedule, and the complaints today came from carriers whose lines traverse the southeastern quarter of the United States and the Mississippi valley.

All three of the petitions are now on record in demanding that the commission halt the rate revision it has ordered and that it grant a rehearing to the railroads so they may present new arguments and new evidence.

In the southeastern railroad petition today it was argued that carriers would encounter a $14,000,000 reduction per year in net earnings as a result more particularly of the drop in grain rates suggested by the commission on traffic to New Orleans, to Mobile, and to Memphis.

The Mississippi valley railroads cited particularly the alleged lowering of rate schedules on St. Louis-New Orleans grain shipments entailed by the commission's decision. Their petition argued there would be "enormous losses to this group of carriers as a result of the establishment of the new grain rates."

In view of their present operating condition, the Mississippi valley lines said, they were "in no position to assume the burden."

EXTRA DIVIDEND BY ALLEGHENY STEEL COMPANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—Allegheny Steel company declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share and three monthly dividends of 15 cents each on the common stock. In April and July of this year similar extras were paid. The Southern Berkshire Power and Electric corporation announced an extra dividend of $1.25 a share. The Worcester Suburban Electric company voted an extra dividend of $1.50 a share on the outstanding stock.

The directors of the Magma Copper company cut the dividend rate from $4 annually to $3 by declaring a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share. This is the second reduction this year. Three months ago the board reduced the rate from $5 a year to $4 when the directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

WHEAT VALUES ON DOWNGRADE FROM THE START

Grain Corp. Not to Sell Grain for Drought Relief

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat values were on the down grade from the start yesterday, with scattered liquidation in evidence. Prices dropped 1⅞@2¼c from Thursday's finish, with the deferred futures equaling the inside figures of the season.

Weakness in Liverpool, which was off 1⅛@1⅜d on pressure of Russian offerings, combined with a slow export demand and pronounced easiness in Winnipeg were the main depressing influences. Closing trades were at net losses of 1⅜@1⅝c with September finishing at 81c; December, 85¼@85⅝c, and May 91⅝@91¾c.

Winnipeg October wheat sold as low as 77½c during the day, and went to the lowest level recorded in 22 years when the Winnipeg Grain Exchange became an institution on its own, separated from the Winnipeg Grain and Produce exchange, and quotations were officially recorded. The previous low was in 1913 when October sold at 78¼c. Net losses in the Canadian market for the day was 2@2¼c.

Milnor Talks on Wheat Grinding.

President George S. Milnor of the Grain Stabilization corporation, in a long statement given to the trade yesterday, said the corporation did not contemplate selling the wheat which it owns for drought relief purposes. If in certain instances, the release of wheat by the corporation, which it may have stored at certain points convenient to drought areas prove advantageous for relief in such districts, the wheat might be sold at the market price, but in such an event an equal quantity would be purchased in the open market in order that the 60,000,000 bu stock of grain owned by the corporation would not be impaired.

"The grain corporation does not expect to grind grain or buy or sell coarse grains or feed stuffs," said Mr. Milnor. "Pending completion of plans by federal and state drought relief committees no definite steps have been taken by the Farmers' National Grain corporation in connection with relief work. As any drought relief program would probably entail the distribution of grain, ground grain and other feed, the Farmers' National Grain corporation has made inquiry of feed manufacturers and millers as to what plan they might suggest for the manufacture, distribution and sale of feeds for drought relief purposes.

"When such plans have been developed the Farmers' National and, undoubtedly, many of its coöperative associations, will utilize their facilities in coöperating with drought relief committees, feed manufacturers and others," according to Mr. Milnor. The latter expresses the belief that the damage to corn and fodder crops is so severe that it will make necessary the feeding of large quantities of wheat.

Corn Market Weakens.

At no time were corn prices as high as the finish of the previous day. Commission houses and locals were on the selling side and found support lacking until the price dropped into the bids and around 2c under Thursday's finish. The close was on a fractional rally from the bottom with net losses of 1¼@1¾c. September finished at 90¼c; December, 86⅝@7c, and May at 88⅝@88¾c.

Corn traders paid little attention to the forecast for frost in Nebraska and the Dakotas, but rumors regarding unfavorable political conditions and the break in wheat and in the stock market in New York had considerable influence in bringing about the decline. Country offerings were limited and the shipping demand slow.

Scattered liquidation developed in cats with commission houses fair buyers on the break on resting orders. Final trades were at net losses of ⅝@1¼c with September at 37⅛c; December, 40c, and May, 42⅞c.

Rye was affected by the action of wheat and closed 1¼@1¾c lower, final trades being 52¾c on September and 56⅞c on December. Cash demand remains slow.

COTTON GINNINGS LIGHT

Ginning of cotton, according to the E. H. Miller-J. E. Bennett & Co. report was 1,669,000 bales during the Sept. 1 to 16 period, or well below the average of the last five years, but the total of 3,545,000 bales for the season to date is the largest since 1925, and compared with 2,501,000 bales last season. The crop is estimated at 13,400,000 to 13,500,000 bales, or about 900,000 bales less than the government figures.

Weakness in the stock market and scattered hedging pressure had a depressing effect yesterday on futures and more than offset the relative strength in Liverpool. Chicago with net losses of 8 to 12 points, while New Orleans was 9@12 points lower, and New York off 7@11 points. Spot cotton in New Orleans was 10 points lower at 10.65c, with sales of 6,617 bales; New York was off 10 points at 10.90c; Galveston, 10.80c, and Houston, 10.75c. Prices follow:

CHICAGO BABY CARRIAGE CO. LEASES BLOCK

Rents 6 Story Building at Michigan and 18th.

BY AL CHASE.

The south end of Michigan avenue's "auto row" is changing from automobile to miscellaneous occupancy according to Gordon Strong & Co., who have closed fifteen leases during the last six months. Ben Schlessinger, of the firm, who negotiated these deals, called attention to this interesting realty change.

The most significant of these leases was closed yesterday when the Chicago Baby Carriage company [Kroll Bros.], of which Nathan J. Kroll is president, rented the entire six story building at the southeast corner of 18th and Michigan from the N. K. Fairbank estate for twelve years at a gross rental of $153,500. The graduated annual rental starts at $12,000 and ends at $15,900.

Will Have Retail Store.

The leases will use the first and second floors for retail selling and for offices. The upper stories will be used for manufacturing and storage. The company has a manufacturing plant and retail store at 1621 West Roosevelt road and also a shop store in the Stevens building.

The Bertram Studios, Inc., have leased 1,500 square feet on the fifth floor of the building at 155 East Superior street, for five years from Oct. 1. A. C. Schey of the Farnham-Kuhn company, was broker.

Buys 67th-Jeffery Corner.

The Texas company has purchased from the Highlands company, owners of the Jackson Park Highlands subdivision, the southwest corner of 67th street and Jeffery avenue, 100x134, for an undisclosed consideration. The buyer or lessee had a filling station on this property under lease for the last seven years. Paul L. Day & Co. were brokers.

John P. Manion of South Bend, Ind., has leased the vacant at 73 East 22d street from Herbert J. Friedman for five years through Mark Levy & Bro., who will install a dining car lunch room.

The seven room brick residence at 35 Ridge terrace, Evanston, has been sold by the Chicago Title and Trust Co., as trustee, to Maurice B. Rissman and Leo S. Hirschfeld, architects, for an undisclosed price. As part payment the buyers gave the twenty acres of land on Main street, in Winthrop Harbor, east of Sheridan road, Liepold & Hicks were brokers.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, hogs, 35,000; cattle, 5,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep.

Better grades of hogs sold steady to 10c higher yesterday, while others moved slowly at barely steady prices. Extremely heavy packing sows were slow. However, the clearance was good and only 2,000 pen holders and inferior grades remained at the close.

The extreme top was unchanged again at $11.00, while the general average moved up 5c to $10.05. The slow movement of fresh pork at weak to lower prices on the wholesale market curtailed buying of live hogs by smaller local packers yesterday, but with total offerings below expectations and small for Friday, this fact had little effect on the trade.

Light weight pork loins are selling $@10c per lb lower than three weeks ago, when prices were at the highest spot in two years. Heavy loins are not as plentiful and show only 3@4c loss in this time.

Monday Hogs Are Bid $11.00.

Medium grades of hogs averaging 210@260 lbs. for next Monday's delivery were bid $11.00 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but there were no sellers at this figure. Heavy grades averaging 280@310 lbs. for next Monday and Tuesday carried bids of $10.70.

Trading in futures was active at steady to 5c lower prices. January light sold at $9.05. September mediums opened at $10.85 and closed at $10.80, while December mediums opened at $9.10 and closed at $9.05. January mediums sold at $9.10.

Yesterday's meager supply of 1,000 cattle, hardly enough to establish a fair list of quotations, changed hands at the week's sharp decline. Most sales were 50c to $1.00 below the highest point of last week, best grades sharing in the reduction. Jewish holidays next week had a bearish influence on the trade.

Prime steers and yearlings were absent yesterday and the best available averaged 1,230 lbs and sold at $11.25. Mixed steers and heifers sold at $11.00. Butcher stock sold slowly, closing 75c to $1.00 lower on most cows and heifers. Calves were steady and about in line with a week ago. Stockers and feeders continued slow.

Lamb Market Stronger.

After touching a new low level since September, 1914, during the middle of the week, supplies dropped off some and a stronger undertone was noted yesterday. Ewe and wether native lambs of good to choice quality sold at $8.00@8.50 while western range stock sold at $7.75@8.50.

Daily average prices during the last half of the week have been below $8.00 for the first time. Aged and yearling sheep were scarce and unchanged. Demand for feeding lambs at $7.00@7.75 continued fair, with hardly enough available to fill orders.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 5,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep, against 377 cattle, 6,121 hogs, and 6,168 sheep on the previous Saturday and 545 cattle, 5,330 hogs, and 1,487 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated at from 32,000 to 43,000. H. Pattison marked 32,000; F. M. Sherwood, J. T. Brown, G. W. Chandler, and G. Brittain, 35,000; W. C. White, 36,000; E. S. Waterbury, 37,000; J. M. Waters, F. W. Young, A. W. Trotter, and H. Wolfe, 38,000; A. G. Welhener, C. Southwick, and M. J. Berkery, 40,000, and C. Daley, 43,000.
